

LOOKING AHEAD

The Winchester Star Centennial Edition, Friday, September 26, 1980

Will come to expect fewer services? Will the quality of life change?

MacDonald: I don't think so. Even though we see a change in our population, particularly as it relates to education, even now when we are forced to make budget reductions and people are frustrated by the fact that nerve from the need of the wallet is becoming very sensitive, I don't see them very willing to give up anything. I've yet to find anything that the town is universally willing to give up.

Teeckers: Except salt on streets. They saw they were gaining something by giving it up. They were gaining their environment back. That was the perception.

Groux: I've worked in some other communities. The difference in Winchester is that people are more sophisticated. They really look at the alternatives of giving up a service and recognize that maybe in the long run the alternative is more expensive and less desirable. So they're willing to tax themselves for what they perceive to be a quality of life that's worth the money.

Unfortunately, as issues such as initiatives in property tax limitation come along, communities like Winchester will no longer have that option. As much as people might be willing to tax themselves in order to maintain a quality of life, they will not be able to. They'll find they no longer have the legal means.

MacDonald: I think you're probably right. I must say that I think it's the wrong route to go to. I hate to see local option cast away.

What do you think will go, if anything goes?

Groux: All the so-called frills and fat.

MacDonald: What are those things? I don't even know what they are.

Groux: I think of Barney Frank who was quoted a year ago talking about the fat in public budgets. He was referring to the state I suppose. He told his audience that you have to recognize what fat is. People think fat is like fat on a nice steak. It's all on the outside. You cut it off and you still have a nice piece of meat to eat, without affecting the quality of what you're getting.

He said the fat is more like the marble in a marble cake. You can't take the fat out without dismantling the cake.

MacDonald: I don't hear the terms fat and frills quite so much anymore. We've cut so many things that I think a lot of people realize that there isn't a lot of fat or frills. Also, what you consider fat may have no interest for you but could have vital interest for me. Different people want different things, and that's probably why Howard Johnson has 23 flavors.

Groux: Clarence Borggaard, one of the most vocal members of the Town Meeting, argued for garbage collection and said different people need different things. The community has always responded by recognizing individual needs. It's part of what makes the town a desirable place to live; it responds to needs.

Teeckers: I think there are two things that might change that will enhance the quality of life without creating higher taxes. If the town center were to become more aesthetically appealing and a place for social exchange, it really could enhance the quality of life.

I came here at the end of the time when there was a lot of business in town. Two or three years later, the Filene's store closed. Filene's really attracted people to the region and without it the town center went downhill.

Just recently the Planning Board took an attitude survey of people in town. There were a few things that came out. One was that open space is important in this town, both aesthetically and from a tax point of view. People did feel that aesthetically they enjoyed open space and it was one of the factors in increasing the value of real estate.

Second was the town center. The question was asked, do you really think it's worth having a town center. Most of the people who moved to this town, did so because there was a center.

People that go to Lincoln, don't want a center. They just want open space and a few houses here and there, but people who come to Winchester really want some kind of a focus of activity. There's an interest in town government and a kind of centrality.

I believe that if some businesses and commercial activity are attracted, if some multi-family housing is in fact built, and one is under construction now and I know of a couple of others under consideration, if these things really do happen, then it might be the town center will become a much more aesthetically pleasing place.

As a result of that, I think we can enhance the quality of life and expand the tax base.

As far as open space goes, we are really blessed with the open space in the Fells Reservation. I am surprised how few people recognize this. But in this energy crisis, the cross-country skiing that has taken place in the Fells has been extraordinary and it's never been true before. In fact, it even occurred to a businessman in town to rent skis.

But there's an ingredient there, and if the town combined with another town could put more pressure on the MDC to improve management aspects, this would be a relatively inexpensive way to enhance the value of life.

Teeckers: I have a feeling there isn't going to be that much change in the physical stature of the town, and I think that's good. That's a positive statement. There's a limited market for activity.

The potential that Route 93 offers this community now of access to the airport means Winchester might be attractive to the kinds of businesses and commercial activity that require the airport. There are all kinds of consulting businesses who do work all over the country and over all the world. This town is a pleasant place, easy to get to as far as traffic, but hard to get to by desire.

If you want to buy a pair of shoes, you're not going to come to Winchester. But it's easy to get to Winchester at 8 o'clock in the morning, because no one else is trying to get here.

For that reason, I think we might attract a small to moderate size consulting business that needs access to the highway.

I can see that kind of activity happening. I don't see the physical environment changing, although hopefully in 20 years that whole gasoline alley strip on Thompson street will have been enriched.

The residential areas will change very little. There isn't much land left in the community to build on, and the only thing that might happen might be some multi-family housing within residential areas on sites that are extremely difficult to build on.

And hopefully you'll see the zone from the Woburn line to all the way to the town center converted back into another zone, not business.

The negative side of my statement is, if that does not happen, I believe that the town from the First National store all the way up, will look exactly like a commercial strip. That will happen, unless it's stopped by re-zoning.

Groux: I don't see much change in 20 years. I think the housing in any area and the community in any area is in good condition. There aren't any so-called blighted areas that could be recycled, torn down or dramatically changed.

The tremendous majority of people here care about their property. There are isolated areas here and there and problems from time to time, but even those look like they're improving.

There is a growing appreciation on the part of both people who live outside of the center and those who draw their living or services from the center that there's a tremendous resource there. Now there's a sense, we've got something good and we can do something about it. The effort in the next 5 or 10 years to revitalize the business center will be important to the tax base, to the services and to revitalizing the whole community.

This will be coupled with some activity that will satisfy the multiple housing need, particularly for the elderly people.

So you think the town will remain a strictly residential community?

Groux: Yes, I believe that very much. It satisfies an important need in the metropolitan area. Its attractiveness is its residential nature and its ability to service that need.

Teeckers: People now are more encouraged to look forward to positive things when it comes to the aesthetics of their own environment, like the cleaning up of gasoline alley, and the desire for people to have some kind of a management program for the landscape of the town.

As the town looks inwardly again to itself, it's going to start demanding. Visually, there are some ugly moments in the center, and I think it's good that people come to recognize it. As soon as they started using it more, there was a negative part of it too. They're attracted down there because of businesses like the fish market, then they become critical of what they're seeing.

I think that's terrific. But I don't see a big deal, just small expenditures, but you'll get a big bang out of the results.

MacDonald: I would predict that you're still going to see a world that's looking for a population who can communicate well. You're going to see a lot more sophistication as far as data processing. I see a very computerized world.

I just hope that along with the computerization, education still holds on to that which gives personality to a person and to the world.

New Tax Rate Is $77.70; Less Than Was Expected

The Board of Assessors delivered the good news this week when they revealed that the new tax rate approved last Friday was about $1.60 less than anticipated. The new rate approved by the state Friday is $77.70, an increase of $2.80.

Town Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano told the Selectmen Monday night that the bills were mailed out to residents yesterday. Residents will have until Nov. 1 to pay the bill or a 14 percent interest charge will be tacked onto the bill.

Although Nov. 1 is a Saturday, Faggiano assured the board that the tax collectors office would be open to accept payments. If the bills are mailed they must be postmarked no later than Nov. 1. Despite the increase the Selectmen expressed their pleasure at the news from the Assessors. At last spring's Town Meeting the tax rate increase was estimated at about $4.50, which would hike the rate to $79.30. Faggiano explained that the reason for the lesser increase was because of a discovery of an additional $2 million in assessed values. Summer Deal of the Board of Assessors said the extra assessments were realized because of the water rate (Tax - Page 2)

Police, Town Agree On A Three-Year Contract

By STEVEN AUSTIN

A contract agreement which gives Winchester Police a night differential for the first time has been struck between police and the town.

The agreement, which was approved by representatives of the town and the Winchester Police Association Sept. 23, was voted on by police Wednesday afternoon at 2 p.m., after The Star's deadline.

The three-year contract offers a $1 per shift per night differential the first year, $1.25 per shift per night in year two and $1.25 per shift per night in the third year of the agreement.

Town Manager staff assistant Gary McPhee explained that the night differential represented more of a hurdle overcome than a great gain in benefits for police officers.

Police Association President Bill O'Neill said he was pleased with the agreement.

"In all records," O'Neill said, "we're happy."

The contract affects 42 officers in the Department. Of that number, 27 officers will be assigned to night duty and affected by the night differential.

In addition to the night differential, the contract provides a six and three-quarters percent increase in salaries during year one, that same percentage figure during year two and a seven percent increase in the final year of the agreement.

The contract also provides officers with an increase in detail payments. Detail payments include what O'Neill termed "extra duty, such as road or dance duty."

Presently, those payments are at $9 per hour.

Wade Welch

Under the new agreement, those payments would increase to $9.50 in year one, $10 in year two and $10.50 in year three.

O'Neill said the meeting Wednesday would be to take a vote of confidence on the contract and to elect new officers.

Selectmen Chairman Wade Welch, who, with Selectmen John Williams, represented the town during contract negotiations, also expressed satisfaction with the pact.

"It's a fair agreement for both sides," Welch said.

Assuming the police and Police

Winchester Police have been working without a contract since June. That contract was negotiated in February of 1979.

The discussion of the contract has been a lengthy one, with most of the delays apparently centering around the discussion of the night differential.

Town representatives and representatives of the Police Association initially met April 10. Following meetings May 5, 6 and 20, the discussion was taken to the Joint Labor Management Committee, a state agency created three years ago which has jurisdiction over police and fire fighters disputes.

That meeting with the Joint Labor Relations Committee took place July 3. Representatives met next Sept. 10 and, on Sept. 23, signed with the town in a Boston meeting.

Following approval by the Police Association and the Board of Selectmen, the contract must be confirmed at the Nov. 2 Fall Town Meeting.

If Town Meeting approval is granted the contract takes effect ten days following that approval.

The Winchester Police Department is composed of 43 officers. There is a Chief, five lieutenants, five sergeants and 32 patrolmen.

The Chief of Police, John McHugh, is not affected by the contract. Association approves the contract, Welch said. Selectmen would take up the agreement next Monday. He also said the town's Finance Committee would be filled in on the terms of the agreement.

"I feel confident the board will ratify the agreement," Welch said.

Welch said the Police Association "broke new ground" during the contract talks. Winchester mentioned specifics, he indicated that the new ground referred to the night differential.

Selectmen Receive Bartlett School Proposal For Parkhurst Site Re-Use

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

The Selectmen received a "serious proposal" from the Bartlett School for use of the vacant Parkhurst School this week, it was announced.

The board met with Bartlett School Attorney Robert Graves in executive session Monday night to receive a proposal in writing and are now awaiting input from the Parkhurst neighborhood.

Selectmen Chairman Wade Welch said the proposal consisted of a five-year rental agreement with an option to buy at the end of the five years. Under the agreement the monthly rent would increase $200 per year. The first year would start at $1,600 a month and would reach $2,400 a month by the fifth year of the agreement.

If November Town Meeting approves the Bartlett proposal the deal would be effective Aug. 1, 1981.

"It's a serious proposal and we are now waiting to see what the neighborhood thinks," Welch said.

Welch added that proposals for single family house lots at the site have also been solicited and will be considered by Town Meeting along with the Bartlett School.

Graves said the Selectmen and the Bartlett School, a private school presently housed at the Wyman School on Church street, had an agreement "that they (the Selectmen) will support."

Graves said a "majority" of the board was in favor of the Bartlett proposal.

Welch said that was not true. He said the board had taken no vote on the proposal and would not do so until the neighborhood had been heard from.

"There was no vote," he insisted. "We are waiting for neighborhood input. If the neighborhood supports single family house lots then we'll probably come back with single family house lots," he said.

Barbara Pacelli, a spokesman for the Parkhurst neighborhood group, said she had been aware that Bartlett officials had been meeting with the Selectmen to work on a proposal but didn't know what kind of proposal had been offered.

"I would say generally speaking that the neighborhood would welcome the Bartlett School," Pacelli said, adding that she would have more to say when she saw the actual proposal.

Two of the major stumbling blocks that prevented action from being taken on the Parkhurst School at spring Town Meeting — money and what to do with the Wyman School — have apparently been resolved.

The Bartlett has been paying $1,000 a month rent since it moved into the Church street building three years ago.

By making the effective date of the agreement Aug. 1, 1981 (if Town Meeting accepts the Bartlett proposal) it also gives Wyman neighborhood residents time to look into alternative uses of that property and take action at the spring 1981 Town Meeting.

In the last Spring Town Meeting the neighborhood switched support back and forth from the Bartlett School to the single family house lots. Eventually both the single family house lots proposals were rejected by Town Meeting, putting off the decision until November.

There are already in place in the November warrant a pair of articles that authorize sale or lease of the Parkhurst School as well as allow rezoning of the property depending on who moves on to the site.

Graves and members of the Alternative School Use Committee are expected to meet with Parkhurst neighborhood residents this week to get their input on the proposals.

Washington School Decision Expected

The committee considering the re-use of the Washington School is expected to make a final recommendation to the Board of Selectmen Oct. 14, according to committee member Carolyn Ward.

The School Re-Use Committee met Monday and Tuesday evening with six developers interested in converting the school into condominiums.

Interviews with finalists are to get underway next Tuesday and Wednesday, Ward explained. She expects there will be at least three finalists.

The six developers interviewed by the committee this week included the team of Bradford W. Blakeley and Martin W. Hill of Boston, Paul Frazzini Associates, also of Boston, The Codman Company and the Boston Architectural Team Inc. of Boston, Washington Development Association, which includes E.R. Racek Associates, of Boston, a three member team composed of the American Properties Team Inc., City Design Collaborative Inc. and the firm of Taylor, Woodrow and Biltman, of Boston and Reservoir Condominium Associates, the Niles Company Inc. and Goody, Calancy and Associates, also of Boston.

Ward said the six developers have principals from Winchester.

Of the design submissions for the re-use of the school, Ward said, "We are trying to arrange to display these designs in Town Hall for public review."

She said those designs would probably be displayed after the final decision on a developer has been made.

Ward explained that the developers were talking a 10-12 month timeframe for occupancy in the school.

Currently, Winchester Hospital holds a six-month, tenant at-will lease on the school.

Ward said the selected developer would notify the Board of Selectmen when they (the developers) wanted to begin work. The Selectmen would then notify the hospital, giving that institution six months to leave the building.

hike and the excise tax assessments. The additional $2 million put the town's total assessed value at $211 million.

Faggiano said the increase was the best the town could have expected. "The increase was minimal when you compare the inflationary factors we compete against."

Selectman Chairman Wade Welch said he was very pleased with the new tax rate. He said that in the five year period since the Town Charter has been in operation the tax rate has increased just 10.5 percent.

Referring to newspaper reports criticizing the Charter, Welch added that in the five years prior to the Charter, the rate increase was 14 percent, despite higher inflation in the last five years.

Acting DPW Director Expected

An Acting Director for Winchester's Department of Public Works won't be appointed for two or three weeks, according to Garry McPhee, a staff assistant for Town Manager Tom Groux.

McPhee said the appointment would not be made until it was closer to the time when current DPW director Walter Tonasuck leaves his post to take a similar position with the Town of Lexington.

Tonasuck turned in his resignation to Groux last week.

At that time, Groux explained a new DPW Director won't be selected for at least two months.

Groux said then the method for filling the position was as yet undecided. In employing the Director in the past, Groux said, a committee had been selected to aid Groux in reviewing resumes and applications.

In an interview following his resignation Tonasuck said his decision to take the Lexington post wasn't tied to recent criticism of his department concerning a flushing program currently underway in the town's water system or with his lack of certification as a water supervisor.

State law requires that one individual in the Water Department be certified.

Currently, no one in the Winchester Department is certified or graded above Grade II.

Tonasuck, Water Supervisor Richard Warrington and a number of others recently took state examinations to give them needed certifications at the proper grades and levels.

Tests scores aren't expected for two or three months.

Tonasuck's current lack of certification won't be a problem in Lexington since that department already has employees with the proper level of certification.

Tonasuck is Winchester's first Director of Public Works, a position he took over four years ago when the Charter created it.

Prior to coming to Winchester, he was DPW Director in Easton for three and a half years.

Tonasuck's resignation becomes effective Oct. 20, the date he is scheduled to go to work in Lexington. His last day with the Winchester staff is Oct. 17.

Church Offers Educational Series

Beginning Oct. 5 at 11:20 a.m., the adult education program at the First Congregational Church offers three series of topics over the next four months.

Three Sundays in October will deal with "Ethnic Diversity and Community," coordinated by the former multicultural specialist in the Winchester schools, Mrs. Lee Behnke.

On Oct. 5 a panel of multicultural representatives of the Winchester community will discuss "Cultural Heritage: E Pluribus Unum."

On Oct. 12 "Winchester's Ethnic History" will be reviewed in the form of a slide lecture by Ms. Susan Keats, and on Oct. 19 the subject will be "Winchester: Boston's Ethnic Reflection."

Four Sundays in November will deal with "Help in Crisis," with special attention to the problems of child abuse and neglect and alcohol-drug abuse.

The Winchester Interagency Council's report on these problems will be presented on Nov. 2 by Donald T. Rowlingson. On Nov. 9 the subject of "Child Abuse" will be addressed by Robert Mylford, former director of

M.S.P.C.C. and Mrs. Donna Baugheum, psychiatric nurse at Children's Hospital.

On Nov. 16, Vandy French, assistant principal at Winchester High School, will lead a discussion on "The Teenage Alcohol Problem."

The series will conclude on Nov. 23 with a review of services offered by the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center, led by Ms. Nancy Langman-Dorwart, director of the Center's Consultation and Allen Charles Hill, AIA, Winchester resident and principal of the firm of Historic Preservation and Architecture, also in Winchester, will be leading an eight-session lecture series on historic house research at The Old Schwamb Mill in Arlington.

The series, entitled "How Old Is Your House?" will be offered Tuesday nights beginning Oct. 14 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The series will survey domestic architecture from the 17th century to the present with abundant illustrations from Hill's personal collection of colored slides. Techniques for investigating and restoring old buildings will be presented, and members of the class will become acquainted with the varied resources available for their research.

"How Old Is Your House?" is a special course offered through the educational program of The Old Schwamb Mill. A 19th century woodworking mill, The Old Schwamb Mill is preserved as a working historical museum of industry, art and craftsmanship. It is in the National Register of Historic Places.

Senior News

On Oct. 28, at 7:30 p.m., at Jenks Senior Center, Thomasina Daniels of Transition House Shelter in Cambridge, will present a talk about "Battered Women, Children, and the Elderly." Preceding her presentation, she will show a 35-minute film that is addressed to the problems faced by these individuals.

Quota Club of Winchester, a service-oriented group of executive women, is providing this evening program, to which the public of the town is invited.

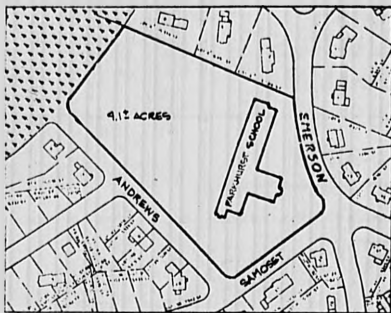

There is no admission fee and the Winchester Seniors Association is co-sponsoring the activity.

A box will be provided in the Meeting Room at the Jenks

Senior Center for any items you can bring to help those unfortunate people.

Needed are such items as towels, tooth brushes, tooth paste, soap, good usable clothing, sheets, underwear, and similar items in good condition. Often those victimized arrive at the Shelter clad only in night-clothing

SINGLE-FAMILY DEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITY WINCHESTER, MASS.

Proposals invited for purchase and single-family development of Parkhurst School site. Four acres of terraced land adjacent to park land. Superb views of town and Mystic Valley. Brick school building to be demolished by developer. Informational meeting at site October 8, 1980 at 3:00 PM. Proposal invitation may be obtained from Marie Campbell, Planning Board Office, Winchester Town Hall, 617-729-2444. Proposals due October 24, 1980.

WHS Students Commended

Vincent E. Larocco, Principal of Winchester High School, announces that 33 seniors are being commended for their outstanding performance in the twenty-sixth annual (1981) National Merit Scholarship Program.

Letters of Commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the competition, will be presented to:

Amy D. Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Anderson of 15 Herrick St.
Thomas H. Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bishop of 29 Everett Ave.
Mary E. Boland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Boland of 4 Dartmouth St.

John R. Wiseman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiseman of 92 Lawson Rd.

Patrice R. Wolfe, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Hubert J. Wolfe of 38 Everett Ave.

These students, plus the seven previously announced Semi-finalists, represent 10 percent of their class. This is the largest number of persons to be recognized in Winchester High School in recent history.

"Youngsters" on the staff such as Jack Waite, Frank Finigan and Connie Trickett cannot remember when a class has shown so much potential. More than one million students entered the 1981 Merit Program by taking the PSAT - NMSQT in 1979.

About 33,000 of these students through the United States will receive a commendation for outstanding test performance. Commended students rank below the level required for Merit Program Semifinalists — the only participants who will continue in the 1981 competition for Merit Scholarships.

Reagan-Bush Work Underway

Reagan-Bush activities are continuing through these fall weeks after spring and summer meetings of the Winchester Republican Town Committee following the March Presidential Primaries and the July Republican Convention.

Chairman H. Rushton Harwood, Vice Chairman Jennifer Flowers and several other members of the local committee attended the Faneuil Hall Leadership meeting on Sept. 6. They, in turn, briefed the Winchester members on messages of the meeting and the activities to come.

Saturday, Oct. 4 has been set as the National Voter Canvass and beginning of the intensive campaign period. Wednesday's meeting was held at the Shasta home on Grove street and was well attended. The usual Presidential election-related work was discussed and duties assigned. The telephone campaign set up by the state and national Reagan-Bush committees was outlined by Mr. Harwood and Mrs. Flowers, and various members volunteered to take on special assignments with a number of others cooperating.

Harwood has kept in touch with the Boston Reagan-Bush Headquarters at 140 Federal St. and Mrs. Flowers (who is also a Vice President of The Winchester Women's Republican Club) has checked on the dates and details important to the local Town and City Committees.

The speaker for the evening was Attorney Vincent Celeste. He may be remembered as a young man, for his courageous but unsuccessful Congressional and Senatorial campaigns opposing the popular John F. Kennedy.

Celeste's in-depth message to the members concerning Reagan's excellent background and well-proven ability, was spontaneously supported by former Representative Harrison Chadwick, Chadwick, an admirer of Reagan for many years, verified the character and competence of Reagan, the man.

"Somewhere, out there in Winchester," said Chairman Harwood, "there are many citizens who voted for Ronald Reagan and George Bush. If any of them are interested in helping during the next six weeks, we would like to hear from them."

Local Nuke Question Different

Local organizers of the Massachusetts nuclear power moratorium ballot question are not discouraged by the defeat of the Maine nuclear power referendum last week.

The question on the Winchester ballot in November is much different than the question presented to the Maine voters, and the Fourth Middlesex Moratorium Committee predicts passage of the local question by a significant margin.

In the Maine election, voters were asked in a binding referendum whether an existing nuclear power plant should be shut down. Question 8 on Winchester ballots does not affect the operation of the existing nuclear power plants in Plymouth and Rowe, but rather asks whether future nuclear plants should be postponed for the time being.

The local question is a non-binding advisory to the state senator in this district.

"The New England area right now has a 35 percent surplus of electricity (spinning reserve) over peak load needs, and the utilities predict only a two percent annual growth in demand for the next decade," explains Alan M. Bernstein, chairman of the Fourth Middlesex Moratorium Committee. "Since we don't need more electric generating capacity right now, we believe it would be wise to pause in our nuclear construction, to solve nuclear plant safety problems, to develop adequate disposal systems for nuclear waste, and to develop other renewable sources of energy such as solar and hydroelectric power."

Bernstein noted that, since the Massachusetts question is non-binding and calls for only a moratorium on new nuclear construction and licensing, the state could return to developing nuclear power should that be desirable at any future time.

"Maine already has a state law, much tougher than the Winchester ballot question, which forbids any new nuclear construction," he added.

The Fourth Middlesex Moratorium Committee is a group of over 100 volunteers in Winchester, Lexington, Arlington, and Woburn who are working in those communities for the passage of the nuclear power moratorium ballot question. They have joined a coalition of similar groups throughout the state and have been aided by Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX), a statewide lobbying organization.

The Committee may be contacted through Alan or Janet Bernstein, 165 Lake St., Arlington, 643-1044.

Bryan, now or formerly of Marysville, in the State of California, or his heirs, devisees or legal representatives.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Town of Winchester, a municipal corporation located in the County of Middlesex (Southern District) and said Commonwealth to foreclose all rights of redemption from the tax lien proceedings described in said petition and concerning a certain parcel of land situated in said Winchester in the County of Middlesex (Southern District) and in said Commonwealth, bounded and described in said petition as follows: Location: 66-68 Irving Street. A parcel of land with buildings thereon situated on the Southern side of Irving Street, supposed to contain about 4200 sq. ft. being Lot 56, and the easterly half of Lot 52, said land has been shown on a plan recorded in the Middlesex County Registry of Deeds, South District, Plan Book 70, Plan 48.

If you desire to make any objection or defense to said petition you or your attorney must file a written appearance and an answer, under oath, setting forth clearly and specifically your objections or defenses to each part of said petition, in the office of the Recorder of said Court in Boston (at the Court House), on or before the tenth day of November.

Unless an appearance is so filed by or for you, your default will be recorded, the said petition will be taken as confessed and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

And in addition to the usual service of this notice as required by law, it is ordered that the foregoing citation be published forthwith once each week for three successive weeks in The Winchester Star a newspaper published in said Winchester.

Witness, William I. Randall, Esquire, Chief Justice of said Court, this twelfth day of September in the year nineteen hundred and eighty.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

PLANNING BOARD
NOTICE OF
PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING

SUBDIVISION OF LAND
Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will hold a public hearing on TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1980-8:15 P.M.

at the Jenks Senior Center, Skillings Road for Definitive Approval of an "Amended Plan" of a subdivision of land which is situated between Pepper Hill Drive, Edward Drive and the Lexington Town Line. Subdivision includes the extension of Edward Drive twelve hundred and fifty (1250) feet, northeasterly to Pepper Hill Drive, and an unnamed way within the subdivision extending from the proposed layout of Edward Drive northerly about one hundred sixteen (116) feet.

This hearing is being held because of revisions that have been made on a Definitive Plan dated March 16, 1979, which was approved by the Planning Board on October 15, 1979.

Prior to the hearing the plans may be examined at the Planning Board-Engineering Department Office, Basement, Town Hall.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this 26th day of August 1980.

Steven Austin: On Riding The Local Rails

I'm in love with the train. My car failed me recently. The mechanic I had look at it just stared and made clucking sounds in her throat. The prognosis doesn't look good.

So, I've been taking the train to work.

I probably attach a good deal more romance to the train than I should. After all, coming from an area of the country where public transportation extends only as far as a crooked thumb, commuter trains are something to which I am unaccustomed.

I like the way the country slips past the window.

I like the clacking sound the metal wheels make meeting the tracks.

I like the way the newspapers that hide the morning faces lie scattered on the floor in the afternoon.

I like the way the conductor looks approaching the station.

I like the brakeman's uniform. It's like something from a story by John Cheever.

I may have taken the romance of it all a bit far though.

Those familiar with me think so anyway.

A friend of mine questioned me about my new commuting lifestyle recently.

He was anything but impressed with my impromptu lecture on the joys of trains.

"You don't carry a briefcase, do you," he asked.

"Well, no," I said.

"Then you're not a real commuter. He said that with the final sort of air all alleged experts use.

"Of course I am," I said a little frantically. "I ride the train everyday, don't I."

"Doesn't matter," he said. "Without the briefcase, I'm afraid you're little more than a train rider in commuter's clothing."

I conceded the point. "And another thing," he said, "you don't like cocktails."

He had a point.

"Can't be a real commuter unless you like cocktails," he explained. His voice was cut again with that expert's air.

"All right," I said, "briefcase and cocktails aside, I'm still a commuter, thought, right?"

"Look," he said, "I've explained the rules to you and you're not playing by them. No, you're not a real commuter. And you can't go around claiming to be something you're not."

"All right," I said, "so I'm not a real commuter then. So I'm just a train rider."

My friend said he was glad I'd seen the light.

For my part, I plan to look around for a briefcase and a cocktail shaker this weekend.

Prop. 2½: A Summary Of Question 2

On Nov. 4 Massachusetts voters will vote on six referendum ballot questions statewide, with additional local questions in some areas.

The question which has generated the most debate and concern is Question 2, so-called Proposition 2.5, which would limit taxes on real estate and personal property.

In the coming weeks this newspaper will be printing accounts about Proposition 2.5 discussions and meetings. Before the election the ballot questions and summaries of the pro and con positions will be published.

Readers are welcome to send their thoughts and considerations about ballot questions to the editorial page.

In order to make sure that all readers know what Proposition 2.5 is about this summary of its 12 provisions is being published. This information comes from Citizens for Limited Taxation of Boston which sponsored the question.

Sixty thousand signatures for the question were collected last fall. When the legislature rejected the petition another 20,000 signatures were collected to place the question on the statewide ballot. If voters approve, it will become effective July 1. However, since the question is a law, not a constitutional amendment, the legislature may also amend or repeal it.

Section 1:

- Limits property taxes in a community to 2.5 percent of the fair cash value of all real and personal property in a city or town.

- Provides for 15 percent annual reduction in total tax levy of city or town until the 2.5 percent limit is reached.

- Limits annual increases in total taxes to 2.5 percent.

- Allows raising of 2.5 percent limits on total property tax levy and 2.5 percent annual increase by vote of two-thirds of those voting in local referendum.

- Allows lowering of 2.5 percent limit on total tax levy by simple majority vote in local referendum.

Section 2:

- Forbids future unfunded mandates from the state.

- Forbids expansion of property tax exemptions mandated by the state unless the state assumes the cost of such exemptions.

Section 3:

- Gives state auditor the authority to hire and fire within his department.

Section 4:

- Requires establishment of a division of local mandates to demonstrate the financial impact on cities and towns of laws, proposed or in effect, imposed by administrative agencies of the commonwealth.

Section 5:

- Gives municipalities the authority to revoke optional mandates.

Sections 6, 7, 8:

- Repeals fiscal autonomy of school committees.

Section 10:

- Repeals compulsory and binding arbitration for public employees.

Section 9:

- Reduces auto excise tax from $66 to $25 per thousand of valuation.

Section 11:

- Allows renters one-half of annual rent as a deduction on state income tax.

Section 12:

- Limits fees and assessments of costs from counties, districts or other authorities to no more than 4 percent increase a year. No fees may be charged for goods or services in excess of the cost of providing said goods or services.

Letters From Readers

Every time you read that America is to expand trade, or 'negotiate', or expand 'cultural exchanges', remember Peter Fechter. His murder is a living symbol and a grim reminder of what Communism really is. And don't let any one tell you differently.

Sign Protest

Editor's Note: The following letter was mailed to the Winchester Board of Selectmen Sept. 25

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
We would like to protest the removal of the "No Turn on Red" signs from the intersection of Main Street and the Mystic Valley Parkway.

Although we are not residents of Winchester, we do work on Winchester terrace and park our cars in the vicinity of this intersection. It has always been necessary to use the "Walk" button in order to safely cross these streets, but now it is literally "worth your life" to get across. One of us has been nearly picked off twice at 5 p.m. when trying to cross on the "Walk" light cycle.

The argument that the pedestrian on the green crosswalk has the right of way is absolutely ludicrous, given today's drivers.

Perhaps traffic lights with the red and yellow pedestrian cycle would be a better solution to allow people to cross safely. As it stands now, a pedestrian just doesn't have a chance.

Will it take a fatality or crippling accident to show you what a dangerous situation you have here? We somehow cannot believe that saving a gallon or two of gasoline is more important than a person's life.

Freedom

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

What does freedom mean to you? To some people it means everything. How many of your readers remember a boy named Peter Fechter? Who was he?

Peter Fechter was just 18 when he was shot and mortally wounded as he tried to get over the Berlin Wall to freedom. As the machine gun bullets ripped into his back, he fell back into Communist East German territory and spent three hours crying for help in agony before he died. No one on the free side could help him and no one on the slave side would.

T.S. Eliot And Winchester High

By MARY CRESSE

We are the hollow men
We are the stuffed men
Leaning together
Headpieces filled with straw.
Alas!

— T.S. Eliot, The Hollow Men

I sometimes wonder what would happen if T.S. Eliot were reincarnated and sent to Winchester High School.

I wonder if he'd be a member of the insidious "Iron Circle," also known as "Clique."

I wonder if he'd feel the need to neatly and precisely separate everyone into categories and sub-categories such as Preps, Rats, and Wimps.

I wonder if he'd risk being somewhat of an individual, someone with a unique personality, someone who accepted people for who they were, and not who they hung around with.

T.S., of course (they'd probably use that as a nickname), might think that, in a sense, a clique isn't all bad. After all, a person has the right to be with whoever he pleases, whenever he pleases. Absolutely. If a person can find a group of people to share mutual interests, opinions, ideals, and activities, then he is luckier than most people. Maybe he'd say that its only human nature for a person to react favorably to a person he likes to be around.

But then Mr. Eliot would walk around the high school, and see the groups of people congregating in their very own, neat, precise groups in the library, in the courtyard, in the caf, in the lunchroom. He'd see the subtle pettiness of power in groups and how they exclude certain people because they are not "acceptable."

Then he'd see the formation countercliques, groups formed to protect against the hurt, and just groups who didn't care what anybody else thought of them.

He'd see insecurity, and how some people are so worried about what others think of them that they immediately "join the bandwagon" and, in doing so, relinquish their individuality. T.S. would notice how easy it is to hate another person when three other people hate that person, how nice it feels to exclude somebody from something.

But that isn't all that would present itself. A good number of people would be caring, thoughtful, considerate of the feelings of others, insightful, and very kind to T.S. Eliot.

T.S. would then have two choices. He could:

a. adopt the "beat-em or join'em attitude and join people he didn't even like to hang around with, or

b. he could hang around with whoever he damned pleased and enjoy himself.

I suspect T.S. would do the latter. But having to make a choice would have made him think. Think very seriously about what motivates people to do certain things. He would see the "hollowness" in shallow thinking and how people have to "lean together" for power.

Yes, T.S. Eliot is a literary great. And I wish I knew how he felt when he was 16 years old.

Oh, if T.S. Eliot were reincarnated and sent to Winchester High School...

I bet he'd be a pretty decent guy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison D. Mackey

Ann Scanlon Weds Harrison D. Mackey

Ann Ellen Scanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Scanlon of Glengarry rd., Winchester, and Harrison Dean Mackey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison D. Mackey of Dover, New Hampshire, were married on August 3 in St. Mary's Church at a double-ring nuptial Mass. Msgr. John F. Feeney, a cousin of the bride, officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory silk with an oversleeve of silk tulle fashioned with a cap sleeve, Mandarin neckline and a re-embroidered bodice of Alencon lace. She wore a chapel-length Mantilla of silk tulle trimmed with re-embroidered lace appliques. Her bouquet was a cascade of white roses, gardenias, stephanotis blossoms and English ivy.

The Maid of Honor was Diane Gargano of Winchester.

Bridesmaids were Susan Gebhard of Georgia, formerly of Winchester. Lynda Mackey of Dover, N.H., sister of the groom, Christine Merritz of Concord, N.H., and Kathleen Kelly of Somersworth, N.H.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Winchester High School and a 1978 graduate of the University of N.H., where she has also completed her credit requirements for her masters degree. She works as a teacher of remedial reading in Rollinsford, N.H.

The groom is a graduate of the University of N.H., is employed at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple is living in Dover, N.H.

The reception following the ceremony was held at The Towne Lyne House, Lynnfield.

Best Man was Mark Wynot of Natick. Ushers were Sheldon Smally of Dover, N.H., Kevin Barton of Portsmouth, N.H., Jay Mackey of Dover, N.H., brother of the groom, and John Scanlon of Winchester, brother of the bride.

Wellesley Club Supports Scholarship Foundation

How many times does a morning filled with sociability, theatre and tasty light dining yield a record gift to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and special notice from Wellesley College?

Maggie Russell, president of the Winchester Wellesley Club recently presented the largest check ever given in a long tradition of club support for the Winchester Scholarship Foundation to Paul Amico, Chairman.

Last year's benefit, "Playing About Shakespeare", was also chosen to be showcased at the fall Alumnae Council at Wellesley as an example of creative and successful fundraising by a small club.

The Wellesley Club lists about sixty town residents who annually present their selection for the pleasure of their audience and the benefit of students from Winchester and Wellesley College.

Since a theatrical theme has been so popular, this year club members decided to specialize in songs from the American stage, which will be presented by Leslie Holmes, lyric soprano, on Oct. 23.

"Leslie Sings", a program of song, will include opera and musical comedy, both of which had their origins in the operettas produced in this country shortly after the turn of the century.

The selection of American composers will focus on the high spots in musical theatre to show some of the changes in the sound of music from the earliest days.

Benefit Chairman, Margie McIndoe, herself a music major, looks forward to hearing many familiar favorites and sharing the pleasure of song with all subscribers. Afterward, she hopes to be able to present an even larger gift to the Scholarship Foundation.

Add a rare chance to browse and buy handwoven gifts, perhaps win a door prize and chat with friends, all for a low price.

Ask your Wellesley College alumna friend or phone 729-2661 or 729-3420 and join the fun at the Parish of Epiphany Hall at 10 a.m. on Oct. 23.

The bride had Susan Landry of Pitts- burgh, Penn. as her maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Laurie Gallagher of Metuchen, New Jersey, Lynne Nelson of Beverly and Joanne Errico of Win- chester, both sisters of the groom.

Serving as best man was Jack Brennan of Lake Forest, Illinois and the

The bride is a graduate of Penn. State and holds a masters degree in Social Work from Simmons College. The groom is a 1972 graduate of Winchester High School, Hamilton College in Clinton, New York, and Boston University School of Law.

Following a trip to Bermuda, they are now living in Buffalo, New York.

Art Association First Meeting Oct. 9

The Winchester Art Association's first meeting of the season will take place Thursday, Oct. 9 in the Rich Room of the public library at 7:30 p.m.

MacLucas Ward of Lexington will demonstrate "Painting with a Knife"

Mrs. Ward is a graduate of the Massachusetts College of Art and is a former Supervisor of Art in public school systems in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

She is presently a member of the Painter's Guild of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Society, and the Cambridge and Concord Art Associations. Her work, done mostly in oils and executed with a palette knife, has been shown in galleries and museums throughout New England. In addition to winning the Gold Medal Award at the Jordan Marsh New England Contemporary Artists Show and the Best in Show Award at the Portland Maine Art Festival, MacLucas Ward has had numerous one man shows.

The meeting is open to the public for a small guest fee.

During Prohibition the first recorded liquor raid occurred on the evening of Sept. 16, 1921. Police Chief William R. McIntosh and his forces seized several bootleggers, a 30-gallon copper still, a glass carboy, three barrels of mash and 100 pounds of sugar.

Studio Guild Has Coffee To Begin Its 43rd Season

The Studio Guild began its 43rd season with an open coffee at the home of its president Roz Lynch.

New members were welcomed and introduced. Details of membership privileges and responsibilities were outlined. Members will have unlimited use of the studio at 9 Mt. Vernon street.

A critique, followed by instruction, will be given by King Coffin of the Museum School faculty every Wednesday from 9:15 to noon. Members will be included in and informed of activities, such as exhibits, demonstrations, lectures, etc.

It was decided that design, composition, and color would be the area of instruction this year, with choice of medium up to the individual member.

The first class was held Oct. 1. Members brought in their summer art work for discussion. Although the class was well attended, there was room for a few more members.

ROBERT W. McELHINNEY
CHIEF OF DEPARTMENT

TOWN OF WINCHESTER
MIDDLESEX COUNTY, MASSACHUSETTS 01890
HEADQUARTERS, FIRE DEPARTMENT
32-40 MT. VERNON STREET

SHOULD WE HAVE A SMOKE DETECTOR IN OUR HOME?

FACT: More than 6,000 people die and over 300,000 are injured each year by fire in residences. Most all fire deaths and many of the fire related injuries are caused by smoke, not flames. Over 70 percent of these deaths and injuries occur between 9 P.M. and 6:00 A.M. Most people underestimate the danger of death from night-time fires. For example: "The smell of smoke would wake me." It might if acid-smelling smoke were the only thing produced by a household fire. Unfortunately, many home fires smolder slowly for hours before they burst into open flames. While this incomplete combustion is taking place, large quantities of toxic gases including carbon monoxide are produced. Carbon monoxide is the same odorless, tasteless and colorless gas that causes death when people breathe automobile fumes in a closed garage. If you are asleep when this gas enters your room chances are you may never wake up.

"There's usually plenty of time to get out." Possibly, if you are awake and if you have time to round up the family and if none of them inhaled too much smoke or carbon monoxide before you woke up. Remember, toxic gases are present long before flames become visible.

"Fires only happen to other people." This is perhaps the most dangerous idea of all and probably just what all those "other people" thought before their fire occurred.

"How effective are Smoke Detectors?" They won't prevent fires, they won't protect your property (especially if you're not at home), and they won't put the fire out for you, but more importantly, they will increase your chances of getting up, getting out safely and calling the Fire Department.

Following are some facts you should know about SMOKE DETECTORS.

- How much do they cost?
A. You can purchase approved units from $20.00 up to $50.00 depending on the model you choose.
- Are people actually purchasing them?
A. Yes, about 9,000,000 are sold each year.
- How many SMOKE DETECTORS are needed in a home?
A. A smoke detector on each level of the home gives the highest level of protection.
- How to select a SMOKE DETECTOR?
A. The Smoke Detector you purchased should be listed or approved by a nationally recognized testing laboratory such as Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. The approval means that the detector is certified to meet basic performance standards.
- What types of SMOKE DETECTORS are available?
A. There are two basic types of SMOKE DETECTORS: Photoelectric and Ionization.
- Which are better, Photoelectric or Ionization SMOKE DETECTORS?
A. Both types are approved by nationally recognized testing laboratories and either can do a good job in your home.
- Is there any Radiation Danger from Ionization DETECTORS?
A. No.
- Where should you install your SMOKE DETECTORS?
A. One should be installed in the hallway outside each sleeping area in the house. One installed at the foot of the basement stairway, "not in the stairwell itself." In a two story home, one should be installed in the hallway near the stairway leading to the second floor. Remember, never install a SMOKE DETECTOR in the kitchen or within 6 feet of the kitchen area. All SMOKE DETECTORS should be ceiling mounted, and not less than two feet out from any wall.
- How much maintenance is required?
A. Very little; a monthly test, and a monthly cleaning with the use of a vacuum cleaner.

If you have any questions regarding the purchase or installation of SMOKE DETECTORS in your home, feel free to call your Fire Department 729-1801. We are here to serve you.

Sachemette Booters Beat The Best, Then Feel The Heat

The role of the giant killer can change very quickly. Just ask the Winchester girls' soccer team who last week played both the giant killer and the giant.

First, of course, the Sachemettes coolly dispatched the defending state champions and the widely acclaimed "Team To Beat," Concord 3-0, at Leonard Field before a huge crowd last week.

"It was an incredibly big game," said a jubilant Coach Chris Scanlon. "We were as psyched as we've ever been. We took it to them the whole game. This was the best we've ever played. We just took it to them the whole game."

Indeed the 3-0 whitewashing of Concord was an awesome accomplishment for the Sachemettes, not so much because they beat Concord, but the way they beat them.

The defense frustrated the vaunted Concord scoring attack the entire afternoon. Concord didn't even pass the midfield stripe in the first quarter as the Sachemettes simply lived in the Concord end.

Winchester outshot the visitors by a healthy 20-5 margin.

"Our defense really deserves a lot of credit," Scanlon said. "They just didn't let the ball through. Concord is the type of team that will take advantage of any mistakes. But we just didn't make any mistakes that would hurt us. We have just never played this well."

Naturally, Ann Porell opened the scoring, taking a pass at the top of the crease and slipping a low shot past the heralded Concord goaltender, Ann Bitenwilcher.

"Our strategy was to keep the ball low," Scanlon admitted afterwards.

"She's just immense. She's at least 5-10 and weighs about 165, 175 pounds. She made some incredible stops."

But not enough. Andrea deMars extended the lead to 2-0 after Bitenwilcher deflected a Laura Schromm centering pass right to deMars who booted it home.

Kim Donlon closed out the scoring in the fourth frame, after deMars pulled biggest crowd I've ever seen for a girls soccer game."

If the Sachemettes were understandably on Cloud Nine after the Concord win, they were quickly brought back to earth Friday as Belmont "beat" Winchester, 1-1.

"For Belmont it was something," Scanlon explained. "They were all real tough. We may have let down a little but we played well. Belmont was just really up for us."

The tie dropped the Sachemette record to 3-0-1 going into yesterday's Middlesex League showdown against Lexington.

As expected, the locals had trouble with the small Belmont field

"They have a very small field that's confining," Scanlon said, repeating his fears heading into the Belmont tilt. "They could keep their defense up and it really frustrated our offense. We were offside 11 times."

Like Concord, Belmont also sports a superb goaltender who robbed Porell with a save that had Scanlon shaking his head in total disbelief.

The goalie took a high shot headed for the top corner and simply gave it the Kareem Jabbar treatment, catching the ball with one hand. "I don't know if she uses stick 'em or not," Scanlon joked.

But Porell did manage to put one up on the board when she took a nice pass from Donlon and deposited into the open net, a lead which held up until the fourth quarter.

Be prepared to set aside a few hours when both these games are replayed. Winchester travels to Concord on Oct. 11 and Belmont comes to the larger Leonard Field Oct. 22. Be there.

'Our defense really deserves a lot of credit. They just didn't let the ball through. Concord is the type of team that will take advantage of any mistakes. But we just didn't make any mistakes that would hurt us. We have just never played this well.'

—Winchester Coach
Chris Scanlon

Bitenwilcher to one side of the net, leaving Donlon all alone out front for the conversion.

Scanlon was appreciative of the large crowd that turned out for the battle of the titans.

"It was an amazing crowd. There were at least 300 people there. It was the jumping around afterwards. But for us, it was not too happy. They scored 1, the last seven minutes to tie us."

But Scanlon had no alibis. He doesn't think the squad had a significant let down from the big Wednesday triumph.

"I think our team played pretty well," Scanlon insisted. "Belmont played us

Sure, Gary Errico gained his apparently automatic 200 yards and scored his obligatory couple of touchdowns.

And, yes, the offensive line, a question mark before the season began, took another alleged defensive front and trampled them heartily under foot.

And junior quarterback Rich Fennell began to display the ability that allowed Errico to move to halfback as he scored a touchdown and had a number of key completions.

But, more than anything else, last Saturday's 21-6 come from behind thumping of Stoneham was a product of the defense.

The Spartans accumulated a whopping three first downs, two of them coming during a meaningless final drive. Stoneham quarterback Tony Maffeo had a disastrous afternoon, completing just 2 of 7 passes for a grand total of two (2) yards.

Coach Manny Marshall and the sizeable crowd at the recently renovated Knowlton Stadium were impressed.

"Our pursuit was good," Marshall explained. "There were four or five guys over there on every tackle. But it was real nice to see how the guys reacted to being behind. They came right back."

After stuffing Stoneham the first time they held the ball, Spartan punter Bob Romboli rolled one to the one-yard-line. That's when Errico and the offensive line went to work.

Errico (31 carries, 210 yards) rambled for eight yards through right tackle and two more yards two plays later for a big first down. Then he and senior Jim Gibbons (five carries, 53 yards) took turns as they ran for five consecutive first downs.

Errico ran it in from the Stoneham nine and it looked like the Sachems were off and running. But a clipping call brought it back to the 24-yard-line and 30-yard field goal attempt by Bruce Campbell fell short.

Two plays later Stoneham was in the Winchester endzone as the defense had their first and only lapse of the crisp fall afternoon.

First Romboli rambled for 35 yards off left tackle to the Winchester 45-yard-line. Stoneham's Dave Cavanaugh scooted for the final 45 yards on the very next play and the Sachems were suddenly down six (the point after was missed).

The offense had trouble again the next series when Errico and Fennell couldn't get together on a handoff and Stoneham took over on their own 42-yard-line. On the play before the fumble linemen Ken Vancini limped off the field with a twisted ankle and didn't return.

That's when the Sachems sucked down some Gatorade, stopped eyeing the cheerleaders and simply took control of the game.

Stoneham gained four yards on the next series and punted. It took Winchester six plays to drive 41 yards with Fennell gobbling up the final eight for the touchdown. Campbell booted the extra point through and it was, for all practical purposes, over.

The Spartans gained another yard on their next possession and Winchester, with the aid of some extremely questionable judgment by an official, took over at the Stoneham 49.

The sure signal that it would be Winchester's day came when Romboli attempted to boot it out from inside his own five-yard-line. Dave Criscione crashed through the right on top of Romboli. But with increasing disbelief, Stoneham Coach Paul White watched, and sure enough, the flag never came out.

"It was a flagrant block," White moaned after the game.

Marshall explained afterwards that the official's rational behind the non-call was that the snap had forced Romboli back a number of steps, taking off the roughing the kicker possibility even though the ball never touched the ground.

Whatever, Errico made quick work of the Spartans on the subsequent drive, roaring 38 yards on the second play to the 11-yard-line. On a fourth and one from the two Errico ran it in. Campbell's point after was good and the Sachems had a eight-point bulge with 3:28 left in the half.

Senior center Rich Beal admits the offensive line has played well but he doesn't find it all that surprising.

"We've really come along in working as a unit," the 6-foot, 185 pounder, said. "Everything is falling together real well but we've been with each other for awhile now. Some of us have been together since we were freshmen."

And along with Vancini, Eric McNeely, Jay Gill and Mike Blackwood the ground game has really prospered. The Sachems have ground out more than 600 yards in the first two contests.

The second half was partly time for the defense as the Sachem offense bogged down. The Spartans had good field position at their own 44 midway through the third quarter but Dave Lawton routinely intercepted a Maffeo pass at the Winchester 37.

The offense awoke on the Lawton theft and despite a clipping call, pushed it across in 10 plays to ice the contest.

The key play was a fourth and 15 from the Stoneham 25 when Fennell rifled a pass to Ken Jacobsen over the middle for the first down at the 10.

Errico ran the final 10 yards on the next play and it was cigar time.

"We played pretty well," a satisfied Marshall said after the triumph. "Our backs blocked real well. We made some mistakes but overall we played well."

Soccer The Next Sport Of The Decade? It Could Be

No one was more skeptical than myself when in the early 70's television moguls proclaimed that soccer would be the Sport of the Decade. Soccer? Paleeze.

Hockey had Orr and the Esposito brothers. It was going to be Sport of the Decade.

With its speed and back and forth action and in-yo'-face-slam-jams basketball too, was going to climb the mountain in the 70's.

In football, of course, the Kansas City Chiefs had the Offense of the Decade to lead the Football Decade. The Boston Patriots became the New England Patriots and built a 61,000 seat stadium.

Baseball was still reeling from those Amazin' Mets and was about to be dazzled by the orange baseballs, handlebar mustaches and other eccentricities of the Oakland A's.

So where, in all this, did those of the Brent Musberger ilk get off telling us soccer would be America's Sport in the 70's. Here we are in 1980 and aside from New York and some southern teams, professional soccer has been met with a big fat yawn.

Pele or no Pele, it has never sold in much of the country and TV has quietly prepared other exciting sports for the American public like Battle of the Superstars where John Havlicek proves he can ride a bike and bowlers prove they can throw overhand.

But soccer has never "made it" here in Massachusetts, with the exception of a few apparently transplanted European communities like Needham. At least I thought so. Or maybe hoped so.

However, I have gradually discovered that TV may have jumped off the bandwagon a little early. In Winchester, anyway, soccer has truly been the Sport of the Decade.

The Winchester Soccer Club began in 1968 with a handful of youngsters. By 1973 400 boys and 40 girls were participating in the fall program. By 1977 625 boys put on the striped shirts and 500 girls followed suit (including high school girls).

This year there are 1,150 kids, grades 1-8 playing soccer in Winchester.

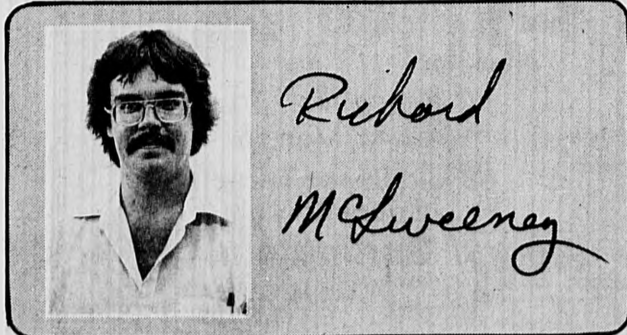

Winchester Soccer Club President Bill Donnellan says

The vacation is over for the Lexington and Winchester football teams. This Saturday they square off against each other. See story on Page 16.

The Cross Country teams breezed to victories over Belmont as the underclassmen strutted their stuff. Read about the girls on Page 15 and the boys on Page 16.

Golfers Drop Fifth; Kelly Injured

Sachem Golf Coach Joe Aversa explained the long and frustrating 1980 season this way: "We're building character this year."

Against Belmont Monday everything bottomed out as the Marauders walloped the locals (9-5) at the Winchester Country Club, limiting the Sachems to just a half point.

Winchester's number one player Paul Kelly missed this affair and will most likely miss the rest of the season with a wrist injury, Aversa said.

Add to that the fact that the team's number four player, Keith McCarthy also missed the match and it's easier to understand the Belmont debacle.

"With Kelly out it's going to hurt us," Aversa said hardly surprisingly. "Now I hope we can get our number four (McCarthy) back but it's going to be tough now."

The Paul Bacci-Bill Eaton tandem were the only Sachems to hit the scoring column, racking up a half point as a team even, though both lost individually.

The Sachems had a little better outing against Lexington last week but again came up short, this time by a 6-3 margin.

Chris D'Errico and Paul Bacci combined for 1.5 points as did Jay Berardi and Bill Eaton but it was not enough as the Sachems record dropped to 0-4.

The alternates (whose results don't affect the final score) had a pretty good performance, gaining a half point. John Kacoyanis and Mark Kennedy played in the seven and eight slots and grabbed the half point with Kacoyanis' split.

With Kelly out for probably the rest of the year, the outcome of the final four contests don't bode too well for the Sachems. Unless, that is, the boys are looking to merely "build character."

Soccer Cosmos Win Third Straight Game

The Winchester Cosmos won their third consecutive game, shutting out previously undefeated Medford team, 5-0, in Northern Middlesex Soccer League action.

Ricky Suvak led the attack with two goals. Robert Anderson added another pair of goals and Peter DeVecchio scored the fifth goal off the fast break.

The defense, Matt Williams, Matt Layden, Jay Rice, David Swanson and goalie David Kottman all played superbly. In the three games played they've allowed only one goal to be scored against them and that goal was on a penalty shot.

The offense has also done well with 19 goals in the three games, making the hard defensive chores a little easier.

The Cosmos are gliding through this league and should have a good shot at the state championship in the spring.

This Week's Sports

FOOTBALL — The Gridders travel to Lexington for a 1:30 battle.

BOYS' SOCCER — The booters journey to Woburn tomorrow (3:30) and return home against Watertown Tuesday afternoon as the second half of the schedule begins.

GIRLS' SOCCER — The Sachemettes hit the road, stopping off at Wakefield tomorrow and Burlington Wednesday.

SWIMMING — The swimmers go after their fifth straight win this afternoon at Belmont (3:30). They host Lexington Saturday at the Northeast Regional Voke pool starting at 5 p.m.

GOLF — The golfers go for win number one against Wakefield this afternoon at 3:15 (in Wakefield) and on Monday at Stoneham.

FIELD HOCKEY — The Field Hockey team kicks off the second half of the season at Watertown tomorrow (3:30). They return for a home match against Melrose on Monday before traveling to Reading on Wednesday.

CROSS COUNTRY — The runners try to continue their winning ways with a home meet tomorrow against Melrose and a road contest Tuesday versus Watertown.

It's No Contest: Swimmers Sink Arlington, Malden To Stay Unbeaten

By MARY CRESSE

They're at it again.

By soundly defeating Malden 114-56, and Arlington, 45-30, it is very evident that the Winchester girls' swim team is once again assaulting the waves and bringing home the victories. The twin killings put the Sachemettes record at 4-0.

The Arlington triumph was not as close as the score indicated since there was no diving competition held because Arlington didn't field a diving squad.

Alison Sughrue, Martha Coakley, Beth Melilli and Anne Donahue got the Sachemettes off and running with a 2:18 victory in the medley relay.

Carol Schneller (50 freestyle), Sheryl Powers (500 freestyle), Ann McCann (100 breaststroke) and the 400 freestyle relay team of Schneller, P.K. Porter, Powers and Lynn VanUmmersen all swept to first place finishes.

Melilli also grabbed second place behind McCann in the 100 breaststroke as the girls were never seriously threatened.

Another reason the score was even as close as it was due to the efforts of Arlington's Tulumieri sisters, Joanne and Luanne.

Joanne took first in the 200 freestyle and second in the 500 free while her sister captured first place in the 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly.

The Sachemettes arrived at the Malden YMCA last Tuesday ready for a victory. The new pool was somewhat of an advantage, but there was one factor that hampered some of the performances: the structure of the pool was very smooth; so smooth, in fact, that one had trouble differentiating the bottom of the pool from the side of the pool.

Since a swimmer's ability to judge the distance to the side is important to make accurate flip turns, this was a definite disadvantage. But, as the performances proved, it didn't bother Winchester nearly as much as Malden.

The team of Sughrue, McCann, Liz Porras, and Carla Gulino handily took the medley relay, followed by Donahue, Melilli, Jennifer Parker, and Tracey Caulfield.

It seems as though WHS is sticking to their 1-2-3 sweep pattern. In the 200 free, it was Powers who sprinted in with a 2:11 to capture the race, followed by Van Ummersen and Susan Spiller.

In the 200 individual medley, Parker and the Malden swimmer battled stroke for stroke through two laps each of back, breast, butterfly, and free, but Parker was out-touched. Winchester took second and third as Cheryl Fazio followed Parker.

Once again, Malden was rendered helpless, this time in the 50 free, where Carol Schneller, a "regular" in this event, tri-captain Porter, and Porras took a 1-2-3 sweep. Going into the diving, it was 48-15 in favor of WHS.

Though Malden had trouble with swimming, it must be stated that they are clearly untouchable in diving, as they boast two state springboard champs. But tri-captain Gulino held on for a third place showing. Among her better dives were the reverse and back pike. Junior Mimi McNamara whose best dive was a front inward, came in fifth to add to Gulino's scores and keep Winchester ahead.

For the 100 fly event, this time Winchester was untouchable, as Porras and Powers coasted in with a perfect 1-2. Porras, by the way, pulled in a 1:08.97, her personal best time (PBT) in this event.

Coakley swam a PBT of her own in the 100 free. This was clearly Coakley's best performance this year, as she came back from third place to take the race. At this point in the meet, WHS remained ahead, 65-44.

It seems as though anyone who swims that 500 free has a gourmet taste for self-inflicted pain. First place was stolen away from Caulfield, who turned in a good second place effort. Maureen Herlihy, who has improved this year, and senior Heidi Lane came in fourth.

The Donaghey sisters, now a regular pair in the 100 backstroke, and Sughrue pulled another 1-2-3 sweep and placed Malden in a state of no return.

Winchester now extended their lead to 87-53, and McCann, Melilli, and Kim Bellino didn't help Malden any when they also pulled a 1-2-3 finish.

Frosh Glynn Does It Again; Sachemette Runners Breeze

By Bill Baron

Sometimes you watch a sporting event and see some very astonishing and totally unpredictable happenings. You witness occurrences that you never dreamt could possibly come to pass.

Friday was not one of those days; not if you were watching the girls cross country meet between Belmont and Winchester.

Freshman Laurie Glynn crossed the finish line far ahead of all the other runners to lead Winchester's girls to a victory in its first home meet of the 1980 season. The entire team performed well that afternoon, as they crushed Belmont 15 to 48. Fifteen is a perfect cross country score.

The girls set off on this season's new course, which took them through the residential section of southeast Winchester.

As usual, Laurie Glynn sprinted to an early commanding lead which she never gave up. The pack was lead mostly by Sachem runners as Winchester greatly outnumbered the Belmont team.

At the halfway point, Laurie Glynn was all alone as she climbed Highland Avenue and headed for Pierrepont Road. Mary Boland, Lauren Fryklund and Eileen Conley were next to climb the hill, but they were still far behind the leader.

Glynn flew down Leslie Road towards the finish line running just short of full speed. She finished with a time of 17:48, more than two minutes ahead of her second place teammate Mary Boland.

Mary ran a superb race, despite having missed last week's season opener in Lexington and while trying to disregard painful tendonitis aches. She finished just three seconds ahead of Conley, who was then followed closely by Fryklund.

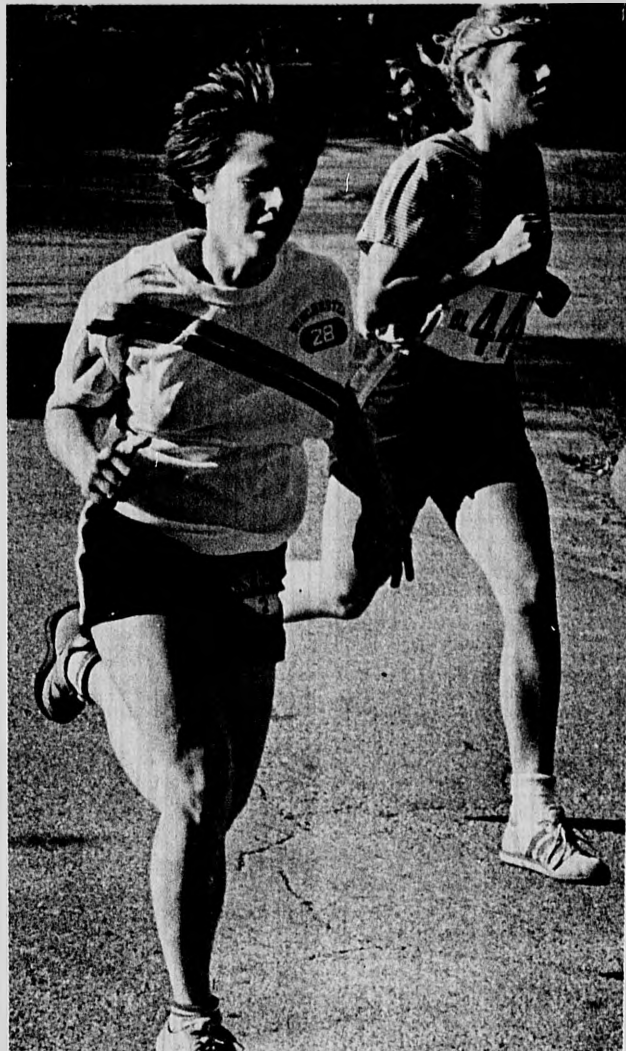

A minute later, Pam Brickley approached the finish while battling for fifth place with Belmont's best runner. Pam pulled ahead to take the fifth spot with a time of 21:02, and Winchester had completed the sweep.

The meet was run on Winchester's new course, in which only paved streets are used, rather than the dirt trails used last year.

"I liked the new course," related a smiling Laurie Glynn afterward, somehow forgetting that she was supposed to be quite tired after her ine performance. "It was a rather fast course compared to the one the team used last year."

Winchester coach Joe Cantillon agreed. "The times were shorter by almost a minute over last year's times," he said after the meet. He went on to say that the only real problem with the new course is that the runners had to watch for cars coming from side streets, particularly onto Main Street.

Some runners mentioned that other girls found some problem with dogs while running the course. However, no one said how much faster these girls ran while being chased by dogs.

But no matter what course they run on, the Sachemettes cross country team can be counted on to do well.

"The girls team is very strong this year," said assistant coach Lorin Maloney. "That's not to say that they won't have any tough meets, but they should do very well."

Kennedy Paces Runners

By BILL BARON

As Winchester High School's junior Pat Kennedy ran up Leslie Road towards the finish of the Sachems new cross country course ahead of an onrushing Belmont opponent, visions of a first victory entered the minds of local spectators.

The race began on Myrtle Street, with a verbal start by Winchester's Coach Joe Cantillon. Pat Kennedy got off to an early lead and by the halfway point had put so much road between him and his nearest opponent that the Belmont runner was unable to catch up. Kennedy finished first leading the Sachems cross country team to the season's first victory.

Kennedy finished with a time of 16:13 and this being the first meet ever run on this course, his time stands as the course record.

Pat was followed by Belmont's best runner, who was followed by a battle for third position between another Belmont racer and Winchester's Joe Callahan, another junior.

"The Dude" as his teammates call him, came up with an explosion of energy just short of the finish line, capturing third place in the time of 17:07.

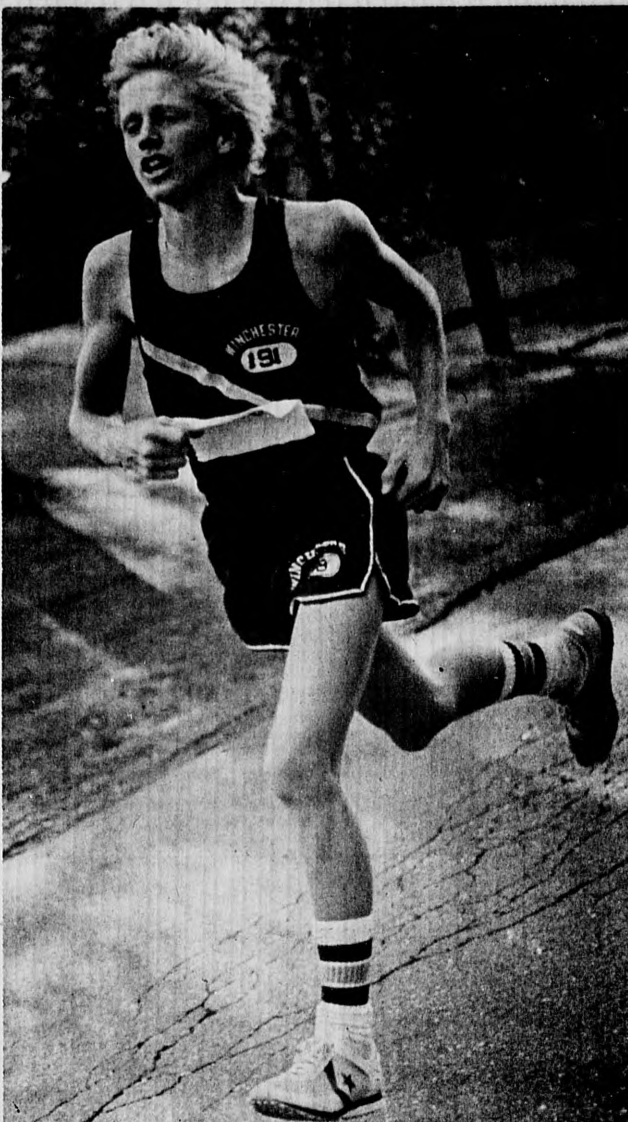

Close behind, taking fifth and sixth places, were sophomores Peter Quine and Hugh Murray to just about wrap up the win. John Provenzano was the first Sachem senior to cross the finish line. He took the eighth spot and was clocked at 17:31.

Mark Schwartzman finished close behind to further displace the Belmont runners. With the lowest score winning, the final was Winchester 23, Belmont 34.

This meet was special because the course on which the race was run was chosen just a few days prior to the meet. The entire course is paved; the only problem for runners is the traffic encountered when running through the streets of town. "The traffic shouldn't be too much of a problem," said Cantillon as the runners climbed Highland Avenue. "As long as they stay to the right and don't do anything stupid, they should be alright."

John Wiseman missed Friday's meet with the same illness that forced him to drop out of the season opener last week in Lexington.

"John was the only varsity boy who didn't run," said Cantillon. "But the team has had many nagging injuries." Pat Kennedy said of the race afterwards. "The meet really took a lot out of me. I was never pushed, but it made for a very tough workout."

For the boys, this was the first win of the young season, but everyone seemed to feel that it was the first of many.

"The varsity will have many tough meets this year," said Coach Lorin Maloney. "But they'll get their share of wins, I'm sure."

Field Hockey Drops Pair

Just when the Winchester Field Hockey team had started to get its offense in gear the defense played its two weakest games of the season.

Stoneham rebuffed the locals 4-1 Monday and unbeaten Wakefield trounced the Sachettes 4-0 last Friday as the girls record dropped to 2-6.

"We had a very bad game," Coach Pat Ryser said of the effort against Stoneham. "I would say it was the worst game we've played this year."

Stoneham jumped out front 1-0 early in the first half but Winchester's Martha

Lexington Versus Winchester: A 'Big Game' For The Gridders

For the Winchester and Lexington football teams, the 1980 season has more closely resembled a Battle of the Bands featuring The Beatles taking on local challengers.

No contest. The Sachems have breezed past Somerville and Stoneham as the offense has topped the 300 yard mark on both occasions without much exertion. The defense, meanwhile, has surrendered just 13 points.

But if Winchester has been impressive, Lexington appears to have drawn plays from the Russian playbook used in the 1968 Soviet-Czechoslovakia encounter.

No prisoners. No mercy. No contest. The Minutemen have rolled up 66 points in wins over Concord (31-7) and Wakefield (35-18). Against Wakefield Lexington rolled up a 35-0 halftime bulge. Five possessions for the Minutemen. Five touchdowns. The starters went out for a pizza in the second half and watched the second stringers mop up.

It was that easy. Coach Bill Tighe complained that his starters couldn't get enough work in the first two contests. "The first team played just 12 minutes. The first five times we had the ball we scored. I had to take them out."

But this week will be different when Winchester travels to Lexington for a 1:30 match up that Tighe says "will have a great bearing on the final standings. I think one of us, no, I think both of us will be there at the end."

It's no longer Muhammad Ali versus Willie Pep. No longer the Boston Pops note for note against the McCall Junior High String Quartet.

It's the Big Guy against the Big Guy. A 15 rounder that should go the full 15 rounds. It should be a good one.

"We're going to find out how good both teams really are," Tighe said. "It's going to be a great test for my line this week. Winchester is a fine football team and this will be a fine game. It's going to be a test of what's up front that counts. I just wish I could watch it on TV," he laughed.

Keying Lexington's thus far awesome running attack has been halfback Barry Neal, who Tighe says is very similar to Winchester's Gary Errico in appearance and running ability. Neal scored four of the Minutemen's five TD's against Wakefield on runs of 40, 35, two and 15 yards.

More than ably assisting him in the backfield is 205 pound fullback Bill Mueller and halfback John Skerry. Brian Adley will be calling the signals.

Up front, the offensive line is just frightening. Anchoring down the tackle positions are Justin Beckett, a 6-3, 260 pounder that Tighe says the college scouts are absolutely drooling over. Joining him is Tom Fernandes, a slim 6-2, 235 pounder.

Playing end on both defense and offense is 6-1, 215 pound John Coughlin.

Keying the defensive charge is nose guard Craig Caster (6-2, 245 pounds).

The Minutemen are big.

'We're going to find out how good both teams really are. I just wish I could watch it on TV.'

—Lexington Coach Bill Tighe

"It's going to be tough," Marshall said. "They're going to be bigger than us." Indeed.

Neither coach would be pinned down to admitting that they may employ the pass more this week in case the defenses key on the exhausting running attacks of both clubs.

"We're going to have to see how it goes," Tighe said. "Everyone knows my philosophy. I've wanted to pass more. But I just haven't had to and for me that's unusual."

Marshall concurred with that. "I can't go by what he's done in two games but what he's done in the past. He'll do anything."

But Tighe said his defense would definitely be paying a little more attention than usual to Mr. Errico.

"Sure, we're going to have to do a little keying on him," Tighe said of Errico. "Someone else is going to have to prove that they can do it. But, I tell you, I was hoping he's stay at quarterback. Jeez, I hate to see him at halfback."

Marshall insisted it doesn't matter what the opposition does. "We have plays where we use Gary as a decoy. But you can rest assured that Gary's still going to carry the ball a lot."

The Sachems may also find the going a little rough once they get past the line because the Minutemen boast of one of the finer safety's in the state.

Senior Cecil Cox, playing his first full season, has been devastating at the free safety spot, Tighe said. "He's one of the finest players I've ever had here," he said of the speedy Melco student. "He's just a natural athlete."

Winchester freshman coach John Pirani, who scouted the Minutemen last week against Wakefield returned with the news that Cox has simply incredible mobility from sideline to sideline.

So for this Saturday anyway, leave the book at home. It's the Big Guy versus the Big Guy.

the growth of the sport has been simply remarkable. "In the past two or three years the population of that age group (grades 1-8) has dropped but the registration has remained the same."

In fact, now it has caught on with the adults. An informal Sunday morning pick up game for any adult that wants to play has now grown to the point where two fields are needed.

The New England Teammen may fill about one-sixtieth of Schaefer Stadium but people are playing the sport.

Its attractiveness to the kids is simple, Donnellan says. They can play. Everyone can play.

"Everyone who registers (in Winchester) will play. Everyone has to play at least half the game. And all sizes can play, that's one appeal. Plus, girls can play. They can't play football," Donnellan said.

Interestingly, Donnellan said, for the most part, if a kid doesn't master the skills needed to play soccer by the time he's 16, then he probably never will.

"An American kid, if you throw the ball to him, he'll catch it. A European kid, you throw the ball to him, and he tries to control it. If a kid doesn't have the skills by the time he's 16 then he won't develop them," Donnellan said.

And at the high school level, soccer has really caught on because of the youth programs. Two of the more successful sports, year in and year out, is, of course, boys' soccer and girls' soccer.

Just ask Field Hockey Coach Pat Ryser, who had to drop her freshman team this year because just seven girls went out for the team. Thirty-three went out for soccer.

Ryser admits the town soccer program is the primary reason for the sport's popularity. "By the time they get to high school they all go out for soccer. Hopefully, with so many going out for soccer some will turn away because they can't play. But then, what do I get? We're losing a lot to soccer."

And, sorry to say, Pat, there's doesn't appear to be any end in sight. I figured once professional soccer bombed on TV we could return to "American" things like watching Boston College go to a bowl and the Red Sox artfully develop a pitching staff.

Wrong.

Sachem Booters Drop 2-1 Decision To Wakefield; Hold Off Melrose, 4-2

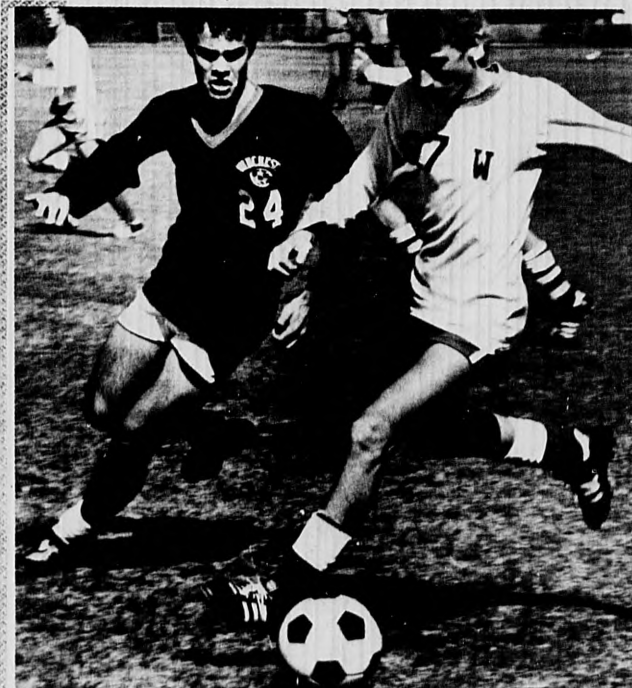

By JULIE DERRY

Sometimes it doesn't seem quite right. You play a great game and you lose. You play a poor game and you win. Perhaps Gene Bouley's Sachem booters simply play better under pressure.

The Sachems battled against Melrose Tuesday afternoon and although they played mediocre soccer they won 4-2.

Last Saturday they lost to Wakefield 2-1 even though they played excellent soccer.

"We played a good game Saturday — some of the best soccer I've seen my team play. It was our chance to beat Wakefield — two of their top linemen were missing," Bouley said.

Pursuit

Jim Fallon pursues Wakefield player during action last Saturday at the high school field. The Sachems dropped a tough 2-1 decision.

But it was not to be even though the game was a close one. Both the Sachem offense and defense played aggressively. The one Sachem goal was scored by, who else, Paul Williamson, the team's top scorer.

The pressure on defense was felt throughout the game but, still, the Sachems managed to prevent Wakefield from scoring any goals until the fourth quarter.

"We made some bad mistakes on defense and they (Wakefield) capitalized," Bouley said.

On one intense play in the fourth quarter, James Kirpatrick was knocked down in front of the goal and a Wakefield player fighting for the ball jumped into the air and came down on Kirpatrick's knee, badly bruising it. A penalty kick was awarded to Winchester.

Bouley said Kirpatrick's injury would keep him out of two games.

Although the Sachems defeated Melrose, the aggressiveness seen in the Wakefield game wasn't there. Though Melrose should have been fairly easy pickings, the two teams walked off at the half tied 2-2.

Williamson got the Sachems off and running in the first quarter followed by another goal by Neil Frink. Williamson put Winchester on top for good in the third quarter with another score.

The final quarter saw both teams play sloppily, as hands were called twice and holding once against Melrose. The first hands call was in front of the Melrose net, giving Winchester a direct shot.

David Suvak took the shot and scored the final goal for Winchester.

The Sachems will have to regain some of their aggressive spirit if they hope to come away winners in their next two contests against Woburn (tomorrow) and Watertown (Tuesday).

Selectmen's Notes

Rents for residents living in three buildings owned by the town were hiked between $84 and $161 by a vote of the Selectmen this week.

The rent for tenants living at 22 Highland Ave. was increased from $310 a month to $450 a month, effective Jan. 1, 1981.

Among the repairs needed at that structure are a new roof (estimated $2,500), chimney capping and repointing ($3,000), wood shingle repair ($500), conduction pipe ($200) and miscellaneous inside repairs ($500).

Before any improvements are begun an analysis of whether the town's public works department can do the work will be studied.

The rent for a home at 14 Reservoir St. was increased from $139 to $300 per month, also effective Jan. 1, 1981.

Repairs needed at that house came to an estimated cost of $5,800 and included a new roof, and outside paint job, chimney repointing and unspecified interior repairs.

Occupants at the third building at 10 Alben St. had their rental charge increased from $266 to $350 per month, that also effective Jan. 1, 1981.

Repairs at that home included an outside paint job, clapboard and front porch repair and unspecified interior repairs, totalling an estimated $3,200.

Selectman Chairman Wade Welch expressed disappointment that the work needed at the buildings was not done during the summer when the Public Works Department had a "raft" of extra personnel for the summer.

He added that he didn't want to see any work done by private contractors until it was proven that the town workers couldn't do the work themselves.

The board had contemplated increasing the rents through a two and three month phase-in period. But Selectman Michael Saraco expressed concern of giving the tenants just one month notice of a rental hike so the board decided to do it all at once starting Jan. 1.

None of the tenants at the three houses could be reached for comment on the hikes.

Commuter Rail Discounts Offered

Significantly reduced fares for families traveling together on MBTA commuter rail during weekends, holidays and off-peak hours will be available beginning October 1, Interim MBTA Chairman Barry M. Locke announced recently.

Under the plan, a family group or any group of up to five people, consisting of one or two adults and children aged 18 and under, will be able to purchase five round-trip tickets for the price of two adult round-trip fares, meaning that children will ride free.

If one adult has a commuter rail monthly pass, a family of five can travel for the price of one adult round-trip fare. If two adults have monthly passes, the entire family rides free of charge.

The Family Plan is expected to increase ridership at times when trains are not usually filled to capacity.

Information on the Family Plan and train schedules can be obtained by calling toll free, 1-800-882-1220.

"I am encouraging everyone to take advantage of our reduced-rate Family Plan and utilize our improved commuter rail system for family outings", said Locke.

Police Look Into Breaks At Three Area Residences

Winchester Police are looking into three incidents of breaking and entering at area residences.

The George DeLeo residence at 12 Albamont Road was the scene of one of the breaks in which jewelry and silverware was taken. The incident is believed to have occurred between 5 p.m. Saturday and 10:57 a.m. Sunday. Entry into the house was gained when glass was broken in the rear door.

Mary Anne Fenderson of 336 Cambridge Street also reported a breaking and entering incident at her home.

Taken was a portable color television and electronics equipment. The incident is believed to have occurred sometime between last Tuesday and 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The third incident of breaking and entering was reported by Anthony Paone of 141 Sylvester Avenue. The incident is believed to have occurred between 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

In other action, police are investigating the theft of an AM-FM stereo system and speakers from a car belonging to Joseph Campodaro. Tools were also taken in that incident.

Virginia Seckler reported four hub caps stolen from her vehicle Monday while Bradford LeFavour reported the theft of his 1972 Vega from his Chesterford Street residence Monday.

Scott Boodakian of 14 Lockman Street reported the theft of a four-barrel carburetor last Thursday while Phyllis Russo of 17 Myrtle Street reported the theft of her 1979 Monte Carlo.

Rec. Department Offers Dancing Programs In Oct.

If you like to stay active, have fun and enjoy an evening of socialization, why don't you enroll in one of Winchester Recreation Department's programs for adults?

Starting Monday evening, Oct. 6 you can be part of that fun by joining Ballroom Dance and learning such steps as the Fox Trot, Cha Cha, Tango and Hustle (just to name a few); or, starting Wednesday evening, Oct. 8 you may like to "step out" for a little foreign flair of folk dancing, featuring many international dances. Lastly, for the person who is in shape and likes to dance to the tune of lively, exciting music while enjoying the benefits of toning the fun way, dancercise is just for you.

Set aside for yourself Tuesday and Thursday evenings and join in with the thousands of individuals across the country who have united and benefitted from one of the most popular exercise crazes of our time.

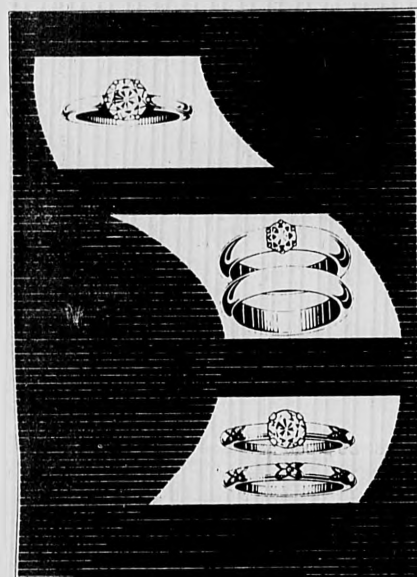

Registrations are still being accepted Monday through Friday.

Ballroom Dance will run for eight weeks with two classes — 7 to 8 p.m. and 8 to 9 p.m. Fee is $12 per person (individuals — couples welcomed).

Folk Dance will also run for eight weeks with one class per evening from 8 to 10 p.m. Fee is $12 per person (individuals — couples welcomed).

Dancercise will meet two evenings per week. Class meets at 7 to 8 or 8 to 9 p.m. You may join either time slot. Registration fee is $25 per person.

The above 3 programs will have a winter session starting in January.

Pet Deli Having Scooper Sale

Now that the "Pooper Scooper" laws are a reality, the people at The Pet Deli, Inc., can help dog owners beat those doggy-do blues. Through Oct. 15, the Pet Deli — which is located at 20 Mass. Avenue, Lexington, on the Arlington line — will be selling a variety of scoopers at 10 percent off regular prices.

Co-owner Mary Martha Beaton says, "Aside from free samples and advice on pet problems, we offer terrific dog foods which produce 15-50 percent less stool than the expanded commercial brands. These foods are more efficient, palatable and, ironically, less expensive per serving than grocery store dog foods." High-efficiency, low-bulk foods carried by the Pet Deli include Eukanuba, A.N.F., Science Diet, Iams, Bench & Field, Wayne, Keni Biskit and Old Mother Hubbard. These products are all sold with a money-back guarantee.

Ms. Beaton and her partner, Lee Wherry Brainerd, have just celebrated the first year of their unique store's existence. "Our customers are splendid and very loyal," says Ms. Brainerd,

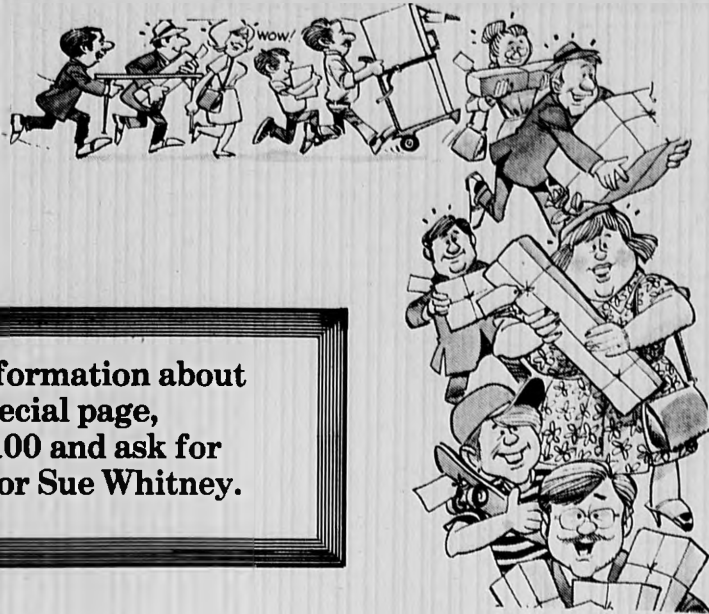

"they seem to appreciate the extra time and service we feel we are in business to give."

The Pet Deli does not sell animals, but once you've found your pet, the store can supply you with foods, vitamins, remedies, toys, beddings, cages, feeders, coats, collars and all manner of accessories. Both canned and dry cat and dog foods are sold in quantity, as well as prescription foods.

Small animals and birds are not overlooked at the Pet Deli. "Those people who love to attract colorful wild birds to their backyards should know we sell thistle, sunflower seed and wild bird seed mixes, too," explains Lisa Hull, a new employee who is also a professional photographer.

The shop is open Monday through Thursday, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday, Noon to 8 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For more information about this special page, call 729-8100 and ask for Patty Duke or Sue Whitney.

Window Quilt stops the great heat escape!

New kind of thermal shade cuts window heat loss to 79%

This multi-layered thermal shade eliminates up to 79% of winter heat loss through single-glazed windows, as much as 66% through double-paned glass. They're four times more effective than storm windows.

Window Quilts fit tightly on all four sides, sealing warm air in and cold air out. They're easy to install, easy to live with, far more efficient than ordinary shades or insulated drapes.

*Fit almost any size window, even 8' wide sliders.

*More than twice as effective as storms, better than 4 glazings (R value: 4.25).

*In snow country, with double glazing one sq. ft. saves 1 gal. oil per year. Payback is 2-5 years.

*Helps keep summer heat out — saves on air conditioning.

*Now available in 4 decorator colors: bone white, cloud white, navy and camel.

WISBA Slates Reception

Next Thursday evening, Oct. 9, the Knights of Columbus Hall will be the site of a champagne reception fund raiser for the benefit of the Winchester High School Band.

According to Miriam Reid, Co-Chairperson of this WISBA event, "This reception will be the culmination of the efforts and support of hundreds of people from our community to raise money to buy new uniforms for the Band."

The new uniforms are needed because of the increase in the number of band members in the new four-year high school this year.

More than 50 WISBA committee members are selling tickets and soliciting for Patrons and Sponsors for this event.

New members of this committee are Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Beal, Margaret Brown, Jane Coates, Regina Canella, Maria Coppi, Jean DiVencenzo, Nora Fitzgerald, Joan Gariasi, Virginia Laas, Roberta Levinson, Pauline McGulgan, Inga Mulvaney, Patricia Murray, Janice Montlieth, and Mary Richmond.

Reporting at a WISBA committee meeting Sunday, Mrs. Reid noted that ticket sales are very encouraging. "This reception will demonstrate the pride and town spirit that we know exists in Winchester. So many people who recognize the importance of this effort have been calling for tickets, that it looks like the K. of C. Hall will be the meeting place for most of Winchester next Thursday," Reid said.

In the last weeks before the WISBA reception, members of the committee have been seen in the center, at the transfer station, and at the football games to promote the champagne reception, collect contributions, and sell tickets. During the next week, the final individual contacts will be made, and telephone requests for tickets and for patron-sponsor contributions will be taken by members of the committee.

Priscilla Miller, WBS Band Director, reported on the brief musical program for the evening.

Under the baton of the guest conductor, Newton Wayland, the Band will play "Another Op'nin', Another Show," "Theme from Star Trek — the Motion Picture," "A Chorus Line," and the stirring favorite by John Philip Sousa, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Canon Canonet G-III 17
The professional's fun camera.

There are few cameras more fun to use than the compact, fully automatic Canonet G-III 17. Even though it is small enough to take along almost anywhere, it packs a host of features which belie its moderate price tag. Its sharp F1.7 Canon lens is focused with a precise coincidence type rangefinder — no more out of focus shots! — and is fast enough to permit photography indoors without flash. Even with flash, operation is completely automatic, when used with the Canonite D electronic flash unit. The Canonet G-III 17 is capable of outstanding results — in the hands of the pro or the novice.

- Fully automatic exposure control via electronic eye
- Completely automatic flash operation when used with Canonite D
- Built-in self timer
- Manual override of auto exposure system possible

Miller will then take to the podium to lead her Band in "Hey, Look Me Over," "Ease On Down the Road," "The Love Boat," and the signature song of the Band "Classical Gas." The entire performance will be brief, just long enough to remind the guests of the prize-winning group of young Winchester students they are helping.

WISBA arrangements committee members are promising a most enjoyable evening for everyone at the reception.

Additional workers on that committee include Fran Haley, Joan Hartnett, John Hackett, Pat Hitchcock, President of the Friends of the Winchester Music Department, and Mary Lou Leach.

Champagne, hors d'oeuvres, cheese, fruit, and pastries will be the fare of the evening.

Helping to serve the guests that evening will be the Cheerleaders and the Tumblettes from the high school. These two groups have been combining their efforts with those of the Band to create highly-spirited football game performances. Each group proceeded the Band respectively in the Boston and Medford 350th Anniversary Parades, and helped to proudly represent the Town of Winchester. The growing mutual support of these three high school groups for each other promises even more outstanding performances in the future.

Serving with the Cheerleaders and Tumblettes will be members of the High School Student Union, who are always looking for opportunities to promote the efforts of the students at the school.

At the WISBA meeting it was reported that additional donations of goods and services for the champagne reception have been made by Arrow Paper Co., Atlas Liquor, Continental Cow, D'Agostino's Deli, Nelson's Bakery, Purity Supreme, and the Northeast Vocational School Food Service.

The need for the new uniforms is most dramatically highlighted by a comment overheard at the Medford 350th parade. On watching the WBS Band marching past, a by-stander commented, "What a great sound they have. The best in the whole parade. It's too bad they have those dreary uniforms."

The results of the WISBA champagne reception will serve to change that comment so that the Winchester High School Band proudly will be the "...best in the whole parade"...period.

Richardson Will Give Art Lecture In Lexington

Susan Richardson of Winchester, nationally known authority on Miniature Arts, will be the featured speaker at the Oct. 5 meeting of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Society which will be held at the Art Center, 130 Waltham st. at 3:30 p.m.

The meeting is sponsored by the Needleworkers and Miniature Arts Guilds.

For six years, Richardson has specialized in designing miniature needlework, and for the Boston Museum of Fine Art has designed seat covers, wall hangings and rugs.

She has recently collaborated with her mother, Virginia Merrill, a teacher of miniature arts, in writing a book on miniatures.

Her lecture will include slides and she will have a display of her work.

After the meeting, tea will be served by the sponsoring guilds. Guests are welcome.

Get Ready For Winter

Everyone Must Conserve And The Place To Start Is Home

By STEVEN JONES

In this age of high energy costs, it pays to button up and cut down on home energy consumption.

In the past, we Americans have been oil, gas and electricity gluttons, but now the time has come to conserve. We must insulate, weatherstrip and wear sweaters rather than push the thermostat up. The world is running out of certain valuable resources, such as oil and gas, and we can no longer live in 75-degree indoor temperatures during the winter while hoping to pay moderate energy bills.

Everyone must conserve, and the place to start is right in your home.

There are ways to live comfortably as well as hold down those bills. And a conscientious homeowner can even begin to lower energy costs while spending little or no money. Wearing more wool sweaters indoors and keeping the thermostat at 65 during the day and 60 at night will result in significant fuel savings. Tests have shown that a 5-degree reduction in thermostat setting for eight hours a day will result in savings of up to 10 percent in fuel costs.

Also, try hanging a blanket over the bottom of the stairway and keep the upstairs at 50 as well. The blanket will stop much of the downstairs warmer air from escaping up the stairwell. (Note: These cooler temperatures may be harmful to young children, older people and the sick.)

Another low-cost tip is to install a flow controller in each of the shower heads in your home. This small plastic funnel, slightly larger than your thumb-nail, will slash up to $40 off your yearly electric bill ($15 off the gas bill) by reducing the amount of hot water used. And it can be installed with a wrench and only a few minutes effort. For more information on this and other low-cost energy savers, call the U.S. Dept. of Energy in Boston (223-5207). They will send you a free "Energy-Saver Packet."

For real energy savings, however, the homeowner must make a significant investment of time and money. Insulating is by far the best way to reduce energy costs because 67 percent of the heat loss from a two story house is through the attic and wall space. In the attic, there should be at least 9½" rolled fiber-glass (13"-14" poured fiberglass) with an R value of 30. The exterior walls should have 3½"-4" of rolled fiberglass (R11-R13) and ceilings of an unheated basement should have 6-6½" (R19) Rolls of insulation are often marked only with a number called the R value number, so it is important to know the previously listed values for the area of the house to be insulated. R values can also be added together. For example, insulation marked R-19 (6") can be added to insulation marked R-11 (3½") to obtain an R value of 30 (9½").

If you are adding to old attic insulation, it is permissible to place the new stuff directly over the old, parallel to the attic joists. Or, if the old insulation comes up flush with the tops of the joists, unroll the new lengths of insulation perpendicular to the old. With this method, there is one problem: The joists are covered up by the new rolls making it hard to step from joist to joist.

There are ways to live comfortably while holding
costs.

Fortunately there is also a solution: Don't try to walk on the joists.

In the attic, the insulation does not have to be held in place. Just lay it down and leave it alone. Also, when placing new insulation over old, use the unbacked type with no foil or paper on one side. The backing is used as a moisture barrier and if you put backed insulation on top of another layer of backed insulation, moisture could become trapped between the two layers of backing causing the insulation to collapse.

As you insulate your attic, there are a couple of important things to be aware of. First, don't cover the air vents located in the eaves of the roof. These vents should be open year-round to let outside air enter the attic space. This may sound crazy after all that's been said about keeping cold air out, but it's an absolute necessity. Vents at the roof-peak or gable and under the eaves must be open to insure that there is no moisture build-up in the attic. A moisture build-up can render the attic insulation useless. (For 300 sq. ft. of attic floor space, there should be 1 sq. ft. of ventilation space for air to enter, and 1 sq. ft. for air to escape.)

While placing insulation in the attic, make sure not to place it over light fixtures as this could easily cause a fire.

In the basement, secure the recommended thickness of insulation to the ceiling joists using either a staple gun or by stringing wire zig-zag from nails driven into the bottoms of the joists. If the basement ceiling has been covered with sheet-rock or some other finishing board, then insulation will have to be blown between the joists. If insulation is needed in the exterior walls of the house, it too will have to be blown in. Blown insulation such as fiberglass, mineral wool and cellulose is, in fact, not as effective as rolled insulation, but is the only alternative short of tearing down the houses walls. Also, when deciding on a blow-in insulation there is one type to avoid: Urethanaldehyde foam. This foam has been declared illegal in Mass. and has been taken off the market, but home-owners should be aware of it just the same.

Doors and windows are another major cause of

however,

heat loss in the home, accounting for about 20 percent of all escaped heat. Until recently, weatherstripping and storm windows have been considered sufficient. Now, with fuel costs rising rapidly, many people are adding storm windows that attach to the inside casing of each window. These new interior storm windows can be bought in kits or you can make them yourself. Simply cover the window with sheet plastic and use tacks or tape to secure the plastic to the window casing.

Heat loss through windows can also be cut down by covering the windows with a quilted shade. This shade is on a roller at the top and is attached to the side of the window frame for maximum efficiency. The one drawback is that it cuts out light as well as cold air, but this problem can be avoided by using the shade only at night.

Heavy curtains can be effective, but again the homeowner must be aware of certain things. Curtains that are open at the top and the bottom will not keep the cold out but actually will do more harm than good. The open-ended curtain creates a draft called the reverse-chimney effect: Warm air from the ceiling is sucked down behind the curtain and emerges from the bottom as cold air. To avoid this situation, have a plywood valance built over the top of the curtains. Also, make sure the curtains reach all the way to the floor.

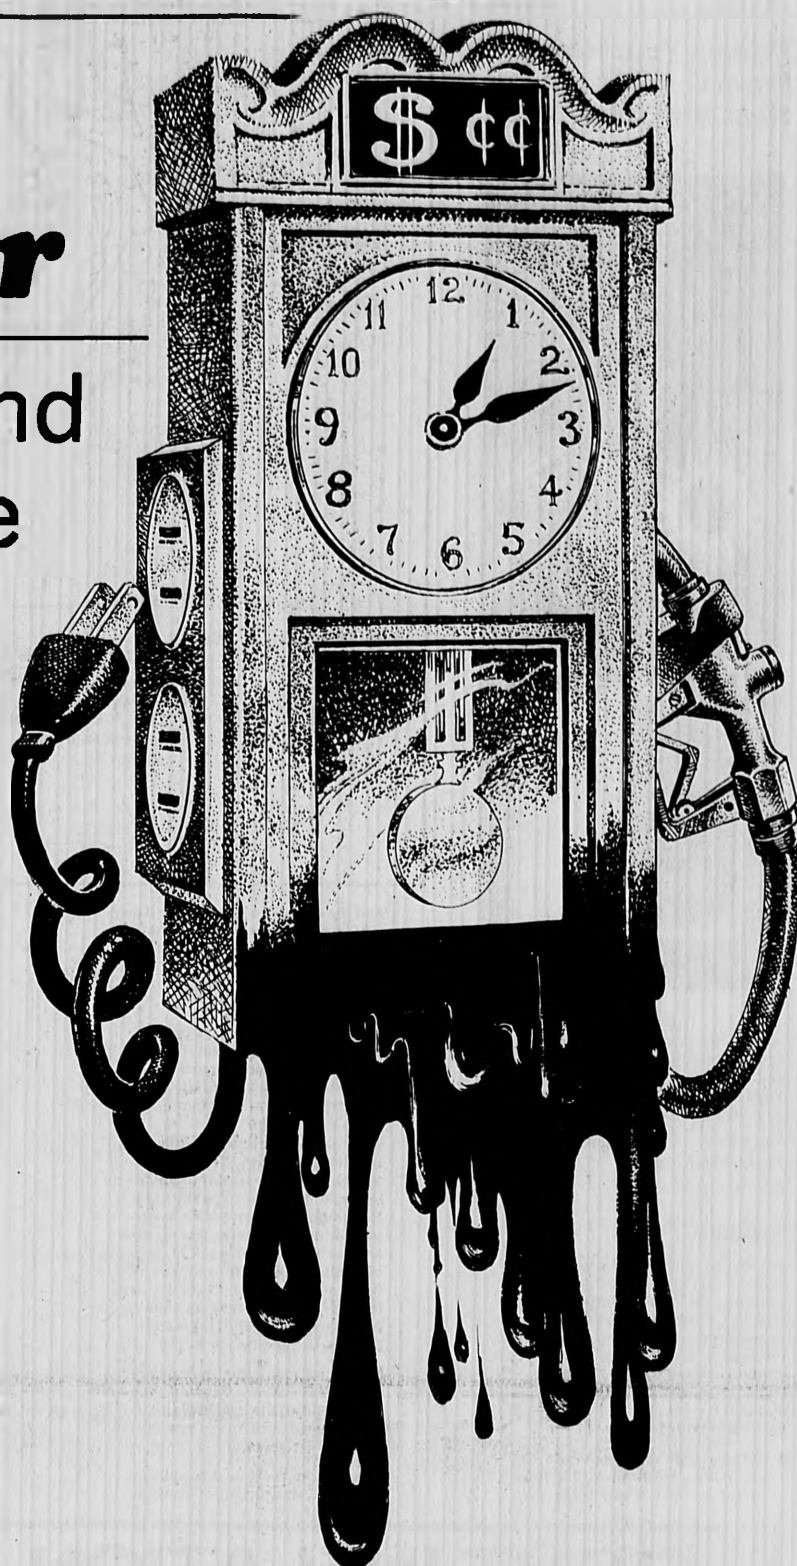

Heat loss through doors can be cut in half if you weather-strip and add a storm door, but beyond that there is not much else to be done. Even after these improvements, unfortunately, a door will not be very heat-efficient. The only consolation is the fact that doors make up very little of the total square footage of a home.

If the house has been insulated and completely sealed, you can concentrate on other methods of lowering energy consumption. Try a wood stove, for example. Stove experts say the initial investment for a stove will pay itself back in one to two years. A stove to heat a six room area costs about $500 and the most a cord of wood will cost is $130. In the average home, a person will use three cords of wood a winter. Even if you paid top-dollar for a cord, the cost would be around $400 as opposed to about $1000 for winter heating oil.

If you decide to stick with your furnace rather than burn wood, there is a list of procedures that will save you energy and dollars.

First, have your local oil service burner technician determine whether your furnace burns oil faster than is necessary. Many furnaces have over-sized burner nozzles which create more heat than can be absorbed by the heat-exchanger.

Second, have your burner technician check the level of carbon dioxide in your flue. The higher the level of carbon dioxide, the more efficient the combustion process and the less oil is being wasted in the burning process. A level of 9 percent is good and over 11 percent is excellent.

Third, have the burner technician check the temperature of the flu gasses leaving the furnace or boiler. Temperatures should be between 400 degrees and 600 degrees F for original furnaces and between 600 degrees and 700 degrees F for conversion burners. Excessive temperatures, (if the nozzle is the right size and adjusted) probably mean that the heat-exchanger surfaces are badly sooted and need to be brushed. To avoid this problem in the future, have an oil line solenoid valve installed, if you don't already have one. This electrically-operated valve prevents oil from dripping into the combustion chamber and causing smoke and soot deposits on the heat exchanger.

To improve the efficiency of your entire heating system, there are also a couple of easy steps to be followed. For a warm air furnace, see if you can feel warm air leaking out of the duct joints when the system's fan is running. If there are leaks, cover them with duct-tape. Next, if the ducts run through unheated spaces, wrap them in insulation and seal around the duct at all points where it passes through a wall. Lastly, to conserve fuel, the furnace fan should disengage at 90 degrees F and should not start up again until the burner raises the furnace temperature to 110 F.

With a hot water boiler, you can increase the efficiency of heat distribution by insulating the boiler, the hot water storage tank and the hot water piping in unheated areas. It is also important, with a hot water system, to clean the radiators or baseboards so that nothing is blocking circulation.

Chimneys and fireplaces are also energy wasters and can account for up to 15 percent of the heat loss from a house. This is true because the damper seldom fits tightly in the chimney. A solution is to stuff insulation into the gaps around the damper. (All insulation MUST be removed before a fire is started.) A better idea is to buy a set of folding glass doors, such as those that have recently come on the market. The doors can be closed when the chimney is not in use to further reduce heat loss.

If you need more detailed information there are several reliable organizations in the Boston area that are more than willing to help with energy-related projects. In addition to the U.S. Dept. of Energy, mentioned earlier try calling the State Energy Hot-line at 1-800-922-8265. They will give you information and advice as well as recommend products and inform you about tax breaks. You can also try Mr. William Bartovics at Energy Conservation Services (259-0793). The Energy Conservation Services helps home-owners in the area with energy-saving projects and they may be able to help you.

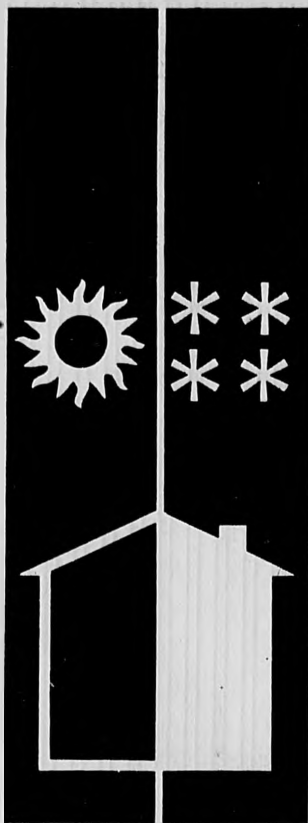

With winter coming and fuel costs continuing to rise, we could all use a little money-saving advice.

Protect Your Home From Outside Heat and Cold

About 40 million single-family homes in the United States are not adequately protected from outside weather, according to Department of Energy estimates.

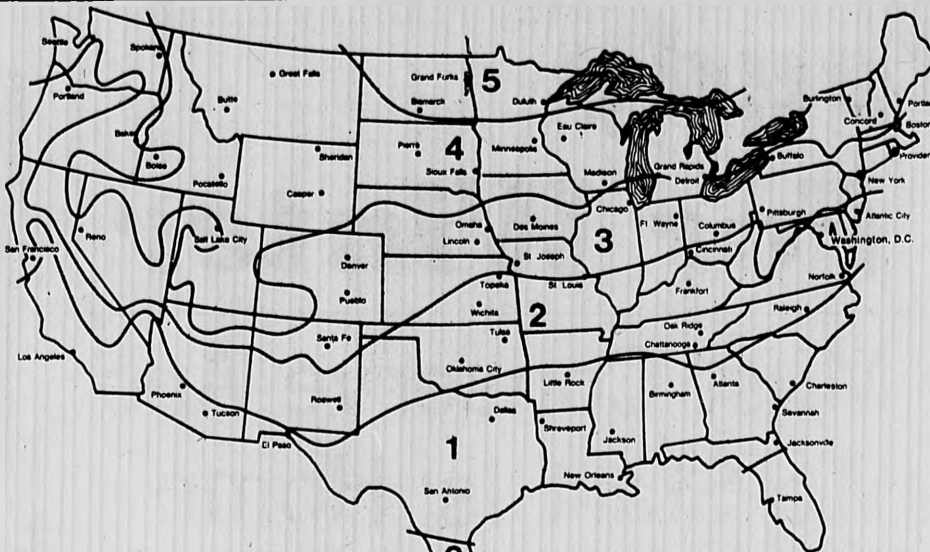

Here are some tips to make sure yours is not one of them.

Insulate

No matter how you heat or cool your home, you can reduce the load on your heating and cooling equipment by as much as 20 to 30 percent by investing a few hundred dollars in insulation. That's about as much as it would cost you to buy a color television set. But the benefits of insulation—lower utility costs—continue for years.

- Find out if your home needs insulation. Your needs will depend on the climate in which you live and the amount of insulation, if any, you already have. For guidance, consult with a reputable insulation dealer in your community or with your local building inspector or county agent.

- Find out about R-values before you buy your insulation materials. Then buy the thickness of insulation that will give you the R-value you should have. (See Heating Zone Map, page 14.)

R-values or numbers are insulation efficiency ratings. The "R" stands for resistance to winter heat loss or summer heat gain. The higher the R-number, the more effective the insulating capability. The numbers should appear on packages of all insulation materials: mineral, glass fiber, or rock wool batts or blankets; foam or loose fill materials that are poured or blown into insulation spaces; or rigid board insulation.

If the insulation you buy doesn't have the R-value written on the package, ask the salesperson to write the R-value on your receipt for future references.

Sources for R-value information include: Department of Energy;

National Bureau of Standards, U.S. Department of Commerce; American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineers (ASHRAE); and insulation manufacturers.

- Insulate or increase the amount of insulation in your attic floor or top floor ceiling to a minimum of R-26 for these spaces.

If you have old insulation in your attic, you probably won't be able to judge its R-value. But if you have less than 6 inches of old insulation, chances are you need more to bring the insulation level up to the recommended level. (See the heating zone map for guidance.) Investment costs could range from $80 to $600. Heating and cooling savings should range from somewhere around 5 percent, if you are adding to present insulation, to as much as 30 percent if you have no insulation.

- Don't insulate over eave vents or on top of recessed lighting fixtures or other heat-producing equipment on the attic floor. Also, keep insulation at least 3 inches away from the sides of these types of fixtures.

- Consider insulating exterior walls. This is an expensive measure that requires the services of a contractor, but it may be worth the cost if you live in a very hot or very cold climate. There should be enough space in the walls to accommodate blown-in insulation that is at least R-11 to R-13 in most construction except masonry.

Costs range from 60 cents to 80 cents per square foot. Savings could amount to 16 to 20 percent of utility costs.

- Insulate floors over unheated spaces such as crawl spaces and garages.

Costs could range from $200 to $400. Savings could amount to about 8 percent on your heating and cooling costs.

Draft-Proof Windows and Doors

- Test your windows and doors for airtightness. Move a lit candle around the frames and sashes of your windows. If the flame dances around, you need caulking and/or weatherstripping.

Try slipping a quarter under the door. If it goes through easily, you need weatherstripping.

- Caulk and weatherstrip doors and windows. It's easy to do yourself. Caulking and weatherstripping materials cost about $25 for the average house (12 windows, 2 doors). Savings in annual energy costs could amount to 10 percent or more.

If every gas-heated home were properly caulked and weatherstripped, we'd save enough natural gas each year to heat about 4 million homes.

- Install storm windows. Combination screen and storm windows (triple-track glass combination) are the most convenient and energy efficient because they can be opened easily when there is no need to run heating or cooling equipment.

Alternatives range from a heavy-duty, clear plastic sheet on a frame (about $10-$15 each), to clear plastic film which can be taped tightly to the inside of the window frames (a total of about $10 for the average home).

FIGHT INFLATION in the comfort of your own home

A NEW TOOL TO SAVE FUEL

The VIKING MAGNETITE window is a revolutionary new inside storm window that attaches magnetically and seals the cold out just like your refrigerator door seals the cold in. These inside insulating windows far surpass traditional storm windows doubling the resistance to conductive heat loss and eliminating air infiltration.

VIKING MAGNETITE is more than twice as efficient as standard storm windows at only a fraction of the cost. MAGNETITE is a durable system, easily installed on any type of existing windows with or without old storm windows.

HOW IT WORKS

The MAGNETITE uses a continuous strip of magnetic material and ABS Polymer to attach the acrylic window. This forms a double-glazed insulating system. The magnet is drawn to a color-matched steel strip backed with adhesive that is attached to your window frame. This approach creates a tight magnetic seal around the entire frame of the existing window. Millions of tiny magnets working together reducing heat loss up to 100%.

Heating and Cooling

Heating and cooling our homes account for most of our residential energy costs. Don't waste any of that precious conditioned air, whether you pay for it yourself or pay your landlord for it.

During both heating and cooling seasons...

- Close off unoccupied rooms and shut their heat or air-conditioning vents; or turn off room air-conditioners. (This does not apply if you have a heat pump system. Leave it alone; shutting vents could harm a heat pump.)
- Use kitchen, bath, and other ventilating fans sparingly. In just 1 hour these fans can blow away a houseful of warmed or cooled air. Turn them off just as soon as they have done their job.
- Keep your fireplace damper closed unless you have a fire going. An open damper in a 48-inch square fireplace can let up to 8 percent of your heat out the chimney.

Heating Energy Savers

Don't turn the heat on until you have to. On cool evenings use your fireplace instead and add a blanket at night.

Heating water accounts for about 20 percent of all the energy we use in our homes. Don't waste it.

- Repair leaky faucets promptly.
- Do as much household cleaning as possible with cold water.
- Insulate your hot water storage tank and piping.

With heating equipment...

- If you use electric furnace heating, consider a heat pump system. The heat pump uses thermal energy from outside air for both heating and cooling. Costs for these pumps run from about $2,000 for a whole-house unit to about $425 for room size. But they can cut your use of electricity for heating by 30 to 40 percent and also might provide some savings in cooling costs.
- If you plan to buy a new gas heating system, ask your gas utility or public service commission about the savings potential of electronic ignition. Ask also about possibilities for retrofitting the system you may already own.
- Consider the advantages of a clock thermostat for your heating system. The clock thermostat will turn the heat down for you automatically at a regular hour before you retire and turn it up again before you wake. While you can easily turn your thermostat back at night and up again in the morning yourself, the convenience of a clock thermostat may be worth the $40 to $90 cost to you.
- Consider buying a properly sized furnace that incorporates an automatic flue gas damper. This device reduces the loss of heat when the furnace is off. (Contact your gas utility or oil supplier for guidance.)
- Insulate heating ducts in unheated areas.
- Don't use your fireplace for supplemental heating when your furnace is on unless you take one of the measures suggested below to lessen the loss of heated air from the house.

The warmth from a fire on the hearth generally doesn't radiate through the house; the heat gain is confined to the room with the fireplace. And when your furnace is on, too, a considerable amount of heated air from the rest of the house flows into the fireplace and goes wastefully up the chimney. Then the temperature in other rooms of the house goes down, and the furnace uses more fuel to raise it to the level controlled by the thermostat. So you use more fuel, rather than less, when the furnace and fireplace are both going.

Lessen heat loss if you use your fireplace when the furnace is on:

- Lower the thermostat setting to between 50° F and 55° F. Some warmed air will still be lost, but the furnace won't have to use as much fuel to heat the rest of the house to these temperatures as it would to raise the heat to 65° F. (Note: See Caution on page 1.)
- Close all doors and warm air ducts entering the room with the fireplace, and open a window near the fireplace about 1/2 to 1 inch. Air needed by the fire will be provided through the open window, and the amount of heated air drawn from the rest of the house will be reduced.
- If you have a simple open masonry fireplace, consider installing a glass front or a glass screen. This will cut down on the loss of warmed air through the flue.

When the heat is on...

- Lower your thermostat to 65° F during the day and 55° F at night. You can save on your fuel costs for every degree you reduce the average temperature in your home. (Note: See Caution on page 1.)
- Keep windows near your thermostat tightly closed, otherwise it will keep your furnace working after the rest of the room has reached a comfortable temperature.
- Have your oil furnace serviced at least once a year, preferably each summer to take advantage of offseason rates. This simple precaution could save you 10 percent in fuel consumption.

- Clean or replace the filter in your forced-air heating system each month.
- Check the duct work for air leaks about once a year if you have a forced-air heating system. To do this, feel around the duct joints for escaping air when the fan is on. Relatively small leaks can be repaired simply by covering holes or cracks with duct tape. More stubborn problems may require caulking as well as taping.
- If you have oil heat, have your service man check to see if the firing rate is correct. Chances are it isn't. A recent survey found that 97 percent of the furnaces checked were over-fired.
- Don't let cold air seep into your home through the attic access door. Check the door to make sure it is well insulated and weather-stripped, otherwise you'll be wasting fuel to heat that cool air.
- Dust or vacuum radiator surfaces frequently. Dust and grime impede the flow of heat. And if the radiators need painting, use flat paint, preferably black. It radiates heat better than glossy.
- Keep draperies and shades open in sunny windows; close them at night.
- For comfort in cooler indoor temperatures, use the best insulation of all—warm clothing.

The human body gives off heat, about 390 Btu's per hour for a man, 330 for a woman. Dressing wisely can help you retain natural heat.

Wear closely woven fabrics. They add at least a half degree in warmth.

For women. Slacks are at least a degree warmer than skirts.

For men and women. A light long-sleeved sweater equals almost 2 degrees in added warmth; a heavy long-sleeved sweater adds about 3.7 degrees.

- Wash clothes in warm or cold water, rinse in cold. You'll save energy and money. Use hot water only if absolutely necessary.

- Use appliances wisely; use the one that takes the least amount of energy for the job.

Energy Savers in the Kitchen, Laundry, and Bath

Kitchen Energy Savers

Cooking Energy Savers

- Use cold water rather than hot to operate your food disposer. This saves the energy needed to heat the water, is recommended for the appliance, and aids in getting rid of grease. Grease solidifies in cold water and can be ground up and washed away.
- Install an aerator in your kitchen sink faucet. By reducing the amount of water in the flow, you use less hot water and save the energy that would have been required to heat it. The lower flow pressure is hardly noticeable.
- If you need to purchase a gas oven or range, look for one with an automatic (electronic) ignition system instead of pilot lights. You'll save an average of up to a third of your gas use—41 percent in the oven and 53 percent on the top burners.
- If you have a gas stove, make sure the pilot light is burning efficiently—with a blue flame. A yellowish flame indicates an adjustment is needed.

- Never boil water in an open pan. Water will come to a boil faster and use less energy in a kettle or covered pan.
- Keep range-top burners and reflectors clean. They will reflect the heat better, and you will save energy.
- Match the size of the pan to the heating element. More heat will get to the pan; less will be lost to surrounding air.
- If you cook with electricity, get in the habit of turning off the burners several minutes before the allotted cooking time. The heating element will stay hot long enough to finish the cooking for you without using more electricity. The same principle applies to oven cooking.

- When using the oven, make the most of the heat from that single source. Cook as many foods as you can at one time. Prepare dishes that can be stored or frozen for later use or make all oven-cooked meals.
- Watch the clock or use a timer; don't continually open the oven door to check food. Every time you open the door heat escapes and your cooking takes more energy.
- Use small electric pans or ovens for small meals rather than the kitchen range or oven. They use less energy.
- Use pressure cookers and microwave ovens if you have them. They can save energy by reducing cooking time.
- When cooking with a gas range-top burner, use moderate flame settings to conserve gas.
- When you have a choice, use the range-top rather than the oven.

Dishwashing Energy Savers

The average dishwasher uses 14 gallons of hot water per load. Use it energy efficiently.

- Be sure your dishwasher is full, but not overloaded, when you turn it on.
- When buying a dishwasher, look for a model with air-power and/or overnight dry settings. These features automatically turn off the dishwasher after the rinse cycle. This can save you up to 10 percent of your total dishwashing energy costs.
- Let your dishes air dry. If you don't have an automatic air-dry switch, turn off the control knob after the final rinse. Prop the door open a little and the dishes will dry faster.
- Don't use the "rinse hold" on your machine. It uses 3 to 7 gallons of hot water each time you use it.
- Scrape dishes before loading them into the dishwasher so you won't have to rinse them. If they need rinsing, use cold water.

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes to You

During late afternoon and early evening hours the load on the Nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use backup generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

- Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peakload.

If everyone scheduled household chores during offpeak hours, the utilities daily fuel use would be reduced and the Nation's energy would be conserved.

Refrigerator/Freezer Energy Savers

- Don't keep your refrigerator or freezer too cold. Recommended temperatures: 38° F to 40° F for the fresh food compartment of the refrigerator; 5° F for the freezer section. (If you have a separate freezer for long-term storage, it should be kept at 0° F, however.)
- If you're buying a refrigerator, it's energy economical to buy one with a power-saver switch. Most refrigerators have heating elements in their walls or doors to prevent "sweating" on the outside. In most climates, the heating element does not need to be working all the time. The power-saver switch turns off the heating element. By using it, you could save about 16 percent in refrigerator energy costs.
- Consider buying refrigerators and freezers that have to be defrosted manually. Although they take more effort to defrost, these appliances use less energy than those that defrost automatically.
- Regularly defrost manual-defrost refrigerators and freezers. Frost buildup increases the amount of energy needed to keep the engine running. Never allow frost to build up more than one-quarter of an inch.

If every household in the United States lowered its average heating temperatures 6 degrees over a 24-hour period, we would save more than 570,000 barrels of oil per day.

UNCLE SAM WILL PAY YOU TO AVOID THE DRAFT...

Enlist in a Home Energy Audit now from Mass Fair Share. We'll sign you up with a home improvement loan. And you can save on loan rates, taxes and the chill you get from high fuel bills.

The IRS will give you an income-tax credit for certain energy-saving home improvements. Like insulation, storm windows, weatherstripping, burner replacement. And many other items that reduce the fuel used in your home.

We think that's great. But it costs money to make home improvements. So at CambridgePort Savings Bank, we've come up with a winning way to save you money on a home improvement loan. Here's how:

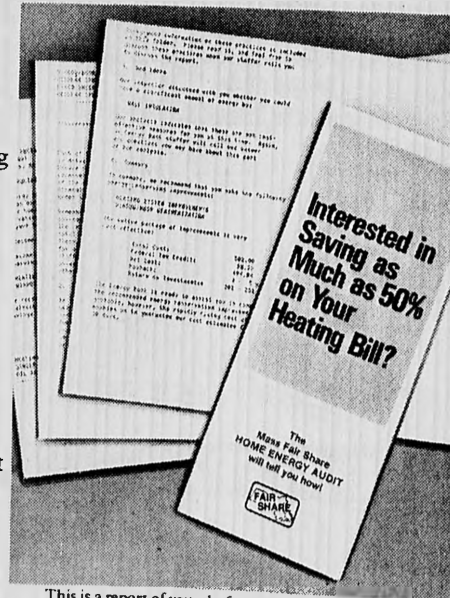

First, you get a Home Energy Audit from Mass Fair Share. For only $45, it will give you a report of the energy-saving improvements that will save the most money on your fuel bills.

Next, come to CambridgePort Savings Bank. When you get a loan for home improvements, we'll save you even more. Because with your Home Energy Audit, we'll deduct an extra ½ percent from our regular loan rate.

Bathroom Energy Savers

- Take showers rather than tub baths, but limit your showering time and check the water flow if you want to save energy. It takes about 30 gallons of water to fill the average tub. A shower with a flow of 4 gallons of water a minute uses only 20 gallons in 5 minutes. Assuming you use half hot and half cold water for bathing, you would save about 5 gallons of hot water every time you substitute a shower for a bath. Thus, if you substituted just one shower for one bath per day, you would save almost 2,000 gallons of hot water in a year.
 - Consider installing a flow restrictor in the pipe at the showerhead. These inexpensive, easy-to-install devices restrict the flow of water to an adequate 3 to 4 gallons per minute. This can save considerable amounts of hot water and the energy used to produce them over a year's time. For example, reducing the flow from 8 to 3 gallons a minute would save the average family about $24 a year.
- Clothes Dryers

 - Fill clothes dryers but do not over-load them.
 - Keep the lint screen in the dryer clean. Remove lint after each load. Lint impedes the flow of air in the dryer and requires the machine to use more energy.
 - Keep the outside exhaust of your clothes dryer clean. Check it regularly. A clogged exhaust lengthens the drying time and increases the amount of energy used.
 - Separate drying loads into heavy and lightweight items. Since the lighter ones takes less drying time, the dryer doesn't have to be on as long for these loads.
 - If drying the family wash takes more than one load, leave small, lightweight items until last. You may be able to dry them, after you turn off the power, with heat retained by the machine from earlier loads.
- Save energy by using the old-fashioned clothesline. As a bonus, clothes dried outdoors often seem fresher and cleaner than those taken from a mechanical dryer.

Ironing

- Remove clothes that will need ironing from the dryer while they still are damp. There's no point in wasting energy to dry them thoroughly if they only have to be dampened again.
- You can save ironing time and energy by "pressing" sheets and pillow cases on the warm top of your dryer. Fold them carefully, then smooth them out on the flat surface.
- Save energy needed for ironing by hanging clothes in the bathroom while you're bathing or showering. The steam often removes the wrinkles for you.

Laundry Energy Savers

You can save considerable amounts of energy in the laundry through conservation of hot water and by using your automatic washers and dryers less often and more efficiently.

Washing Machines

- Fill washers (unless they have small-load attachments or variable water levels), but do not overload them.
- Use the suds saver if you have one. It will allow you to use one tubful of hot water for several loads.
- Don't use too much detergent. Follow the instructions on the box. Oversudsing makes your machine work harder and use more energy.
- Pre-soak or use a soak cycle when washing heavily soiled garments. You'll avoid two washings and save energy.

- If your dryer has an automatic dry cycle, use it. Overdrying merely wastes energy.
- Dry your clothes in consecutive loads. Stop-and-start drying uses more energy because a lot goes into warming the dryer up to the desired temperature each time you begin.

Coal & Wood

Citation is the coal burning, wood burning stove without the compromises. This is an air tight stove designed to allow for efficient combustion of a load of 25 plus pounds of coal, with the alternate ability to burn 18 inch logs. As a coal burner, Citation's integral cast iron shaker grate is controlled by a side mount exterior lever. A handy removable ash pan eases clean outs.

As a wood burner, the Citation's dual function alternate fuel source capability excels. Unlike other combination stoves, the Citation is not restricted by a small combustion chamber and 16 inch logs, a load of 18 inch logs fit easily through the dual doors.

Whether you choose to burn coal or burn wood, the Citation moves hot air throughout the interior of your home with a powerful quiet running standard equipped UL approved blower. Warm air freely circulates through interior channels from the rear across the entire length of the stove, out the front, and then downward toward your floor; for more even heat distribution. This unique back to front air circulation allows more interior surface heating and yields a higher temperature blast of air than other circulation methods.

Reupholster salvageable furniture

There are many reasons why it makes more sense today to reupholster furniture than it did ten years ago, economic ranking first. Ten years ago, it was simply more feasible to replace furniture than it is today.

Now home owners and apartment dwellers are casting second glances at tired furnishings. Is that sofa salvageable after all? And maybe it is a better piece than what I could afford to buy, runs the train of thought. Fashion plays a role, too, not all that is old is tacky.

In the hypothetical home inventory case, the neglected pieces would most likely have to be reupholstered, as well as re-finished or recaned. Realistically, going the do-it-yourself route is risky and time consuming, while many reupholsterers are qualified to complete the job. Although this could seem costly, if you are committed to keep the furniture, the finished pieces will be come irreplaceable.

When you peruse upholstery fabric samples, consider the use this furniture will be put to; the wear it is likely to receive.

Vinyl, a good choice

Vinyl-coated fabrics are fashionable and practical, more so today than ever before. With new design/technology advances, Naugahyde brand fabric has introduced a Designers' Collection of fine-register prints embossed in soft, fabric-like textures. So you can cover a sofa in "silk damask" or "Egyptian cotton" (batik look) or "Haitian cotton." And best of all, the material feels like the texture of these fabrics.

Or you can choose from dozens of leather looks in a palette of colors. A popular suede-like Naugahyde pattern is breathable, too. Furniture today can be as fashionable as it is functional.

Finding a reupholstering craftsman may be as simple as calling a friend who has good experience. Check the Yellow Pages, and be prepared to make some phone calls, ready with questions. Some reupholsterers will quote, generally on the phone; most will visit your home for specific quotes. A few craftsmen will even order furniture frames, which they can upholster, or help locate an old frame in a particular style.

Decide on color

A good reupholsterer should have an extensive range of sample fabrics, but it is best to begin with some idea of color and texture before thumbing through stacks of samples. Of course, the availability of a range of fabrics is important in locating a reupholsterer. But if you cannot find just what you want and decide to purchase your own material, be prepared for a reupholstering bill that differs little or not at all from a fabric included quote. This has become standard practice in many shops.

A confirmed do-it-yourselfer may avail himself of upholstery classes offered through most vocational-technical schools. This may lead to ambitious projects involving refinishing, recaning and reupholstering. If priorities cancel out such dedication, though, invest instead in the years of the skilled experience of a good reupholsterer.

One of the most common weatherproofing jobs is insulating an unfinished attic roof or wall. To do this, fill insulation batts between the rafters with the vapor barrier pointed towards you. Then, with the electric staple gun, drive staples firmly into the rafters at 6" intervals. The vapor barrier should be started, also. To complete the job, stuff pieces of insulation loosely around all openings in the attic.

Buying a Car

Study the Market Before You Buy

Ask your dealer for a free copy of the latest "EPA/DOE Gas Mileage Guide." Study the fuel economy figures and tables that compare specifications. Review mileage test results publicized by Consumers Union and motor industry magazines. Generally the best fuel economy is associated with low vehicle weight, small engines, manual transmissions, low axle ratio, and low frontal area (the width of the car times its height).

• Buy the most energy-efficient car of the size and style you want. Don't let the car price alone determine your choice. Make your decision on the basis of the combination of purchase price and your estimated fuel costs.

Choose Accessories Wisely

- Purchase only the optional equipment and accessories you really need. Items like air-conditioning, automatic transmission, and power steering require considerable energy, all of which is derived from burning gasoline. Other equipment, such as power brakes, electric motor-driven windows, seats and radio antennas, require less energy for their operation, but all accessories add to the vehicle weight—and this reduces fuel economy.
- Don't buy an air-conditioner unless you really need it. Even when you're not using it, it adds to the weight of the car.
- If you have a car air-conditioner or other power-draining accessories, use them sparingly.

Maintaining Your Car

Good car maintenance and a wise selection of accessories can mean fuel economy and dollars saved.

- Have your car tuned as needed. Regular tune-ups extend engine life and improve performance. A poorly tuned car could use as much as 3 to 9 percent more gasoline than a well-tuned one. The tune-up will pay for itself in gasoline savings and car reliability.
- Keep the engine filters clean. Clogged filters waste gasoline.
- Use the gasoline octane and oil grade recommended for your car. If you change the oil yourself, take the used oil to your service station for recycling.

- Check tire pressures regularly. Underinflated tires increase gas use. You can lose about 2 percent in fuel economy for every pound of pressure under the recommended pounds per-square-inch.

- Consider radial tires. They can mean from 3 to 5 percent improvement in gas mileage in the city, 7 percent on the highway, and 10 percent at 55 mph after the tires are warmed up for 20 minutes. And they last longer, too. Never mix radials with conventional tires.
- Remove unnecessary weight from the car. The lighter the car, the less gas it uses. An extra 100 pounds decreases fuel economy about 1 percent for the average car, 1 1/4 percent for small cars.
- Drive at a steady pace. Avoid stop-and-go traffic. Frequently check the traffic situation well ahead of you. Adjust your driving to avoid unnecessary, wasteful accelerations and decelerations.

On the Road

We all can improve on our conservation efforts on the road. Here are some of the ways...

- Use public transportation, a motorcycle, a moped, or a bicycle, or walk to work.
- Share your ride. Join a carpool or a vanpool. About one-third of all private automobile mileage is for commuting to and from work.
- Accelerate smoothly and moderately. Achieve your desired speed quickly, and then keep a steady pressure on the accelerator, just enough to maintain speed.

Have a housewarming party.

With a Shawmut home improvement loan you can have a housewarming party all winter long. That's because we're inviting you to make all the additions and improvements your home needs. Like a new furnace, insulation, remodeling, storm windows or that new family room you've been dreaming of. You'll see a return on your investment in lots of ways. You'll celebrate lower heating bills as well as increasing the value of your home in the event you choose to sell it. Plus there's a chance you'll save a bundle on taxes because you can deduct 15% of the cost of energy related improvements (up to a credit of $300). With Shawmut's home improvement loan rates, there are lots of reasons to have a housewarming party. Stop by your nearest Shawmut bank today and let us help you plan one.

Lighting Energy Savers

It's easy to use more light than you need.

More than 16 percent of the electricity we use in our homes goes into lighting. Most Americans overlight their homes, so lowering lighting levels is an easy conservation measure.

Indoor Lighting

- Turn off lights in any room not being used.
- Light-zone your home and save electricity. Concentrate lighting in reading and working areas and where it's needed for safety (stairwells, for example). Reduce lighting in other areas, but avoid very sharp contrasts.
- To reduce overall lighting in non-working spaces, remove one bulb out of three in multiple light fixtures and replace it with a burned-out bulb for safety. Replace other bulbs throughout the house with bulbs of the next lower wattage.
- Consider installing solid state dimmers or hi-low switches when replacing light switches. They make it easy to reduce lighting intensity in a room and thus save energy.
- Use one large bulb instead of several small ones in areas where bright light is needed.
- Use long-life incandescent lamps only in hard-to-reach places. They are less energy efficient than ordinary bulbs.
- Need new lamps? Consider the advantages of those with three-way switches. They make it easy to keep lighting levels low when intense light is not necessary, and that saves electricity. Use the high switch only for reading or other activities that require brighter light.
- Always turn three-way bulbs down to the lowest lighting level when watching television. You'll reduce the glare and use less energy.
- Use low-wattage night-light bulbs. These now come in 4-watt as well as 7-watt sizes. The 4-watt bulb with a clear finish is almost as bright as the 7-watt frosted bulb but uses about half as much energy.
- Try 50-watt reflector floodlights in directional lamps (such as pole or spot lamps). These flood lights provide about the same amount of light as the standard 100-watt bulbs but at half the wattage.

- Try 25-watt reflector flood bulbs in high-intensity portable lamps. They provide about the same amount of light but use less energy than the 40-watt bulbs that normally come with these lamps.
- Use fluorescent lights whenever you can; they give out more lumens per watt. For example, a 40-watt fluorescent lamp gives off 80 lumens per watt and a 60-watt incandescent gives off only 14.7 lumens per watt. The 40-watt fluorescent lamp would save about 140 watts of electricity over a 7-hour period. These savings, over a period of time, could more than pay for the fixtures you would need to use fluorescent lighting.
- Consider fluorescent lighting for the kitchen sink and countertop areas. These lights set under kitchen cabinets or over countertops are pleasant and energy efficient.
- Fluorescent lighting also is effective for makeup and grooming areas. Use 20-watt deluxe warm white lamps for these areas.
- Keep all lamps and lighting fixtures clean. Dirt absorbs light.
- You can save on lighting energy through decorating. Remember, light colors for walls, rugs, draperies, and upholstery reflect light and therefore reduce the amount of artificial light required.

Outdoor Lighting

- Have decorative outdoor gas lamps turned off, unless they are essential for safety, or convert them to electricity. Keeping just eight gas lamps burning year-round uses as much natural gas as it takes to heat an average-size home for a winter heating season.

By turning off one gas lamp, you might save from $40 to $50 a year in natural gas costs.

- Use outdoor lights only when they are needed. One way to make sure they're off during the daylight hours is to put them on a photocell unit or timer that will turn them off automatically.

About 8 percent of all the energy used in the United States goes into running electrical home appliances.

so appliance use and selection can make a considerable difference in home utility costs. Buying an energy-efficient appliance may cost a bit more initially but that expense is more than made up by reduced operating costs over the lifetime of the appliance.

Energy efficiency may vary considerably though models seem similar. In the next few years it will be easier to judge the energy efficiency of appliances with the Government's appliance labeling program. (See page 21 for details.) In the meantime, wise selection requires a degree of time and effort.

- Don't leave your appliances running when they're not in use. It's a total waste of energy. Remember to turn off your radio, TV, or record player when you leave the room.
- Keep appliances in good working order so they will last longer, work more efficiently, and use less energy.
- When buying appliances, read labels carefully. Compare energy use information and operating costs of similar models by the same and different manufacturers. The retailer should be able to help you find the wattage of the appliance.
- Before buying new appliances with special features, find out how much energy they use compared with other, perhaps less convenient, models. A frost-free refrigerator, for example, uses more energy than one you have to defrost manually. It also costs more to purchase.

- Turn off lights and appliances when not needed.
- Operate dishwasher only when fully loaded, and air dry.
- Check energy-efficiency labels when buying appliances.
- Select the most efficient air-conditioner for your needs. Set its thermostat at 78°.
- When building a home, locate the refrigerator away from oven and range.

Budget for next year

KWH (Kilowatt hours)

Cost

- Plan to stay in one place if you vacation away from home. "Hopping around" takes transportation energy.
- Take a train or a bus instead of the family car. Save gasoline and relax.
- Rediscover the pleasures of walking, hiking, and bicycling during your vacation. They're the most energy-conserving means of transportation and the healthiest for most people.
- Observe the 55-mph speed limit on the highway. Most automobiles get about 20 percent more miles per gallon on the highway at 55 mph than they do at 70 mph.
- Minimize braking. Anticipate speed changes. Take your foot off the accelerator as soon as you see a red light or slowed traffic ahead.
- Don't let the motor idle for more than a minute. Turn off the engine. It takes less gasoline to restart the car than it takes to let it idle. Generally there is no need to press the accelerator down to restart the engine.
- Don't overfill your tank. Remove the nozzle or ask the gas station attendant to remove it when the automatic valve closes. This will eliminate any chance of spillage.
- Plan your trips carefully. Select routes that will allow you to consolidate errands and avoid congested areas.
- Use your head before you drive. Plan your trips. Try to use these tips as you drive. Record your gasoline use, and try to get more miles per gallon out of your car.

How to Save Energy and $$$ At Home

Most of our residential energy, 70 percent, is used to heat and cool our homes. An additional 20 percent goes for heating water, the second-largest home energy user and expense. The remaining 10 percent goes into lighting, cooking, and running small appliances.

We can cut our energy use and help control living costs by making our homes energy efficient, even if we have to spend some money to do it. The money we spend now can help hold down energy costs.

Caution: Some older people may require higher indoor temperatures—above 65° F at all times—to avoid accidental hypothermia, a possibly fatal drop in body temperature. People with circulatory problems or those taking certain types of drugs (e.g., phenothiazines, commonly used to treat anxiety and nausea) may also be vulnerable. In such instances, follow a physician's counsel on both winter and summer thermostat settings in your home.

The Appliance Labeling Program

This labeling program is designed to help consumers shop for energy-saving household appliances and equipment. It is being developed by the Department of Energy and the Federal Trade Commission as a result of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, signed into law on December 22, 1975.

Under that law, manufacturers must place labels showing estimated annual operating costs on all models of the following:

- Furnaces
- Water heaters
- Refrigerators and refrigerator freezers
- Freezers
- Clothes washers
- Dishwashers
- Room air-conditioners
- Central air-conditioners
- Heat pumps

Weatherproofing Staple gun speeds up job

Weatherproofing can make a home more comfortable, while it helps to cut down fuel costs. Most weatherproofing is simple and inexpensive to do, and can easily be tackled by weekend do-it-yourselfers.

As with any project, advance planning, organization and the correct tools can go a long way to assure success. Most of the tools needed are probably in the family tool chest: a utility knife, a straight edge for a cutting guide, a small handsaw, a measuring tape, a rake, and duct tape. For most projects, a small hammer can be used, but a Duo-Fast electric staple gun can save time and sore muscles on the big jobs.

The next step is to determine where heat loss in the home is the greatest. Look at the roof after a snowfall; bare patches of roof indicate heat loss and lack of adequate insulation. To check inside walls, remove electric outlet plates and look inside to see the depth and type of wall insulation inside. To determine the condition of the insulation under a finished floor, remove the floorboard or drill a small hole and extract a sample piece of insulation with tweezers.

A local insulation dealer can give advice on the type of insulation to use to correct each type of problem. Some guidelines to bear in mind: Reduce skin contact with insulation as much as possible by wearing protective clothing, and keep each insulating layer as taut as possible by filling all spaces and by closing edges of insulation batts tightly together.

Happiness Is A New Kitchen

Ask anyone who's remodeled a kitchen or modernized a bathroom or installed home laundry facilities in the past year... these major improvements add more than their cost to your enjoyment of your home, not to mention what they add to its value and contribute to its convenience.

For remodeling advice, consult a kitchen/bath/laundry specialist. We'll plan — you install. Or we'll contract the entire job: design it, supply the materials and install them to your satisfaction.

Building or Buying a Home

Energy-wasting mistakes can be avoided if you consider climate, local building codes, and energy-efficient construction when you build or buy a home. In either case, the following energy conservation ideas should help you keep down home utility bills.

When Building a Home...

- Consider a square floor plan. It usually is more energy efficient than a rectangular plan.
- Insulate floors, too, especially those over crawl spaces, cold basements, and garages.*
- If the base of a house is exposed, as in the case of a mobile home, build a "skirt" around it.

- Install louvered panels or wind-powered roof ventilators rather than motor-driven fans to ventilate the attic. Only use a motor-driven fan if it can be used for whole-house ventilating during cool periods.

- Consider solar heat gain when you plan your window locations.

In cool climates, install fewer windows in the north wall because there's little solar heat gain there in winter.

*See Heating Zone Map

In warm climates, put the largest number of windows in the north and east walls to reduce heating from the sun.

- Install windows you can open so you can use natural or fan-forced ventilation in moderate weather.

- Use double-pane glass throughout the house. Windows with double-pane heat-reflecting or heat-absorbing glass provide additional energy savings, especially in south and west exposures.

- Place your refrigerator in the coolest part of the kitchen, well away from the range and oven.

- Install the water heater as close as possible to areas of major use to minimize heat loss through the pipes; insulate the pipes.

- If you live in a warm climate, remember that light-colored roofing can help keep houses cooler.

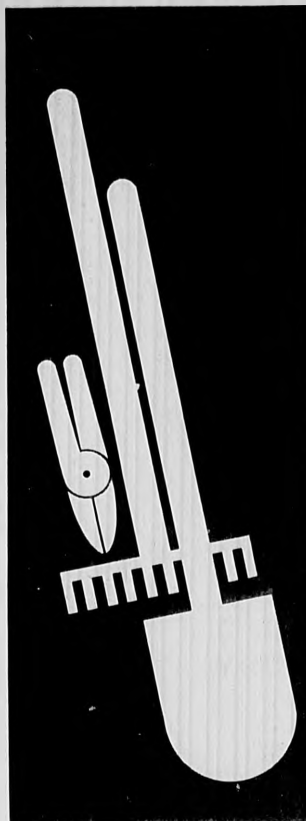

When Buying a Home...

- Consider all the ideas mentioned for building a house.

- Ask for a description of the insulation and data on the efficiency of space heating, air-conditioning, and water heating plants, or have an independent engineer advise you about the efficiency of the equipment. Ask to see the utility bills from the previous year but remember to adjust them for current utility rates. Even some new houses don't have insulation in the exterior walls. Be sure to check.

- Consider the need for additional insulation or replacement of equipment. If improvements are necessary, you may want to seek an adjustment in the purchase price

Yard and Workshop Energy Savers

- Maintain electrical tools in top operating condition. They should be clean and properly lubricated.

- Keep cutting edges sharp. A sharp bit or saw cuts more quickly and therefore uses less power. Oil on bits and saws reduces friction and therefore also reduces power required.

- Buy power tools with the lowest horsepower adequate for the work you want to do.

- Remember to turn off shop lights, soldering irons, gluepots, and all bench heating devices right after use.

- Do not allow gasoline-powered yard equipment to idle for long periods. Turn off the equipment when you finish one job and restart it when you're ready to resume work.

- Plant deciduous trees and vines on south and west sides of the home to provide shade in the summer and sunshine in the winter.

- Use hand tools, hand lawn mowers, pruners and clippers whenever possible.

In the Marketplace

- Try to buy products that will last. More durable products save the energy that would be required to make replacements more often.

- Buy equipment on the basis of initial cost plus operating costs rather than on the basis of purchase price alone. Often products that are energy efficient cost more to buy. But over the lifetime of the equipment, you will more than make up the difference in lower operating costs.

- Buy products made of recycled materials or those that can be recycled—steel, aluminum, paper, and glass among others. More energy is used in the production of products from virgin materials than from recycled or reclaimed materials. For example, producing steel from scrap requires only one-quarter of the energy it would take when using virgin ores. Making a product from recycled aluminum requires less than 10 percent of the energy that would be needed for the same product made from the ore.

- When you buy fabrics or garments, try to choose those that can be washed in cold water and/or require little or no ironing.

- When shopping for an unusual item, telephone ahead to see if the store has it. If it doesn't, you save the energy and time of traveling there and being disappointed.

- Give gifts with year-round benefits. If you have appliances on your gift list, select long-lasting models that use the least amount of energy.

- Don't buy motorized equipment or gadgets when hand-operated versions will do.

- Buy the household equipment that's right for you. Purchasing the right equipment for your home and needs, using it wisely, and taking good care of it can reduce energy costs considerably.

- Bigger isn't necessarily better. Don't buy a larger or more powerful piece of equipment than you need. Whether it's a furnace, air-conditioner, or water heater, make sure its size and power are right for your home. Ask your dealer, a trade association, or a consumer-interest group for assistance in judging this factor.

- Comparison shop when buying appliances. Compare energy use information and operating costs of similar models by the same company and by different manufacturers.

- Don't use energy-consuming special features on your appliances if you have an alternative. For example, don't use the "Instant-on" feature of your TV set. "Instant-on" sets, especially the tube types, use energy even when the screen is dark.

Dear Fuel Oil Consumer:
With the price of fuel oil rising continually, we would like to make available to all fuel oil users, an opportunity to test their heating equipment for energy savings.

We call this service our "Computerized Heating System Audit." After this audit is completed we can recommend which changes will give you your greatest return on investment.

The first step in energy savings requirements is to know what you do and how to do it. We can guide you in your home heating. For example, if you are considering converting to a gas system, we can recommend if that would be the most useful form of heating for your home through our Computerized Fuel Comparison Study. Before you take a costly step, know what you are doing.

If your present supplier is not equipped to make these tests, please call us at the numbers below. Conserving both fuel and money is important to all of us. And no one wants to be threatened by fuel rationing.

Sincerely yours,
Al LaPointe

SOLAR HEAT FUTURE KEY

What with the cost of fuel, oil, gas and electricity climbing steadily, it's increasingly difficult for the homeowner to keep cheerful and warm at the same time. Solar heat may be the answer in the future.

Engineers from Honeywell Inc., recently studied the performance of solar heating and cooling equipment in 12 cities. They came to the conclusion that the sun could furnish 84 percent of the average annual heating requirements for a typical house in New York City and 77 percent of the necessary air conditioning energy. In Atlanta, the figures were 85 percent and 63 percent; in Chicago 50 percent and 67 percent.

A solar heating set-up stores energy in the form of sun heated hot water. This energy can be used both for heating and air conditioning. And although the price of a solar heating unit is high now, growing demand is expected to bring down the cost considerably in the future. There's one catch, though. Long periods of cloudy weather mean big trouble for solar energy units. So, you'll still need some back-up heating.

Obituaries

John McHale

John H. McHale, 96, of 221 Forest street, Winchester, died Sept. 25 in the Woburn Nursing Home following a long illness.

Born in Stoneham June 29, 1884, he was a Winchester resident for over 50 years. He was educated at Stoneham Grade School and was the last surviving graduate of the Stoneham High School Class of 1903. He was a graduate of Burdett Business School in Boston.

A retired chief clerk in the Planning and Design Division of the Boston Naval Shipyard, he entered Federal service in 1911 and retired in 1954. He was a veteran of World War I, serving as a Chief Petty Officer in the Navy. An honorary life member in the Stoneham Knights of Columbus, he was a member of the St. Mary's Holy Name Society and of the Retired Federal Employees Association.

He was the husband of the late May H. Foley McHale.

Survivors include two sisters, Caroline K. McHale and Ruth E. Pfau, two nephews, Francis X. Pfau and William A. Pfau, seven grand nephews

Thanks Offered

The family of Carl E. Morse wish to extend their deep appreciation to all who sent cards, letters or flowers; attended services, or in any other way expressed their sympathy at the time of Carl's illness and death.

Priscilla M. Morse and two grand nieces. He was the brother of the late Rev. William F. McHale S.J.

The funeral was held Monday at 9:15 a.m. followed by a Mass of Resurrection in St. Mary's Church at 10 a.m. Burial was in St. Patrick's Cemetery in Stoneham. The funeral was held at Lane Funeral Home.

Arrangements by Lane Funeral Home.

Glaucoma Test Offered Oct. 11 At Jenks Center

A free glaucoma screening clinic for persons 35 years of age and over will be held Saturday, October 11, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center, 109 Skillings Road, Winchester.

The clinic is sponsored by the Winchester Rotary Club and Winchester Seniors Association, and will be conducted under the supervision of Dr. Paul A. Vernaglia, board certified ophthalmologist on the staff of Winchester Hospital. He will be assisted by three resident ophthalmologists from Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. Three nurses from Visiting Nurse and Community, Inc. will also assist.

According to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, glaucoma is a leading cause of blindness among adults in the United States, with one out of every eight blind people a victim of the disease.

Mericantante Appointed Chaplain

Rev. John J. Mericantante III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mericantante Jr. of 28 Lockeland road, Winchester, and associate pastor of St. Anthony's Church in Revere, has been appointed honorary Chaplain to the Chilean Consulate.

The Consulate serves Chileans in the New England States.

Father Mericantante is the first to hold such a position.

He has served as pastor on the Boston Archdiocesan Lend-Lease Program to the Parish of San Sebastian which included 110 square miles and seven churches in Chile.

Church Slates Musical Events

The 1980-1981 Musicales of the First Congregational Church in Winchester will present four events of unusual musical interest, Dr. Robert Card, chairman of the Music Committee, announced recently.

The series will open on Nov. 1, with an afternoon lecture-workshop by Edward Tarr and George Kent, followed in the evening by a concert of works for Baroque and modern trumpet and organ performed by Tarr and Kent.

Speaking of these artists, Dr. Card said, "Edward Tarr is probably the world's foremost performer on the Baroque (valveless) trumpet. With George Kent he has toured widely in North America, Europe and Japan, and has made over thirty recordings, several of which have won such awards as the Grammy, the Grand Prix du Disque, and High Fidelity Magazine's Critic's Choice. We are delighted to open our Musicales series with these outstanding musicians." Edward Tarr and George Kent will be presented in cooperation with the University of Lowell, College of Music, MENC Chapter.

Subsequent concerts in the Musicales series will include members of the Winchester Music Society in a joint recital on Feb. 28 and the Waterfield Consort on May second.

The Winchester Music Society includes among its membership many of the skilled professional and avocational musicians who live and work in Winchester. Several of them will join in the February concert of vocal and instrumental music from a variety of times, places and traditions.

The Waterfield Consort, an ensemble of seven singers and performers on period instruments, has been performing the music of the Renaissance for eleven seasons, and will present a lively celebration of spring and love in Renaissance England and Italy.

All events will take place at the First Congregational Church in Winchester, Church Street "On the Common". Tickets will be available at the door for each event, or may be purchased in advance for the entire series at a discount through the church office, telephone 729-9180.

OURS IS ONLY $10.00

Most banks offer NOW Accounts. But, many have said that to earn interest (which is what a NOW Account is really all about) you must keep $300, $500, even as much as $800 in your account at all times.

Now really, do you keep $800 in your checking account at all times?

At Old Colony Bank, keep just $10.00 in your NOW Account and get free checks, no charges for regular services, and always a full 5% interest on the money that does remain in the account.

THUR., OCT. 2

9-11 PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
THE GREAT AMERICAN TRAFFIC JAM. A world premier comedy with Desi Arnaz Jr., John Beck, Shelly Fabres, Ed McMahon.

9-11 PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
FAST BREAK. Gabriel Kaplan makes his motion picture debut playing a delicatessen cashier who dreams of becoming a college basketball coach. A good fast special.

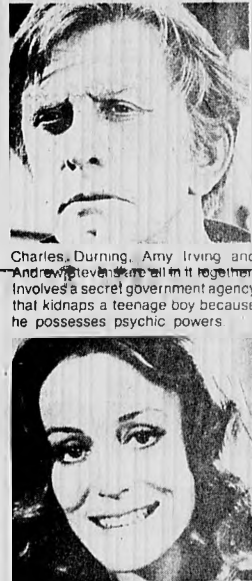

FRI., OCT. 3

9-11 PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)
THE WAY WE WERE. Robert Redford and Barbra Streisand wrap this one around their little fingers. You'll love it, a bittersweet romance of two people growing up and growing apart.

SAT., OCT. 4

8-10 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
CENTENNIAL: 'THE SHEPHERDS' Farmer Hans Brumbaugh (Alex Karras) leads the fight to keep the cattle ranchers from taking over the land.

8:30-11 PM CBS (7:30 Central/Mt.)
THE FURY. If you missed this at the cinema in '78 here it is again right before your eyes. Kirk Douglas, John Cassavetes, Carrie Snodgrass.

Charles Durning, Amy Irving and Andrew Stevens tell it together. Involves a secret government agency that kidnaps a teenage boy because he possesses psychic powers.

SUN., OCT. 5

7-8 PM NBC (6 Central/Mountain)
DISNEY'S WONDERFUL WORLD: 'THE SHAGGY DOG.' Concluding half of this comedy with Fred MacMurray, Annette Funicello, Tommy Kirk and Jean Hagen. All about a teenager who turns into an Old English Sheepdog. He learns that spies are stealing plans from a missile plant. Enjoy it with the kids and the dogs.

8-10 PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)

8-10:45 PM ABC (7 Central/Mountain)
JAWS. Three men fight for their lives and try to save a town from the awesome power of a terrifying 25 foot three ton killer shark in one of the greatest box office hits in movie history. Starring in the film based on Peter Benchley's runaway best-seller are Roy Scheider, Robert Shaw and Richard Dreyfuss. It'll make your toes curl.

9-11 PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
THE END. Movie starring Burt Reynolds - who also directed it. It's a satirical comedy with Burt portraying a philandering real estate promoter who discovers a lot about himself and those around him after he learns his life may be nipped in the bud. Don DeLuise, Sally Field, Strother Martin and David Steinberg also star. Daffy moments.

MON., OCT. 6

9-11 PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
TO FIND MY SON. Richard Thomas stars in this heart warming story of a sincere, loving man who decides to adopt a child and then finds himself embroiled in a bitter battle.

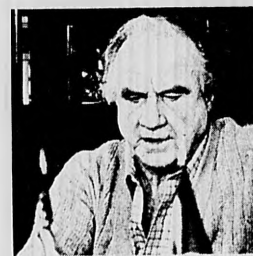

9-11:20 PM NBC (8 Central/Mt.)
JULIA. A gem. Don't miss it. Vanessa Redgrave and Jane Fonda star in Lillian Hellman's gripping memoir of friendship in the face of great danger during the days of Hitler's power in pre-war Germany.

TUES., OCT. 7

8-9 PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)
MORE WILD WILD WEST. Robert Conrad and Ross Martin back again in a new motion picture for TV. It's a western spy spoof and your mouth will crack with smiles.

8-10 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
BEULAH LAND (Part 1). Leslie Ann Warren stars in the central role of this epic miniseries as a proud and powerful mistress of a southern plantation whose devotion to the land perseveres despite many personal and political obstacles. It was filmed in and around Natchez, Mississippi...right on the old Mississippi River.

9-11 PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
A PRIVATE BATTLE. Jack Warden and Anne Jackson star in this drama that unravels the true story of writer Cornelius Ryan's valiant struggle against the big C. The struggle almost drives a wedge between members of his once happy family.

It's supposed to be easy to be brave when you have distance. See what happens when there isn't much yardage.

WED., OCT. 8

8-9 PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)
MORE WILD WILD WEST (Part 2). Robert Conrad and Ross Martin and Jonathan Winters continue to romp through this comedy-adventure. It satirizes the western and spy-movie genres and reunites Conrad and Martin.

9-11 PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
PORTRAIT OF AN ESCORT. Susan Anspach stars as a divorced woman trying to make ends meet by working at a job which rightly tests her integrity and arouses whispers and suspicions - even from her own teenage daughter.

9-11 PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
BEULAH LAND (Part 2).

THURS., OCT. 9

8-10 PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)
THE CHILDREN OF AN LAC. Shirley Jones and Ina Balin star in this tragic tale of the evacuation of orphans from Saigon.

9-11 PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
BEULAH LAND (Part 3). Vowing to rebuild the beautiful plantation from its ashes, Sarah (Lesley Ann Warren) grapples with one of the most difficult decisions in her life.

SAT., OCT. 11

8-10 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
CENTENNIAL: 'THE STORM.' The Vennelford Ranch and its manager Oliver Secombe (Timothy Dalton) are threatened by a storm - and other elements not involving Mother Nature.

8:30-11 PM CBS (7:30 Central/Mt.)
THE WIZ. Diana Ross stars in musical extravaganza to be broadcast for the first time on network television.

Hospital Series Continues

Editor's Note: The following is the third in a series of articles submitted by Winchester Hospital concerning plans for construction at the Highland ave. facility. Since 1962, Winchester Hospital has not constructed any new facilities nor has it significantly renovated any care or related facilities.

Not only is a period of 18 years a long time to have deferred facility improvement but, for many hospitals, the last twenty years have been a period of considerable capital investment. During much of this time, Winchester has exhaustively studied its facility needs and the alternatives available in satisfying these requirements with the conclusion that an early resolution is essential to continued community service. In the time devoted to studying the alternatives, one fact has been consistently recognized: The hospital's need for major site and facility improvement.

In order to bring Winchester Hospital up to contemporary functional and space standards, many departmental and service deficiencies must be corrected so that the hospital's 1985 facility program is as balanced and complete as possible.

Using calculations consistent with current regulatory planning criteria it has been determined that, by 1985, the hospital's service area will require the following acute care bed complement:

|------------------|------------|
| Medical surgical | 175 |
| Pediatrics | 18 |
| Obstetrics | 27 |
| Total | 220 |

In planning this projected bed count, the Hospital and its consultants have assessed the effects of the plans of other health care providers on these bed needs. These included the Lahey Clinic Medical Center, the Harvard Community Health Plan and the proposed consolidation of Choate Memorial and Symmes Hospitals.

Because of the absence of operational data, predicting the effects of Lahey's new 200-bed Burlington Facility on Winchester's 1985 forecast is difficult. While Winchester is a community hospital, the Lahey Clinic is a regional referral center. Lahey's new facility does not include pediatric or obstetrical acute care services. In the Brooks, Baptist and Deaconess hospitals, Lahey already occupies more than 200 medical — surgical beds and it has long been recognized that these are the hospitals most affected by the new Lahey Clinic Medical Center. It is Lahey's stated intention to close the Brooks Hospital and with Burlington the preferred referral site, to substantially reduce, if not entirely discontinue, admissions to the Baptist and Deaconess Hospitals. Thus, Lahey's new beds are more replacement than additional facilities.

In all likelihood, the operation of Lahey's new 200-bed complement will have little effect on Winchester Hospital and, conversely, it is unlikely that Winchester's acute care complement will appreciably condition Lahey's operation. While it is conceivable that Lahey's new emergency service, will generate some admissions otherwise attributable to Winchester and other community hospitals, these potentials cannot now be assessed as to the degree of impact or where the impact will occur. Lahey expects these effects to be confined to the area within a 3-mile radius of the Burlington site. Since Winchester Hospital is on the periphery of this radius, these effects will not be significant.

Although the intentions of the Harvard Community Health Plan are reasonably predictable, their actual effects upon the bed complements of Winchester or other area hospitals are also difficult to project. Prospective members of this or any health maintenance organization targeted for a particular community have no necessary correspondence with the primary or secondary service area populations of that community actually dependent upon a given hospital. Despite the fact that the Harvard Plan's acute care facility utilization rates are substantially below those of the criteria set by regulatory agencies, low target enrollments in those towns coinciding with Winchester Hospital's primary medical-surgical service area make it unlikely that this plan will significantly affect Winchester's 1985 forecasts.

To assess the potential effect of the Harvard Community Health Plan upon Winchester Hospital's 1985 acute bed complement of 175 medical-surgical beds, the Harvard Plan's target enrollments for each town in the Hospital's primary medical-surgical service area were studied. Applying calculation factors to determine the possible attrition attributable to Winchester by 1985, the resulting potential loss is 4.3 beds. In other words, if the Harvard Plan achieves its target enrollments, Winchester Hospital's 1985 needs might be reduced from 175 to 171 medical-surgical beds. However, given Winchester Hospital's increasing market penetration in 18 of the 20 towns in its service area, it is reasonable to expect that any attrition to Harvard Plan will be more than off-set.

Hospital Donates First Aid Kits

Winchester Hospital has donated ten first aid kits to the Winchester Soccer Club to be used on the ten fields where soccer is played in the town.

Patricia Skehan, R.N., community health education coordinator at Winchester Hospital recently presented the kits to William Donnellan, president of the Soccer Club.

Manchester's Memoir

"This book is largely a Marine's memoir, not a balanced history of the war with Japan," writes William Manchester in his stirring book, "Goodbye Darkness."

And what memories he has of all the battles on the different islands in the Pacific in which he fought! The first such battle was on Amika Ridge when one squad of twelve men were killed instantly, but Manchester was saved because he tripped over a communications wire and fell headlong into a large, muddy crater left by an earlier bombardment. He remembers that terrible night alone in the darkness.

The jungles of New Guinea were another scene of battle. He writes of that experience: "This is the kind of jungle I learned to fear and hate in my youth, a soggy miasma of disease — bearing insects, snakes, precipitous slopes, mire, swamps, heat, humidity, landslides of falling rock, and rushing rivers to cross, whose creatures include blood-sucking leeches with circles of tiny teeth, like lampreys, who feast on your anus and genitals. There is horror everywhere, everywhere, and angst." "And thirst, above all, thirst."

Manchester, in many of the Pacific battles such as Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Okinawa, travelling to see these sites as they are today and remembering says, "Those of us who fought in the Pacific believed we would be remembered, that schoolchildren would be told of our sacrifices and taught the names of our greatest battles. . . The truth is more ironic."

The Marines fought incredibly in the Pacific area of World War II. A 30 percent loss of men is considered to be the limit for engagement. In one area, the loss was 56 percent, or Iwo Jima — the Twenty-sixty Marines lost 76 percent, and on Okinawa, the Twenty-ninth lost 81 percent.

A book you will find you can't put down, a fantastic book, a remarkable memoir.

New Records: "Best of Maynard Ferguson and Opera Arias, sung by Luciano Pavarotti."

Teachers Approve New Pact, Receive 7 1/4 Percent Pay Hike

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

Winchester teachers yesterday approved a new two-year contract that gives them 7.25 percent pay increases each year and a specific recall procedure for teachers that are laid off.

The contract now awaits School Committee ratification at their next regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday night to officially end the stalemate that had teachers working with no contract since school began Sept. 3.

If the School Committee approves the pact, as expected, Town Meeting would then have to vote to fund the contract in November. Total cost of the new contract is $385,000.

"Moneywise it was a very good settlement," said Winchester Education Association (WEA) President Steve Gorrie, "particularly in light of what is happening (economically)."

School Committee member Constance Papas agreed that financially it was a "fair and equitable settlement, in line with the other settlements in town."

The other major change in the contract was the spelling out of the recall procedure, something Gorrie said the WEA had fought hard for.

Under the agreement, now the last teacher laid off will be the first called back (within the discipline called for). Before, Gorrie said, it was unknown what if any order was used to select which teachers were to be recalled.

Also, any laid off teacher offered a "suitable" (full-time basically) position must respond within 10 days or they waive their recall rights.

But if the teacher is offered a part-time position they can refuse it without jeopardizing their recall rights. In addition, if the first teacher recalled accepts a part-time position and a full-time issues that had been talked at in length, "had been reworded, had counter positions drawn up, but in the end were withdrawn."

He added that the percentage pay increase had not been agreed to until the last session that started Sunday, Sept. 21 and stretched into the early morning hours of Monday, Sept. 22 before a tentative agreement was reached.

Neither spokesman dared venture a guess on what would happen with the contract should Proposition 2.5 pass in the November referendum vote. School officials say $1.9 million of the school's $10 million budget would have to be slashed under 2.5.

"It's going to have to be handled at the statewide level," Papas said. "If 2.5 says that we have to cut almost two million from the budget then obviously something has got to give. We will have to lay off teachers and or change the teacher-pupil ratio."

"So we'll have to look to the state for guidance because if 2.5 passes we're going to have to violate something, either the law or the contract," she said.

was increased from 10 cents a mile to 18 cents a mile.

The 7.25 pay hike was across the board except for coaches and extracurricular instructors and is retroactive back to Sept. 1, 1980.

Coaches and extracurricular personnel received no increase on their stipend (their actual salary does increase the 7.25 percent) the first year of the contract but a 7.5 percent stipend hike the second year.

Also, special needs instructors will get a 50 cents raise per hour the first year to $8.50 and another 50 cents the following year to $9 per hour.

The major victory for the School Committee in the settlement was the preservation of the Reduction In Force (RIF) procedure used to lay off tenured teachers.

"The RIF language, the criteria used to apply the procedure remains the same," Papas said. "That was something the School Committee felt was very important."

Gorrie admitted that he wasn't totally thrilled with the RIF procedure remaining unchanged. "We're not happy with everything and I'm sure the School Committee will tell you they're not happy with everything either but it (concessions) was made in the spirit of the settlement," Gorrie said.

Both sides admitted that many issues were dropped at the end of the marathon mediating session with fact finder Jack Higgins in order to get the matter settled.

"Higgins spent a lot of time getting both sides to get down to the real issues," Gorrie said, adding that many position for which he or she is qualified becomes available, then that teacher would have first rights to that full-time position.

Other new benefits for the teachers included an increase in the longevity payment. After 15 years continuous service a teacher can announce his or her retirement and put in for longevity compensation. That compensation was increased from $750 to $800 the first year of the contract and $850 thereafter.

School Officials Predict 'Massive Layoffs' Under 2 1/2

A drastic reduction in programs and "massive layoffs" in the Winchester Public Schools will result if the controversial tax cutting measure, Proposition 2.5, passes in November, school officials claim.

"If people can get the facts then the logic of it in terms of the horror it will perpetuate on the communities will become clear. There will be services you just cannot give. People are going to be duped," said Superintendent of Schools William MacDonald.

According to estimates based on current budget figures, MacDonald said some $1.9 million out of a $10 million school budget would have to be slashed under 2.5.

The referendum question, number two on the ballot, is sponsored by the Citizens for Limited Taxation and would limit property taxes to 2.5 percent of fair market value. Communities would have to reduce their property taxes 15 percent each year until the 2.5 level is reached.

As local government officials have also maintained, MacDonald argued that there simply isn't enough fat in the Winchester school budget to make the cuts that would result from 2.5 without drastically reducing services and personnel.

School Committee member Sandra Rodgers guessed that as many as 60 teachers system wide would have to be laid off, either by dropping programs or increasing the size of the classrooms.

"Our budget is primarily comprised of salaries. Whenever you're making a large reduction we've always had to look at personal services," Rodgers said.

Although class size limits are written into the teacher contracts, MacDonald questioned what affects 2.5 would have on it.

"Which would override which?" MacDonald asked.

Parkhurst Neighbors Ponder Rent Proposal

Bartlett School head Norine Casey and Parkhurst School neighborhood representatives met recently to discuss the new Bartlett School proposal for renting the property.

One Parkhurst neighborhood representative, Barbara Pacetti, said she had met with Casey to discuss specifics of the deal and had since then been "getting a poll of the neighborhood."

"Basically, we like the idea," Pacetti said, adding that not all the neighborhood residents had been contacted yet.

Meanwhile, a meeting at the school was held yesterday to discuss proposals for single-family house lot developments. Any interested parties considering proposals of single-family house lots on the site must submit them by Oct. 24. Applications can be obtained at the Planning Board office.

Pacetti said after a neighborhood consensus is obtained on the Bartlett proposal, the Selectmen will then look at it before making their recommendation. The Alternative School Use Committee is expected to get in touch with neighborhood representatives soon.

The Bartlett proposal calls for a five year rental agreement with an option to buy at the end of the fifth year. The rent would increase by $2,000 each year starting at $16,000 and reaching $24,000 in the fifth year.

The Bartlett School, currently housed in the old Wyman School on Church street, had been paying $12,000 a year. It is in its third year of a five year lease at the Church street site.

If the Bartlett proposal is accepted by Town Meeting it would be effective Aug. 1, 1981. That would give Wyman neighborhood residents and town officials time to find an alternative use of the Wyman School.

Berndt Notifies Tenants Of Condo Plans

Five Hundred Parkview Apt. Tenants Affected By Conversion

By STEVEN AUSTIN

Residents of the Parkview Apartment Complex have been officially notified that owners will convert the 318-unit building into condominiums.

Approximately 500 tenants received that notification Thursday in a letter from Edward Berndt Jr. of Berndt Realty.

Winchester Selectmen will meet with tenants next Tuesday evening.

While Selectmen Edward F. O'Connell remains unconvinced "we're powerless" in the issue, Town Council Douglas Randall doesn't think there's much Selectmen can do in the way of aiding those apartment residents.

"I don't believe there's any action the town could take to help with this problem," Randall told Selectmen after board member Michael Saraco said he'd been contacted by residents at the complex.

O'Connell, on the other hand, remained unconvinced.

"I'm not convinced we're powerless," he said in response to Randall. "We are very limited because of a lack of rent control here."

Berndt said in an interview with The Star Monday, "We've been on record for four or five months" with plans for condo conversion."

Residents have until Oct. 21 to decide whether they will buy their units and remain at Parkview, Berndt said. Residents will be offered a 10 percent discount on the property until that date, he explained.

"After that," Berndt said, "we will go public." He said he expected "a minimum of 40 percent" of the sales of the units to be made to tenants.

He said a certain portion of the property would be sold to investors.

"We have given no notices to have tenants move as yet," Berndt said. "We expect there will be a three to six month period for relocation."

Tenants won't be asked to leave until their unit is sold, he said.

The price range of the condos runs from $30,000 to $69,000. Currently, rents at Parkview are set at $440 for a two-bedroom unit, $370 for a one-bedroom unit and $295 for a studio.

Condo fees, Berndt said, run from $118 for a two-bedroom unit to $75 for a one-bedroom to $50 for a studio.

That prices includes all utilities except telephone.

In a letter to The Star published today, Parkview tenant Pamela Hall said "present tenants are being forced to assume the cost of Berndt Realty's efforts to make the property appealing as an investment for prospective condominium buyers."

She pointed to a seven percent rent increase in June and a $17 charge, scheduled to go into effect next month as problem areas.

Of the seven percent June increase, Berndt said, "That was a normal rate increase for inflation and the cost of the building."

"We normally go up from seven to ten percent a year, usually in June," he said. "We raise rent in proportion to our expenses."

He said he believed the increase was "not a super load for anyone."

Berndt said the $17 increase set for November was to cover the expense of hiring a guard for the complex.

That cost, Berndt said, was split proportionally among tenants. That cost is $53,600. The guard is scheduled to begin work Oct. 15.

That cost includes a roving guard who will patrol the area from four to six hours in the evening.

Berndt said the costs of the guard house, swimming pool and a new fence weren't passed along to the tenants.

Tenant Hall's letter charged that the new fence provided the complex with only one access. This situation, the Hall letter said, would impede police and fire apparatus and does not supply an adequate service for in-coming and out-going traffic.

Berndt contended the one fence provided "for greater security at the complex."

In an interview Monday, Hall said there was no formal organization to fight conversion at the complex.

"There's really nothing to do," Hall said. "Everyone feels the town is so apathetic."

Local Man Presumed Dead In Accident

James Stowel Duffy, a 1980 Winchester High School graduate and UMass-Amherst freshman, is presumed to have drowned in a canoeing accident on Lake Norwich in Huntington, Massachusetts.

Jim was on an outing with two friends when the accident occurred. His friends survived when their boat overturned but Jim has been missing since Saturday. State police and scuba divers from the Springfield police department have been searching Lake Norwich since the accident occurred. Police spokesmen said yesterday that the search was continuing, but said the possibility was remote that he had survived.

At WHS, Jim had been active in student government as a member of the Student Advisory Council and the Drug and Alcohol Education Committee. He had also received two merit awards from the school. He was a pre-law student at UMass. (Obituary, page 30)

Both MacDonald and Rodgers emphasized that these estimated cuts were "purely a simulation" of what might transpire under 2.5.

"This is simply a simulation to show the people what the impact might be," Rodgers explained, adding however, "But these (figures) are not meant to be sensational. I have not tried to make it look worse than it is."

Other alternatives to the previously mentioned areas for potential cuts including elimination of the entire athletic program, which would allow retention of half the specialists. Also, additional school closings might be considered, but MacDonald added that was not the answer.

"We could close every elementary school without making the $1.9 million," MacDonald said.

One feature of 2.5 is the elimination of fiscal autonomy for the schools, a power possessed by the School Committee that is often resented by citizens. However, both MacDonald and Rodgers claimed that although they would hate to see school autonomy abolished, it would not have significant impact in Winchester.

"The School Committee has been responsive to the town's feelings," Rodgers said. "It's (school autonomy) always been in the background but we haven't had to use it."

But MacDonald said the elimination of autonomy could be disastrous in the future.

"In some communities it's a damn good thing. It protects the kids and it protects the parents who want to see their kid educated," MacDonald warned, adding that without it, "education is going to be left out there to those who may not give a damn."

Both school officials said publicity and information on 2.5 is what will be necessary if it is to be defeated on Nov. 4.

They maintained that people are starting to become more interested in it now, but anti-2.5 forces still had a long way to go.

"Three weeks ago I'd have said it would have passed by a 3-1 margin," MacDonald said. "But I'm starting to get

Lynch School Holds First Open House

On Oct. 2, Lynch Elementary School had its first Open House. Parents had a chance to meet with teachers and discuss the various aspects of their child's education and the changes that have taken place thus far.

Everyone at Lynch seems to be enjoying their new school and things seem to be running very smoothly. Parents found classrooms, library and staff in full swing.

Students have renewed old friendships and have met many new friends from Winchester as well as from many parts of the world. Communication is not too much of a problem for the students - their language is international!

McHugh To Study Increase In Parking Fees

Police Chief John McHugh will offer Selectmen his recommendations for across-the-board increases for parking fees.

Appearing before Selectmen Monday night, McHugh said Winchester's fine schedule was "very, very low" in comparison with surrounding towns and cities.

McHugh said the department issued approximately 10,000 traffic citations per year. Most of the parking citations issued, McHugh explained, are given in Winchester Center.

Selectmen asked McHugh to come up with an across-the-board recommendation for increasing these fees. If adopted, those new fees are expected to take effect in January of next year.

McHugh, in discussing areas of both problems and progress, told Selectmen the department was "beset with radio problems."

Since joining the Northeastern Municipal Law Enforcement Council, a 22-community member agency which used federal funds to buy the radio system currently in use, Winchester's radio system has had its problems, McHugh said.

The radio equipment, McHugh said, performed poorly.

He pointed to a report made earlier calling for an upgrading of the radio system.

Other problems facing the department live where the police work.

The department's building is, in McHugh's words, "old, antiquated and falling down."

BayBank Winchester Trust held the formal opening of its new branch at 275 Cambridge st., Winchester on Sept. 8. Honored guests who assisted with the ribbon cutting ceremony included: (left to right) front row: Charles L. Raffin, Jr. and Henry F. Quill, BayBank Winchester Trust Directors; Jean Cosgrove, Bank Manager; David A. Klein, Director; Robert J. Zirkel, President; Joseph Vaccaro, Contractor; and Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, Representative. Back row: Antonio J. Tambone, James F. McDonough, John S. Morgan, Jr., and Wilfred J. Smyly, Jr., BayBank Winchester Trust Directors; Samuel J. Rotondi, State Senator; and Wade M. Welch, Chairman of the Winchester Board of Selectmen.

Recommendation Expected Tuesday

The committee considering the re-use of the Washington School has narrowed the field of developers to four and will make a final recommendation to Selectmen Tuesday.

The final four developers include the Niles Company Inc., E.R. Racek Associates of Boston, who were interviewed by the School Re-use Committee Tuesday evening, and American Properties Team Inc. and the Corman Company, both of whom were interviewed Wednesday evening.

Carolyn Ward, a member of the re-use committee, said the a recommendation would be made to Selectmen Tuesday evening.

Good looking, super efficient thermal shades seal on all four sides

Stop the Great Heat Escape!

Window Quilt™ insulated shades cut window heat loss up to 79%

If you're serious about home heating efficiency, you already know that far more heat escapes through windows than walls, roof or doors. You can pack your walls with thick insulation, install tight-fitting storms or double glazing. Even so, you'll most likely lose more than half your precious winter heat through your windows.

What's the answer?

Window Quilt™. This multi-layered thermal shade can eliminate up to 79% of winter heat loss through single-glazed windows, as much as 66% through double-paned glass. In your house, Window Quilts probably will pay for themselves well within 5 years.

Window Quilts fit tightly on all four sides, sealing warm air in and cold air out. They're easy to install and operate, easy to live with, far more efficient than ordinary shades or insulated drapes.

- Fit almost any size window, even 8" wide sliders
- More than twice as effective as storms, better than 4 glazings (R value 4.25)
- In snow country, with double glazing one sq. ft. saves 1 gal. oil per year. Payback is 2-5 years
- Helps keep summer heat out — saves on air conditioning
- Now available in 4 decorator colors: bone white, cloud white, navy and camel.

The secret of Window Quilt's amazing efficiency: A thin foil layer is sandwiched between layers of insulating fiberfill with polyester covers, all quilted by ultra-sonic stitching.

Hospital Outlines Goals

Editor's Note: The following is the fourth in a series of articles submitted by Winchester Hospital on construction plans at the Highland Avenue facility.

The primary concern of Winchester Hospital is the quality of its community service and promoting the general health of this community is the mission of the corporation.

Its goals are:

To provide emergency, ambulatory and acute care, public and professional education services of the highest medical standards at reasonable cost; and to participate in a comprehensive delivery system through associations with and by referrals to other health care providers.

Evaluating the quality, accessibility, availability, continuity and the costs of the Hospital's care and training services is a continuous planning responsibility of its Board of Directors. The Board's objectives in planning the project proposed in this application for renovation and new construction are to assure that:

—It reflects the Hospital's role in the total delivery system;

—Its programs respond to community needs;

—Its required resources are reasonable and affordable

The proposed project has been structured in conformance with these directives. The project recognizes the Hospital's role as a community hospital in providing primary and secondary patient care as well as patient and technical training programs. Rather than increasing the intensity of services, this project concentrates on priority improvements that will improve existing services. This project does not introduce new services; instead, it is intended to prevent the deterioration of current programs.

By filling needs that have been long deferred, this project will improve both care and training. The Hospital recognizes its obligation to retain qualified staff and provide satisfactory facilities. In addition this project reflects the correlation between staff and facilities. More efficient facilities promote more efficient health care delivery; patient service improves as qualified staff are retained and attracted, as current and budgeted positions are better accommodated, as adequate space allocations and more appropriate functional relationships are established, and as congestion and waiting time are reduced.

The availability of acute care at Winchester will be maintained as the number of patient beds proportionate to the documented community need, is assured. In this regard, this project's compatibility with the proposed consolidation of Choate Memorial and Symmes Hospitals is emphatic: with the increased medical-surgical bed complement the Hospital has proposed, the bed reductions resulting from that consolidation would restrict access to and limit the availability of inpatient services within the communities served by the three hospitals.

Primary care will also improve. This project emphasizes the emergency, ambulatory, and outpatient needs of our diagnostic, treatment and ambulatory services. By providing observation and holding facilities within the emergency room, we will assure appropriate patient care and proper use of the facilities. Expanding our surgical day care program will permit more ambulatory surgical procedures at correspondingly lower cost. The proposed relocation of physical, occupational and speech therapies, social services, and cancer treatment programs within the Hospital, rather than apart from it, will integrate outpatient and inpatient services.

Because health education and training programs for the community, for patients and for the technical and professional staffs also contribute to the quality of its services, the Hospital has also included provisions for these in this project application.

The Hospital participates in over twenty hospital, medical center, community college and university programs. In 1979, we expanded our education department to provide instructors and coordinators for community health education programs. These programs, involving members of our staff include: nutrition, prepared childbirth, baby care and post-partum courses, emergency medical technology, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, stress, hypertension, breast self-examinations, mastectomy support, back and neck pain. Programs in progress or in the planning stage include: post-cardiac rehabilitation, sports injuries, adolescent and adult lecture series, Winchester Public Schools Human Growth and Development Series support, bimonthly health education day for the Reading community, cardiac stress testing for local police and fire personnel and a first aid course for high school teachers.

Failure to address the needs of these varied groups would be detrimental to many community and institutional interests. By integrating the educational facilities within the Hospital, we recognize the interdependence of care and training as well as the need to provide permanent facilities to replace the temporary use of the Washington School.

The Planning Committee and our consultants have compared the estimated capital cost of this project with similar findings of prior studies to assure that the resources required conform to the Corporation's objectives of reasonable expense and financial feasibility. As a result, the anticipated range of capital expenditure of this project is consistent with all previous independent consultant estimates of the costs of our site and facility needs. In order to minimize the costs, maximum use of existing facilities is planned; one-third of the project is accommodated in renovated, rather than new, hospital space.

Health Center Offers Programs

Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association, Inc. begins its community education program on Oct. 29 with a course called "Managing Your Child's Behavior."

Taught by Lynn Courtney, a parent and member of the mental health center's Behavioral Services Team, the course will help parents to teach their children appropriate behaviors, to prevent behavior problems and to enhance the parent-child relationship.

The ten week course will be held on Wednesday evenings at 8:15 p.m. at 196 Bedford St. Number of participants in the course will be limited. Call Lynn Courtney at 541-0970 to register for the sessions.

The Mystic Valley Mental Health Center's Community Education Series will also offer a two-session course on "A Self-Assessment in Career Planning in November and an eight-week course on "How to Get Along With Your Teenager" in March. For information about these programs call Nancy Langman-Dorwart at 861-0890.

Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association, Inc. is a private, non-profit community mental health center offering services to people who live and work in Arlington, Lexington, Burlington, Woburn, Winchester and Wilmington.

Two Winchester young people were among 40 from Grace Chapel, Lexington, who spent the summer in servicelated projects. Cheryl Josephson and Paul Johansson were with a team that went to Newark, N.J.

Hospital Jubilee Ball On Nov. 7

The Friends of Winchester Hospital extend an invitation to the entire hospital community to join them at their "Jubilee Ball" to be held Friday, Nov. 7, at the Great Hall in the Fanuel Hall Market-place.

The evening will begin at 8:30 p.m. with music provided by the Bay Club's Larry Cooper orchestra.

Cost of tickets is $11.00 per person and includes snacks, coffee and desserts. A black tie optional. Many local merchants have donated several lovely items which will be given away during the course of the evening.

This annual event, the major fund raiser for the Friends, allows them to make a substantial donation to the hospital each year.

Mrs. Richard Malatesta is chairperson for the Ball.

Other committee members are Mrs. Richard Worchol, Mrs. George Neuner and Mrs. Stanley Reich, Invitations; Mrs. William Merry, Decorations; Donations, Mrs. Joseph O'Connor; Mrs. Richard Ashley, Patrons; Publicity, Mrs. John Bernard and Mrs. James Mennucci.

Tickets may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Richard Malatesta, 14 Canterbury road, Winchester, or Mrs. Richard Worchol, 9 Sheffield road, Wakefield.

Members of the "Jubilee Ball" committee recently visited Fanuel Hall recently to finalize plans for the Ball which will be held Nov. 7. They are, L. to R. Mrs. George Neuner, Invitations, Mrs. Richard Malatesta, Chairperson, Mrs. Richard Worchol, Invitations, Mrs.

James Mennucci, Publicity and Mrs. William Merry, Decorations. Missing from the group were Mrs. Joseph O'Connor, Donations, Mrs. Richard Ashley, Patrons, and Mrs. Stanley Reich, Invitations, and Mrs. John Bernard, Publicity.

Badminton Club Kicks Off Season

Last Thursday night, at the McCall Junior High School gym, the Winchester Badminton Club led by Whit Gray and Al Kajander began the 1980-1981 season.

Also participating were Tom Dunn, Bob and Stella Gallant, Parker Gray and twenty other players. A few singles games, many doubles and mixed doubles matches and the spirited play indicates that the club and its members can look forward to a season of great fun and exercise.

The Winchester Badminton Club meets almost every Tuesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the McCall Junior High and invites players interested to attend.

Questions about the club and its activities can be answered by calling Whit Gray at 729-0582, Bob Gallant at 729-4672, Tom Dunn at 729-0604, or Ray Jenkins at 729-0807.

Board Orders Separation Of Rangeley Ridge Dogs

Following a recommendation by Dog Officer Nick Molea, Selectmen voted Monday night to remove one of two dogs from a Rangeley Ridge road residence after a restraining order asking that the dogs be confined was violated.

That decision to remove one of the animals came at a public hearing in which Molea and Barbara Jackins, attorney for the dogs' owners appeared.

Selectmen issued a restraining order Aug. 19 following complaints from residents in the area which required the dogs, two Sheppards, to be confined.

Molea testified Monday night that one of the dogs escaped Sept. 16. While they weren't called upon to speak, four residents from the area did attend the public hearing.

Molea said $100 worth of fines levied against the dog owners, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reinold, had been paid.

The Dog Officer recommended that the dogs, one male and one female, be split up since the owners were, in his words "irresponsible dog owners."

"They (the owners) can probably control one dog," Molea explained, "but not two."

Molea also said he believed the dogs could be vicious if "they were protecting their property."

In agreeing with Molea, Selectman Edward F. O'Connell said, following a contention by the Reinold's attorney that the dog had only barked when it escaped rather than attacked Molea, "I'm not concerned if the dog barked or not. I'm concerned that it leaves the property which by order of this board it was confined."

Jackins contended that, under the law, the Sept. 16 escape of the dog constituted a first offense, punishable by a $25 fine.

Selectmen Chairman Wade Welch dismissed that contention.

Prior to the motion to separate the dogs, moving one of them outside Winchester, Molea recommended the male be removed.

Molea said the Reinolds had 10 days in which to appeal the board's decision.

WHS Parents Set Children's Movie At Auditorium

The Winchester High School Parent Faculty Assoc. will present the children's movie, "A Whale of a Tale," on Friday Oct. 24 at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday afternoon Oct. 25 at 1:00 p.m.

The film will be shown at the high school auditorium.

Tickets can be purchased at the Winchester Elementary Schools on Tuesday the week before the performances and at the door.

Youth Dies After Accident On Pierpont Road

A sixteen-year-old Winchester youth injured in an accident on Pierpont road Sept. 19 died Friday in Massachusetts General Hospital as a result of those injuries.

Lidia Mongiello of 20 Dennett road was transferred to Mass General following an accident in which she struck her head while attempting to jump onto the rear bumper of a vehicle driven by John J. Monteith Jr., 17, of 22 Clematis street.

Police reports said Monteith stopped his car on Pierpont road to check the headlights. Monteith, Mongiello, Monteith's sister Katie and Ellen Connelly of 21 Laurel Hill lane were in the 1974 Volkswagen station wagon at the time of the accident.

According to police report Mongiello left the car when Monteith did. Monteith realized he was on the wrong side of the road and re-entered the car to move it. Apparently, Mongiello attempted to jump on to the rear of the car.

Winchester Police said the investigation into the accident was continuing.

THE WINCHESTER STAR

Serving The Community For 100 Years

Mary Cresse: Andy, Opie And Aunt Bee In Winchester

1:30! I scrambled out of sixth period, elbowed my way through the masses of people in the hallway, grabbed my books, forgot my coat and raced for the 1:41 B&M to Boston. Ran by the pond, past Purity Supreme, and a lady warning "don't run, dear. You'll get hit by a car," across the rotary, up the ramp, and—

I stopped.
I glanced at the church clock and couldn't help but notice how a crisp fall day could transform a dull town common into simple beauty.

The soft white of the Congregational Church set a harmonious contrast to the blue sky and provided a centerpiece for the table of trees, walkways and benches placed upon a green carpet of mothers pushing baby carriages, students walking home from school and senior citizens chatting in the sun.

Uh, oh, I thought, I feel an attack of small town sugary-sweetness coming on.

I looked to the left and watched people calmly going about their business; going to the bank, to the drugstore, and I half-expected Andy, Opie, and Aunt Bea to stroll through the Common on their way home to have a piece of apple pie and a glass of milk.

The thought was so close to being real it was almost laughable.

I recalled snatches of conversation I had heard that day: "I can't wait to get out of here," "Winchester is so boring," and "I'm going away to school, definitely."

Yes, I echoed those very same sentiments with the very same enthusiasm my peers did. But right then, I didn't mean what I said. I wanted to stay in high school forever, to lazily walk home from school, maybe watch a little TV, see the family at dinner, and retire in my own room, my own little world, in my own Winchester. My safe little suburb.

I wouldn't have to worry about vandals, riots, loud noises or anything else uncommon to a "bedroom community." Problems in Boston could be confined to the Globe, and I could return to Winchester anytime I wanted to.

But, admittedly, Winchester can get boring, it can drive a person crazy sometimes, and it would be refreshing to go away to school and extricate oneself from a small town perspective. And many graduates do go away to school. But how many go far, far away? How long does it take to get to UNH? UMass? A couple of hours, maybe? Away, yes, but close enough to touch home. And I suppose that a person who lives in a different environment finds coming back to Winchester comforting. Notice how many graduates seem to find the time to come home for the weekend. Many are the very same people who vowed to stay away from "Mayberry, R.F.D."

Thinking of all this, I was then somewhat anxious about going away to college. How many towns could I think of with almost Disneyesque, tree-lined streets with well-kept houses, and small town characteristics such as very little vandalism and crime? I wasn't about to give that up easily. And what if I came back and found that something had changed, people I cared about had gone and nobody remembered things I remembered? No, as boring and nerve-racking Winchester might be, I'll stick with it, thank you. Winchester belongs to that category of things one doesn't miss until it is taken away.

Excuse me, I usually don't send through a barrage of candycoated comments. I enjoyed thinking about my town, though. And, after all, a bit of sticky sweetness always does a person good.

I looked up at the church clock again.
I had missed the 1:41.
And I didn't care.

Nuclear Support

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In last week's Star, I read that there will be an item on the ballot which calls for a moratorium on nuclear plant construction and licensing in favor of so-called renewable resources and hydroelectric power.

As an Engineer involved in all types of power plant construction including hydro-electric, solar, co-generation, coal and nuclear, I strongly recommend the voters of Winchester reject this ill-conceived ballot question.

First of all, in terms of bringing new power plants on line, we are already in 1992. Your government and mine has managed to increase virtually all plant construction from a nominal 5 years in the mid-1960's to 12 years in our present time. This question can only prolong an already intolerable situation.

Secondly, to quote Paul Tsongas' Massachusetts Plan: "Given our State's dependence on oil for electric generation, we must be prepared in the late 1980's to accept additional nuclear plants", and, to quote another portion of his plan: "Every dollar spent on oil, gas and coal is a dollar exported from our State. The greater the use of these fossil fuels the greater will be the drain on our Capital."

Massachusetts is currently 80 per cent dependent on oil for energy, and 80 per cent of that is imported. A large portion is imported from the Middle East through the Straits of Hormuz - the same Straits President Carter is willing to send troops to, to maintain passage.

We must rapidly switch from this imported oil to other sources of energy that do not require the commitment of our sons and our neighbors sons to foreign combat.

Nuclear power is a primary means of reducing our reliance on the foreign oil.

Do not let the misguided and irrational people, who have not comprehended the nuclear option and its alternatives, use this ballot question to convince our legislators we are not supportive of the safest form of electrical energy generation and the only one we can reasonably afford.

Condominiums

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Once again I would like to bring to your attention some serious concerns that face the tenants of Parkview Apartments.

As of this date, the residents of the building have not been officially notified of Berndt Realty's plans for condominium conversion. The prolonged uncertainty over the future of rental housing at Parkview is of great concern especially to all those who have no alternative housing opportunities in view. Rumors abound and bits of information are given orally from the rental office. Though conversion is quite certain in the near future, new tenants tell me that they were not informed of these plans.

The present tenants are being forced to assume the cost of Berndt Realty's efforts to make the property appealing as an investment for prospective condominium buyers. This past June there was a 7 percent rent increase and as of this November there will be an additional $17 rent increase. The latter charge is attributed to greatly improved security that is nonexistent at the moment. The improvements in the works at Parkview are intended for the future condominium buyers, not for the current tenants who are footing the bill.

Berndt Realty has every right to convert Parkview to condominiums but common decency and truthfulness, with regard to those most affected and inconvenienced, is warranted.

Manipulation and deception of present Parkview residents is poor business practice and negative public relations. Finally there is cause for concern with regard to the new chain link fence now surrounding the Parkview property. There is only one means of access and egress open for use. The other existing gate has been closed and locked. Under ordinary circumstances this is a concern since one gate is inadequate in servicing the traffic coming and going from 319 apartments. In a fire emergency, if the approximate 500 residents of Parkview had to evacuate the building and grounds, one gate would not enable tenants to leave safely. It would also impede police and fire apparatus. I hope the Winchester Police and Fire Departments will give this situation their attention.

Letters Asked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Please forgive me for taking up your valuable time. I am a teacher of high school in Seoul, Korea. In my school there are many students who want to correspond with your people in English. I am writing with the hope you would help them get in touch with young people in your country.

I am one of the English teachers in a high school which has about 1,500 students. Their ages range from 13-18. They attend junior and senior high school. Pupils have five or six English classes a week and are very eager to brush-up on their English skills through correspondence.

I think this kind of direct communication between friends of both countries will help both groups learn about each other's country. I also think they might have fun swapping items from their hobby collections.

I am sure each of them will be the faithful friends of anyone who writes them. It would be appreciated if their new friends would kindly write about themselves, including age, sex and hobbies.

I sincerely hope you will try to publish my name and address in your newspaper. We will anxiously wait for letters from your country. Thank you so much for your time and kind consideration.

Distortion?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Proponents of the ballot question calling for a moratorium on nuclear plant construction and licensing use as their rationale, there is a 35 percent excess electrical generating capacity in New England. This is a prime example of how those, intent on one purpose to the exclusion of reason, can distort the facts for their aims.

First of all it is necessary to maintain an excess of 20 percent excess capacity to allow for routine maintenance and unforeseen shutdowns. That really leaves a 15 percent excess using their figures.

It now takes 12 years to build a nuclear plant and from eight to ten for a fossil. Electrical usage is still growing at 2.5 percent per year vs. 7 percent a few years ago. At that rate of load growth we will use up the 15 percent excess in about 6 years. To meet the loads required in 1986 we should have started six years ago to build Pilgrim 2, but we didn't thanks to the obstructionists, and short falls of electricity are predicted for the mid to late 80's.

Police Questioned

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Our enjoyment of Medford's marvelous 350 Birthday Parade was lessened by a member of the Winchester Police Department.

The Winchester Police contingent was led by an officer in a police car. In the car were three children giving away tiny American flags. To our left, three white children asked for and received some flags; to our right, two black children asked and were refused. Another youngster from our left went to the car and received another flag, while, on the other side of the street, two other youngsters were receiving flags. When the black children saw this, they asked again and were refused a second time.

One member of our group, Russell Slagle, told the black youngsters to try again, but they were reluctant. Slagle then went to the car to ask for flags for the black children. The officer told him that there were not enough flags to go around. Slagle pointed out to the officer that he had given away some more flags after he had refused the black youngsters' requests. The officer did not respond.

A second member of our group, Bernard Howard, went up to the police car and told the officer that he should not be proud of himself and that he should represent his city better. As Howard walked away, the officer said: "I'm proud of the flag."

We feel the implication is clear. This officer was representing not only the police department, but also the town of Winchester. We are sure this is not how the people of Winchester wish to be represented.

Sincerely,

Bernard Howard
Russell Slagle

Editor's Note: In responding to this letter, Bill Nash, the Winchester Police officer behind the wheel during the parade said, "Color was never involved."

Nash said he had only 50 flags and had instructed the children giving them out to hand out only seven or eight at each stop. He said he gave the flags only to younger children.

The incident occurred early in the parade. Nash said the black youngsters involved were "fifteen or sixteen" years old. He said he refused flags to smaller children after the black youths were denied. "We only had so many flags," Nash said. "We just didn't have it (flags)," he said.

West Declines?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In years to come, historians will look back on the 1980 U.S. Presidential election and a knowledge that it was either a turning point or a point of no return in the decline and fall of the U.S. and the West.

While the candidates are discussing trivia and the media is concentrating on Reagan's alleged misstatements, the rest of the free world is watching grimly to see if the U.S. electorate has the guts and discernment to elect a strong leader who will stand up to the Soviet Union.

Let's consider Carter's record in this regard.

1) Carter gave away the Panama Canal to a pro-Cuban, pro-Soviet Panamanian dictator, against the overwhelming wishes of the U.S. people and military and paid Tarrjios billions of dollars to take over the property.

2) The Carter administration helped overthrow the pro-western Shah of Iran by attacking him for "human rights" violations by forcing him to make major concessions to the Khomeinists and Marxist revolutionaries, by forcing the Shah to abdicate, and pressuring his military to lay down their arms and surrender to the Khomeinists.

3) The Carter Administration helped overthrow the pro-American government of Nicaragua by teaming up with the Soviets and Cubans to place the Communist Sandanistas in power and subsequently supplying $75 million in U.S. aid and support for the new communist government. The late President Somoza (murdered on 9-17-80) said in his memoirs entitled "Nicaragua Betrayed," that the Carter Administration cut all arms supplies to his regime and supplied tremendous diplomatic, financial, and arms aid to the communists, and that Carter, the Soviets and the Cubans had placed the communists in power. In July, Carter sent U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry to Nicaragua to help celebrate the one year anniversary of the Communist Sandanista take over.

4) The Carter Administration supported the Pro-Soviet "Patriotic" front in its rise to power to Rhodesia. Carter denied recognition of the lifting of sanctions (as promised by Kissinger) to the Pro-western governments of Ian Smith (White) and Bishop Muzorewa (black) while giving diplomatic and financial aid to the communist patriotic front and even wine and dined its Marxist terrorist co-leader Josiah Nkomo in the White House. Carter immediately recognized the new Pro-soviet communist govern-

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A number of Winchester residents have expressed their concern to us that the Locatelli Block retain its exterior integrity, and not suffer further assaults to its unified facade as occurred during the renovations made for the Cambridgeport Savings Bank.

That type of plan, which called for the covering over of architectural detail inherent to the essential character of the entire block, was done with no malice; yet it stands counter-productive to what many residents would like to point to with pride in the revitalized Winchester Center that lies ahead; that is, emphasis on keeping what we already have, recognizing our period architecture for what it is, and using it to unify the streetscape, not chopping it up to suit each individual storefront without due regard to the overall character of the block.

Currently, Brigham's is remodeling the exterior of the former Bolton's men's store and will move there from its present location sometime this month. In the absence of any esthetic requirements or guidance by any town departments, the town must trust that its merchants present themselves in the good taste due a downtown that may one day be on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Historical Commission feels that trust is not enough. The town is in need of an architectural review board or design review board to whom those who are remodeling could turn.

Such a board was considered by town meeting seven or eight years ago and never came about. The Historical Commission feels that clear-cut guidelines from a group representing merchant, architectural and civic interests would be welcomed. In today's climate of anticipated revitalization, so many of us desire a center that people are drawn to because of its attractiveness.

The Historical Commission hopes that townspeople who care about preserving the character of the prominent buildings of Winchester as well as improving them will voice their concerns to the Chamber of Commerce and the town's elected officials.

ment of Robert Mugabe, lifted sanctions and poured in financial aid.

The list is endless; the Carter administration has allowed a Soviet build-up in Cuba including troops, migs, Bear Bombers, submarines and powerful spy electronic installations. Carter has authorized massive amounts of high technology, computers, grain sales and financing to Russia, Red China, Poland, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Romania and other communist bloc nations, all on credit of $80 billion. Carter has pushed through the delivery of Boeing 727's, 747's and C-130 aircraft to the radical pro-soviet, Libyan state of Col. Khadafi, the headquarters of international terrorism, etc., etc., etc.

Senator Barry Goldwater in his new book "With No Apologies" wrote, "If the American people do not penetrate the fog of propaganda which has led us to our present position of military weakness, if we don't discard the policy of appeasement and accommodation which has controlled our foreign policy since the end of World War II, the days of the Republic are numbered....We have arrived at our present position of peril in the world and at home because our leaders have refused to tell us the truth....Unless we who profess to believe in freedom wake up, the world is headed for a period of slavery....An aroused America, an informed America can overcome the perils of the present moment and rescue freedom for our nation and the world....We will have the opportunity in 1980!"

Anastasio Somoza stated in his book, "When the United States (Carter) assumes leadership, in a conspiratorial manner, to annihilate anti-communist nations, I believe it is my duty to speak out." He said that he was "firmly convinced" that Carter is leading the free world into a cataclysmic political eclipse which will bring darkness to free peoples everywhere."

U.S. foreign and defense policies are the issues in this Presidential election. If the American people understood this issue, they would vote Carter out of office by a landslide and demand a Congressional investigation of his pro-communist foreign policy. Carter and the leftist liberal U.S. media will do everything possible to obscure this issue.

Sir John Harington said it, "Treason doth never prosper, what's the reason? For if it doth prosper, none dare call it treason."

Letter Policy Deadline: 4 p.m. Monday Length: 250 Words

What 2½ Would Do In Winchester

Editor's Note: The following is the first in a series of four articles on Proposition 2.5 submitted by the Winchester League of Women Voters.

Proposition 2½, Question 2 on the Nov. 4 ballot, is "double cap" legislation which does two major things; limit the taxes levied to 2½ percent of "full and fair market value," and limits the yearly increase of that levy to 2½ percent of the previous year's levy, all this assuming that each city and town has reached the 2½ percent base levy in the first place.

All communities must reach the 2½ percent limit by 15 percent levy reductions per year starting immediately.

Auto excise taxes will be cut immediately to $25 per thousand evaluation from the present $88 amount. Finally, renters may deduct 50 percent of their rent payments from their taxable income.

What will this legislation mean to Massachusetts and Winchester, should it pass next month?

In 1980, Massachusetts statewide property taxes produced about $3 billion. With Prop. 2½, the first year loss in revenue will be approximately $383 million and another $127 million in auto excise tax.

Massachusetts has no surplus funds with which to "bail out" localities strapped by the provisions of this law.

What does Winchester face in lost revenue and how can the gap be closed?

Winchester faces revenue losses of approximately $3 million - $175,000 in the first year alone in reduced auto excise tax returned to our town. Where does our money go and from where must we trim money to meet the revenue loss?

Out of our $20 million budget, over 30 percent must be paid out for "fixed" costs; i.e. bonded indebtedness, workmen's compensation, MBTA costs, mandated state programs such as Ch. 822 in our schools.

Our local property taxes do not pay welfare and medicare costs so that savings in these areas will have no effect on the impact of 2½.

The other two-thirds of our budget pays for our schools, police and fire departments, the Council on Aging, parks and recreation, library, health and safety, etc.

What can we do?

We can charge higher rates for our water for instance, but not more than the actual cost. We can cut out programs and personnel, but must continue to pay workmen's compensation and pensions. We can cut school budgets enormously because autonomy for our school committee will be repealed under this law.

We cannot override the law on a local level unless a special or general election is called.

We cannot apply increased revenue from business or home building growth to services; such new income can only be applied to reducing taxes.

Library Desk Knows All

Many residents of Winchester may not be aware of the wide range of information available to them at their Public Library's reference and information desk.

Last year, nearly 15,000 queries were answered, covering such diverse topics as whether the library owned a particular book, the date of the full moon in April 1965 and a request for the name of the "Big Eight" accounting firms.

Basic questions such as the correct spelling of a word or the location of a place or what time it is in London can be answered over the telephone. Need to know the address of a business firm? Our business directories will give that information.

Unusual questions are a challenge. Recently, the librarian was asked to find the epitaph for a certain Mr. Pease and we found it! "Pease isn't here, there's only the pod; Pease shelled out and went to God."

A trained reference librarian is always on duty and happy to assist you. Come to the Reference and Information Desk, or call the Library at 729-3770.

Also good to know about is the long-term loan privilege, which allows patrons to borrow books for three months. Many of the older books in the collection which are not in great demand can be borrowed for a three-month period. Ask at the Circulation desk.

Have you picked up your discount tickets to the Boston Globe Book Festival? They're available at the Circulation Desk.

If your group or organization would like to hold meetings in a comfortable and attractive atmosphere, why not inquire about the Library Meeting Room? This room has a seating capacity of 60 and can be used for showing films and slides as well. There is no charge if the meeting room is used during library open hours.

All meetings must be open meetings and no admission charges may be made.

If you are interested, please call the office (729-3770) at least one week in advance to reserve the time you'd like to use this facility.

Bloodmobile

At St. Eulalia's

On Oct. 14

"Blood is needed every day," said Mrs. Carey, chairman of the St. Eulalia Blood Drive committee, "please make next Tuesday, Oct. 14 your day to give blood." The Red Cross mobile unit will be at the parish hall on Ridge street from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The support of St. Eulalia's parishioners has always been generous. I would hope that everyone who made the spring drive would be able to make this one. The Red Cross also has a very great need for 0 positive donors at this time. Reserves of this type were seriously depleted over the last several weekends by emergency needs in Boston. Complicating this is the fact that the majority of patients who need blood are type 0, and even those who aren't, use it. Type 0, you see, can be used safely in an emergency when there isn't time to type the person's blood. Finally, there are more people who need type 0 than there are type 0 donors. Nearly half the population has type 0 but less than three percent of those people are regular donors. Help us help the Red Cross meet this on-going need," she said.

All types of donors, of course, are welcome. For more information or if you have any questions about donating, call the Red Cross at 729-2300. Donors must be between 17 and 66, weigh over 110 pounds, never had hepatitis, and be feeling well on the day they plan to donate. Doesn't that fit you?

Band Performs In Parade

On Sept. 28 the Winchester High School Band, Cheerleaders, Tumblers and Police Color guard took part in Medford's 350 celebration. The units were all judged and Winchester scored well.

Winchester Wins First Place Award

The band's percussion section took a first place out of all the bands participating.

The tumblers came in first. Their marching and arm movements to the bands music were seen for the first time.

Drum Majors finished second. The Police Color Guard placed first as a non-musical unit. The bands were judged over all with first place going to Portsmouth, N.H.

Winchester has won a first place award for the best nonband unit in Medford's 350th Parade.

Police Chief John Mellugh received a letter announcing the award Tuesday.

The letter said Winchester's first place award "reflects the professionalism of the men involved."

WISBA Reception Tonight

Hundreds of people from Winchester will assemble this evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall to celebrate the success of the campaign to obtain new uniforms for the new Winchester High School Band.

The WISBA champagne reception culminates the efforts of many people who recognize the unique role the high school Band plays in the community, and who have committed themselves in one way or another to encourage these young people of Winchester by assuring that the band has sufficient uniforms for all of its activities.

More than one year ago this effort was begun by calling to the attention of the School Committee the fact that the band would increase in numbers this year by more than 50 percent, largely because of the new four-year high school. Weeks of negotiations with the School Committee finally resulted in a $16,900 budget line item to purchase 97 new uniforms.

Recognizing the many problems of a band without enough uniforms, the Friends of the Winchester Music Department committed to purchase the additional 63 uniforms, at a total cost of $11,000. They undertook the WISBA project in the last few weeks to raise the necessary funds.

According to Miriam Reid and Loretta Pharo, co-chairpersons for this reception, "The enthusiasm we have felt all over town for this project has been inspiring in itself. Many people who don't even have children in the school system have come to the aid of the Band."

"But that's the way it should be," Mrs. Reid pointed out at the final meeting of the WISBA Committee on Sunday, "because the efforts and influence of the Band extend well beyond the school."

In addition to ticket sales for the WISBA event by more than 50 people, the committee solicited the support of Patrons and Sponsors to assure the success of the campaign.

Reporting on this aspect of the fundraising, Mrs. Pharo noted, "Then we discovered individuals, groups, and businesses who were interested in contributing more than either of these categories. We have called these people our 'Top Brass', and their leadership has been very important."

At the champagne reception, noted composer and conductor Newton Wayland will lead the Band in the first part of a brief performance. Wayland is best known among the young people of Winchester as the musical director of the Adventures in Music programs.

The AIM concert series tickets are now on sale in the elementary schools, and the group looks forward to a very successful year on behalf of the elementary school students. Wayland will rehearse with the Band in a two-hour workshop before the reception, making this occasion a learning experience for the Band, as well as a performance.

Following Wayland, Priscilla Miller, Winchester High School Band Director, leads her students in the concluding numbers of the program.

Many people are making hors d'oeuvres for the reception and businesses have donated other foods and champagne.

Hall decorations have been donated, printing has been provided, and many important services are covered by interested businesses.

Cheerleaders, Tumblettes, and Student Union members from the high school will be on hand to serve the food.

The WISBA committee reports tickets will be on sale at the door.

Mrs. Mary Traina is in charge of decorations at a benefit today for the New England Medical Center Hospital. The benefit is sponsored by the Wilson-Iannessa Foundation.

Jaycee Women Slate Drive For Membership

Winchester Jaycee Women will be holding their annual membership meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 15, at the home of Robin Shannon, Director of Membership.

There will be a brief business meeting, followed by a demonstration by an esthetician of Elizabeth Grady Face First.

Esthetics is the European approach to skin health care. An esthetician is an intensely trained professional in skin health care and is certified by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Elizabeth Grady Face First is the first, and largest, in-depth school of esthetics in New England.

The meeting will start promptly at 8 p.m. Members and anyone interested in joining or finding out more about the Winchester Jaycee Women, should r.s.v.p. to Robin Shannon, 1 Lakeview rd. or Diana Deering, 22 Kenwin rd.

Job Figures

The King administration announced recently that the Massachusetts unemployment rate for September was 5.8 percent.

The national unemployment rate was 7.5 percent.

In September 1979 the Massachusetts rate was 6.4 percent and the national rate was 5.8 percent.

The Commonwealth's rate remains substantially below that of the nation. In the third quarter of 1980, our average unemployment rate was 5.8 percent, compared to the national average of 7.6 percent, according to Eugene J. Doody, Director of the Division of Employment Security. During the past three months, the Massachusetts rate has been the second lowest of the major industrial states or tied with Texas for the lowest rate.

Stone A Veteran Of Tracks

There was a time when steam pulled the train down the tracks.

There was a time when railroad men, forever on the road and rarely home, gathered together in bunkhouses at the end of the line.

There was a time when the guaranteed pay for a day's work on the railroad was $6.56.

David Stone has witnessed that in his 38 years with the Boston and Maine Railroad.

Stone's eyes are blue under the cap of white hair he wears and his tie is held in place by a golden locomotive. He smokes cigars, using them to orchestrate his point.

Stone, who began working on the railroad in 1948 as a motor fireman, is now a Train Master, who qualifies conductors and engineers and supervizes trains.

He works out of Boston's North Station and rides those stops on the North Side.

The changes Stone has been witness to range from clothing to power.

"On steam trains, you wore overalls with leg bands to keep the dirt out," he explained through a blue-gray veil of cigar smoke. Today, the engineers dress in pretty much casual clothes."

In the days of steam, railroad workers were often away from

Smyth Left School For Tower

On an ice-blue day in 1977, Chris Smyth found herself standing in line with more than 100 other people in Boston waiting to fill out an application with the Boston and Maine Railroad.

"I graduated from Northeastern University with a degree in special education," Smyth explained, "and they were closing down schools in stead of hiring teachers. I heard they (Boston and Maine) were hiring, so I went down and waited in line for about three hours."

Railroads seemed to Smyth anything but a traditional stronghold of women.

"I only saw two other women," she explained. "They were letting six people at a time in. When the clerk would come out to take the next six, I'd say, 'Do they hire women here?'"

They did.

Six months later, Smyth became Boston and Maine's first woman train director working in the Winchester tower. She believes the Women's Movement played a significant role in her hiring by the railroad.

Jennifer Newkirk Weds Henry Porter

Jennifer Lu Newkirk and Henry Knox Porter III were married July 12, at the First Congregational Church in Glen Ellyn, Ill. The Rev. Bruce Sylvester performed the double ring ceremony which was followed by a garden reception at the home of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Newkirk of Glen Ellyn and Duxbury, Mass. Mr. Porter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Porter of Winchester and East Orleans.

Kathryn Elaine Riggs of South Bend, Ind., a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kimberly Newkirk, sister of the bride and Mrs.

Thomas Richardson of Whitefield, N.H., a sister of the bridegroom.

Andrew March Porter of Orleans, brother of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were John Bradford Newkirk, brother of the bride and Gregory Chapados of Fairbanks, Alaska.

The bride is a graduate of Boston University School for the Arts and is a designer at Cahners Publishing Company in Chicago. Mr. Porter graduated from Harvard University and is employed in the sales department of Inland Steel in Chicago.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda Mr. and Mrs. Porter live in Clarendon Hills, Ill.

Hospital Friends Slates Health Film

"The Wellness Revolution," a film distributed by the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, will be featured at the 30th annual meeting of the Friends of Winchester Hospital Oct. 16.

The meeting, which is open to the public, will be held at the home of Mrs. Peter Sarmanian, 10 Everett avenue.

Coffee will be served at 9 a.m., followed by a short business meeting at 9:30. Marie Johnson, President of the Friends, will conduct the meeting.

Business will include presentation of the slate of officers for 1980-81 by Marilyn Georgis, Chairman of the Nominating Committee.

Jack Hunter, president of Winchester Hospital, will bring the group up to date on recent developments in the hospital's building program.

The rest of the meeting will be devoted to "The Wellness Revolution," a 27-minute film which emphasizes the importance of teaching individuals to take charge of their own good health.

A question and answer period will follow.

Loretta Pharo, an ex-president of the Friends who recently served as Health Education Chairman for the Massachusetts Hospital Association Auxiliary's Council, will lead the discussion.

Anyone who is interested in the program is welcome to attend the meeting.

Ambrose Fifth Graders Offer Services

Members of the fifth grade class at Ambrose School will be offering their services for various jobs within their neighborhoods.

Money earned by each child will be applied to his or her tuition for a week-long camp experience sponsored by the Ambrose School.

If you should need any work done around your house this fall or winter, consider hiring an Ambrose fifth grade child.

For information call Susan Richardson 729-5310, Jean Donahue 729-5354 or Sharon DuLong 729-4598.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McFarland

Carol Ann McVicar Weds Thomas McFarland

Carol Ann McVicar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. McVicar of Winchester and Thomas O. McFarland, son of Mrs. Paul O. McFarland and the late Mr. McFarland of Camden, Maine were married July 17 in Camden.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown with chapel length train. The cap sleeves and bodice were trimmed with beaded Alencon lace. She wore her grandmother's wedding veil of silk tulle and carried a bouquet of white roses and ivy.

Diane Lucey, the matron of honor, wore a long mocha chiffon gown. The best man was Michael McFarland, brother of the groom.

The double ring ceremony was held before the stone fireplace at the Camden Snow Bowl Lodge, which was decorated with garden flowers and roses. The reception followed.

Miss McVicar is a 1970 graduate of Winchester High School, and for the past two years has been head of the Physical Therapy Department at Camden Community Hospital.

The couple will make their home in Texarkana, Texas where Mr. McFarland is Assistant Manager of Grocery Supply Co. and Mrs. McFarland is a Clinical Supervisor at Wadley Hospital.

home, staying in different stops along the way.

"You could stay at the Y in Concord for 75 cents," Stone said, "and you could get breakfast for 45 cents."

In some stops, the company maintained a bunkhouse for employees.

"Some guy would bring in two haddock like this," said Stone, indicating the length of the fish by spreading his palms apart. "He'd make a chowder and we'd all throw in a quarter a piece."

Diesel engines replaced steam. In 1954, passenger ridership on the trains began to drop off.

"There was no call for it," Stone explained. "They did away with the mail express and then there was the automobile and later, the super highway."

★Smyth

Her duties as train director include lining up trains, giving signals to the engineers and controlling a specific section of the track.

For Smyth, the railroad is something of a family affair since her husband is an engineer working in Boston. In fact, she just returned from maternity leave. The couple's schedule is arranged so that their hours are opposite.

While Chris is not the only woman working for the railroad, she is probably one of the few whose thrown switches manually.

That falling-off aside, Stone thinks trains are currently making a comeback. "There's been an increase in ridership since the energy crisis and improvements in the track and equipment," Stone said. During his time with the trains, Stone has seen a number of other, more personal changes. The work day has been reduced from 16 to 14 hours. And, he sees his family in New Hampshire more. "I was never really home much until my last three years of passenger service," Stone said.

While the railroads have undergone a number of changes, there are certain things that never change on the tracks.

"Everything on the railroad is based on seniority," Stone explained. "If you 'own a job,' it means you have seniority. If you're on the spare board, it means you're on call 24-hours a day. Of course, if you work the spare board, you get a lot more experience. Husbands might send their wives a post card."

At one time, Stone explained, everyone took the train.

Today, he said, most everyone drives a car.

The days of the train, however, seem anything but numbered.

And that's just fine as far as Stone is concerned.

Vinson-Owen Group Coffee Introduces Year

A coffee for about 90 parents new to the school was held at Vinson-Owen on Wednesday, Sept. 24, followed by an evening of introduction to the school.

Dr. and Mrs. Richard H. Bush, Presidents of the Parents' Association, welcomed the parents, inviting them to become actively involved in the school and parents' association, through the enrichment programs, as library volunteers, or as room mothers.

This year 50 percent of the staff of Vinson-Owen is new to the school, as is 30 percent of the student body.

Mrs. Peter Svahn, Vice-President of the Community School Association, also welcomed the parents and described the function of CSA in Winchester.

Mrs. Constance Pappas of the School Committee urged parents to become actively involved in educational policy and issues. Only 20 percent of the taxpayers in Winchester have children in the Winchester School System.

Dr. Clare Corcoran also welcomed the parents. After an opportunity to ask questions and meet other board members, the parents were invited to look through the school and visit the classrooms.

Mrs. Lois Lovins and Mrs. Jean Tavares were in charge of the evening.

Window Quilt stops the great heat escape!

New kind of thermal shade cuts window heat loss to 79%.

This multi-layered thermal shade eliminates up to 79% of winter heat loss through single-glazed windows, as much as 66% through double-paneled glass. They're four times more effective than storm windows.

Window Quilts fit tightly on all four sides, sealing warm air in and cold air out. They're easy to install, easy to live with, far more efficient than ordinary shades or insulated drapes.

- Fit almost any size window, even 8' wide sliders.
- More than twice as effective as storms, better than 4 glazings (R value: 4.25).
- In snow country, with double glazing one sq. ft. saves 1 gal. oil per year. Payback is 2-5 years.
- Helps keep summer heat out — saves on air conditioning.
- Now available in 4 decorator colors: bone white, cloud white, navy and camel.

Quarterback Rich Fennell had a superb performance in the second half against Lexington, hitting on six straight passes, four of them to...

Fennell, Jacobsen Team Up, Lexington Goes Down, 19-7

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

It was as good as the pre-game hype had insisted it would be. After two weeks of beating up on the Middlesex League also-rans, Lexington and Winchester collided for 40 minutes with authority.

Both teams had boasted awesome running statistics. Barry Neal had another sensational game, rambling for 171 yards. The Sachems' Gary Errico, keyed on the whole game, slugged out 87 of the toughest yards he has had this season.

But with both defenses absolutely dominating the line of scrimmage, in the final analysis it came down to who could throw the ball. And when it was all done Winchester's boyhood duo of Ken Jacobsen and Rich Fennell came out in the second half and won a ballgame.

"It was great the way we hung in there. We were real tired but we hung in there. But the most satisfying thing was because we beat a good football team," Winchester Coach Manny Marshall said.

But it was the junior Fennell, enjoying easily his best game, and the senior end Jacobsen, who took control of the game after a scoreless, but torrid first half.

Fennell finished with nine completions in 14 attempts for 151 yards but it was the second half, employing play action passes after fakes to Errico that really opened things up. His second half stats tell the story: six for six, 123 yards and two big touchdowns to put the Sachems up 12-0.

"We used to be next door neighbors," Fennell said of Jacobsen, who caught 10 and 46 yard TD's. "We've been throwing together since elementary school." Indeed, Lexington can vouch for that.

And what made much of the offensive aerial success possible was Errico's presence on the field. Before the game started, the Minutemen were standing on the side of the field and yelling, "Errico, Errico," Marshall said. Lexington Coach Bill Tighe had said he would be keying on the senior halfback and he did.

"That was definitely the best defensive line we'll go against," Errico said afterwards. "No way if they gave me the ball all game were we going to win and Mr. Marshall realized that, too."

So after the scoreless first half came to a close, Marshall began plotting his second half turnaround. He admits he might have been a little conservative earlier.

...his boyhood chum Ken Jacobsen, including two for touchdowns (Staff Photos By Noreen Murphy)

"We were a little stubborn about what we were going to run," Marshall explained. But it was 0-0 so we had to start to let it all hang out."

And, using Errico as a decoy in play action stuff, Fennell marched the Sachems right down the field their first two possessions in the third quarter.

On a third and nine from his own 46, Fennell hooked up with Jacobsen for a 32-yard gain. After Errico was thrown for a three-yard loss, he found Mark Micciche at the Lexington 10 for a big first down.

Two plays later Jacobsen was all alone in the left corner of the endzone and the Sachems were up on the board. The extra point attempt by Bruce Campbell failed.

It was the defense's turn to take the spotlight following the Winchester kickoff. Neal rambled 43 yards on the second play all the way to the Sachem 10-yard line, only a last gasp diving tackle by Dave Lawton prevented the score.

"Lawton saved the ballgame right there," Marshall said later. "He had a great game."

Three plays later the Sachems got a break when an eight-yard scoring burst by Neal was called back for an offsides penalty. Jacobsen threw fullback Bill Mueller for a one-yard loss on the next play. Jeff Lavey was in the backfield on the following play before Neal had even looked up and threw the halfback for a five-yard loss as the Sachems took over on downs.

Fennell and company came right back, rumbling 89 yards in 10 plays as the Minutemen defense continued to key on Errico, much to the Sachems' delight.

"I really think they were overly conscious of Errico," Marshall said after the game.

Whatever, Fennell took charge, running for a pair of first downs himself before finding Jacobsen at the Lexington 30 on first down and outraced a pair of the Minutemen to complete the 46-yard score. A two-point attempt fell incomplete as the Sachems were now sitting on a 12 point lead.

Lexington finally got on the board with a 14-play, 69 yard march that was culminated by a three-yard run by Mueller for the touchdown. That left the Sachems up just by five with 5:58 remaining.

And when the Minutemen jarred the ball loose from Mark Reardon on the ensuing kick-off, Lexington had the ball on the Winchester 30 as the home fans went berserk.

But for the second time, the defense rose up and took on a decidedly Steeler-like demeanor.

Micciche threw Mueller for a two-yard loss on first down. Neal ran for seven yards before Micciche rose up again to swat away a Cecil Cox pass.

Fullback John Skerry ran five yards for the first down on the next play but another offsides call brought it back and the Minutemen were faced with a fourth and 10 from the 30. Cox again threw incomplete and the ballgame was over.

"They all did a tremendous job," Marshall said of the defense. "After that I think they (Lexington) had it."

Indeed, the Sachems, this time throwing just one pass, methodically went 55 yards in 13 plays and chewed up 4:04, leaving the Minutemen with just 11 seconds to rally from a 19-7 deficit.

Errico ran for 31 of the yards, including the final five for his sixth TD of the season.

Afterwards, Tighe bemoaned his lack of passing game. With his regular quarterback, Brian Adley sitting on the bench in streetclothes because of a twisted knee, Cox (one for eight, three yards) called the signals and simply couldn't pass against the Sachem defense.

"You can't put a quarterback in there in two easy lessons and expect to win," Tighe said. "There's just no way you can make a quarterback in two days. We just couldn't throw the ball. We were really taking a chance passing the ball. And their (Winchester) passing killed us," he added.

But Tighe conceded that the ballgame was won.

"You cannot run the ball against a good team. You've got to throw the ball and we just couldn't do it. But Winchester did a very good job of coming back. We lost to a very good football team. Maybe the best we'll play this year."

Marshall was understandably pleased with his defensive unit's effort. After rolling to 66 points in their first two games without the first team playing more than 12 minutes, Winchester held the vaunted Minutemen offense to 270 total yards and just one touchdown.

After giving credit to the entire defense, Marshall singled out co-captain Jay Gill (eight tackles) and nose guard guard Fred Skinner (nine tackles) with outstanding performances.

Marshall commented that after the game a Lexington reporter approached him and the first thing he asked was if Marshall was surprised about the great job the Lexington defense did on Errico. "That's not the object," Marshall said, shaking his head. "I'm sure if you ask Gary he'll tell you he'll settle for 87 yards rushing everytime if we're going to win the ballgame." Well, Gary? "Nothing would make me happier. There's no use running the ball if you can't run. We're going to score somehow. I don't always know how but we'll score," Errico said.

Finally, Errico, when asked if he had heard the Lexington players chanting his name before the game, replied that he hadn't. "And it's a good thing I would have been scared."

Sachem Booters Tied By 'Late' Watertown Goal

By Julie Derry

"We completely dominated the game," said Sachem coach Gene Bouley. "We should have had two or three more goals, but..."

Who would have predicted, that after leading by a score of 1-0 for the entire game, Winchester would have tied 1-1 against Watertown?

If you had left just two minutes before the game ended you wouldn't have known. Or thirty seconds...or even five seconds before the game was over...for the game wasn't decided until after the last horn had blown.

The first goal was scored by Paul Williamson in the first quarter. From that point on, Winchester didn't score again although they outplayed Watertown.

In the last few minutes of the game the tension climaxed. Watertown was desperately trying to score just one goal while Winchester was anxiously defending their 1-0 lead.

With only 30 seconds left on the clock, Watertown shot, scored, and rejoiced...for a minute.

When they realized offsides had been called against their team, therefore disallowing the goal, Watertown was disappointed and then furious. Things looked pretty bleak for Watertown.

The remaining 21 seconds of the game were played in front of the Winchester goal with pressure on Winchester for tight defense.

As usual, the Sachems came through, and when the final horn blew, smiles came to their faces as they realized they had defeated yet another team.

But as the horn had gone off, a Watertown player had suddenly fallen down. He started rolling on the ground and for several moments went unnoticed. Then there was a rush towards the apparently injured player and a cry of penalty filled the air.

Penalty? Who? When? Where? There was confusion for both teams until they learned the injured Watertown player was blaming a Sachem with hitting him from behind.

Despite protests, Watertown was awarded their penalty shot, five minutes after the game had supposedly ended. The Watertown team lined up in front of the goal and the shot was booted through the air and into the goal. Tie game.

Even Bouley couldn't have predicted

Sachemette Swimmers Whip Belmont Then Drop First Meet To Lexington

By Mary Cresse

It's a home meet, the toughest one of the season. You've won five straight and you're about to face the strongest team in the league, possibly in Massachusetts. Do you crack under the pressure, or do you do the best you can? Ask any member of the girls' swim team and you will get a combination of the two for an answer.

League leader Lexington stole away the streak by trouncing the Sachems, 52-31.

"They were just a better team," Asst.

Coach Vinny Palumbo said. "There was really nothing you could do to beat them."

The loss was inevitable after the first five races when Lexington took first in every event. Winchester usually pulled in with seconds and thirds. After the diving, Lexington pulled the rug out from under WHS and left them without a chance of a comeback.

"We just couldn't get it together," one swimmer said. "Team morale was low and no one was psyched to win."

Moreover, Lexington had last year's state championship diver who took first, but not by much, as senior tri-captain Carla Gullino registered her personal best score.

In the last half, the opposition continued to rack up firsts, and pulled away with more seconds and thirds.

"The only race they lost was the 400 Freestyle relay," Palumbo said. "We had better Freestylers and took the race easily."

But there was no threat to Lexington.

As tri-captain Julie DeCarlo said, "We didn't do our best times. We could have made it more competitive but they were just too overpowering."

Winchester has only one in the loss column, however, and last Saturday's sacrifice places them in second place in the Middlesex League.

If any meet was totally unlike the Lexington contest in terms of morale and ability, it was the previous Thursday's rout of Belmont.

Sachemette Runners Stay Undefeated

by Bill Baron and Peter DelGreco
Winchester High School's girls cross-country team ran away with two victories last week as it trounced both Melrose and Wakefield at home by scores of 18-37, and 16-43. These wins increased the Sachemettes' record to 4-0 as they battle for the top spot in the Middlesex League.

Friday's meet against Melrose appeared to be just another workout as the girls took the top four places for the third straight meet.

Laurie Glynn, the freshman who has yet to be beaten this season, took the lead early and never looked back. Tri-captain Mary Boland moved into second position and was followed by another tri-captain Lauren Fryklund and junior Eileen Conley running side by side.

Not far behind, as they approached the two-mile point, a host of Melrose runners fought for fifth place with sophomore Martha Davis in the middle. Glynn crossed the finish line to collect her fourth consecutive easy win. She came in 18:09, well ahead of Boland, who has finished second only to Glynn in each of her three meets.

In the final 100 yards, Fryklund pulled just ahead of Conley, beating her by one second with a time of 20:11. Finally, Melrose runners headed towards the finish, taking fifth, sixth and seventh places ahead of Martha Davis, who finished at 21:33.

After two more Melrose girls, Maria Doocey crossed the finish line followed by Sandy Earlam, who improved last Tuesday's time by a full two minutes.

Senior Pam Brickley and sophomore Jean Senna were injured for Friday's meet and were unable to compete. "Both are key runners on the team and we hope they'll be able to run in the Tuesday meet against Reading," said Sachemette coach Joe Cantillon.

The meet which took place the preceding Tuesday against Wakefield was very similar to Winchester's win over Melrose. The girls ran up another convincing victory this time 16-43, with the low score winning.

As usual, incredible freshman Glynn outpaced everyone and crossed the finish line at 18:21. Although it was not one of her best times, it would still have been competitive in the boys race.

After more than a full minute, the fairly large finish line crowd saw Boland take second place at 19:31, as she clipped 25 seconds off her previous best time. Finishing third was Conley followed closely by Fryklund. Lauren is running consistently after having missed her entire junior year due to injury.

Wakefield's best runner, Joanne Moriana was only able to place fifth in this race, while Jean Senna moved in behind her to take sixth place. Senna's time of 21:10 was the team's fifth lowest of the day, and her personal best for the course.

Martha Davis followed Senna to the finish and four Wakefield girls trotted in behind her to round out their scoring, while an injured Pam Brickley finished 13th to fill the Sachemettes' side of the scoreboard.

This coming Tuesday's meet against Reading was in the minds of many of the Winchester girls. "Both teams will probably be undefeated going into that meet, so it may decide the league championship," Cantillon said. "The top five girls are fairly experienced and I feel that they can run competitively with any team."

No one knows this better than do the Sachemettes themselves. When they yell out "We're number one!", they mean it.

Senior runner Pam Brickley has been hampered by injuries lately but has still figured in the scoring of the red hot Sachemette runners. (Staff Photo By Bill Baron)

Golfers Take 1st Win, 5-4 Over Wakefield

The drought is finally over for the Sachem golfers.

The golfers (1-6) notched win number one of the 1980 season last week, a 5-4 squeaker over Wakefield.

"The kids felt good about it," Coach Joe Aversa said. "It gets discouraging to get beat every time out."

But against Wakefield it was finally the Sachems day, despite the absence of top player Paul Kelly.

Jay Berardi (3-1) and Paul Bacci (5-3) were both winners on the first pair. Chris D'Errico lost a tough 2-1 match but Bill Eaton bounced back to win his match, 3-2. Keith McCarthy lost a 3-2 decision but Kevin McGee halved his match to clinch the victory for the Sachems.

Alternates Judy Sizemore (3-1) and Mark Kennedy (2-0) also impressed in winning their non-scoring matches.

Against Stoneham Monday, however, it was back off the track as the Spartans whipped Winchester 8-1.

The only winner for the Sachems was Bill Eaton, and that was by forfeit. Aversa added that Kelly had his cast taken off his wrist this week and may be ready for the season finale Oct. 20 against Reading at the Winchester Country Club.

Melrose, Wakefield Turn Back Sachem Runners

by Bill Baron and Peter DelGreco

A cloudy, wet and dismal day was the setting for the Sachems cross-country team's third loss in four meets last Friday at the hands of the visiting Melrose team, the defending Middlesex League champions.

Winchester was hoping to rebound from their loss against Wakefield the previous Tuesday, but Melrose proved to be just too powerful, defeating them by a 19-40 score.

Unlike many meets, Friday's race didn't thin out near the start. As the runners climbed Highland Ave. towards the half-way point, Winchester junior Pat Kennedy was involved in a fight for the lead position with three or four Melrose runners.

Just a few feet behind, Joe "The Dude" Callahan, another junior, pushed to stay near the leaders along with several other boys from Melrose, as did sophomore Hugh Murray.

By the time they approached the finish, the powerful Melrose runners had put some distance between themselves and Kennedy. They took the first three places, clinching the meet before Kennedy finished at 16:13. Callahan took fifth place with a time of 16:35, his personal best.

"I knew I was running my best time the whole way," Callahan said afterwards. "But I couldn't keep up with the leaders during the last mile."

Murray followed "The Dude" to the finish, recording a sensational time of 16:40. But Melrose showed their depth by taking the next three places ahead of Sachem tri-captain John Provenzano.

A much improved Barry Sirchis had the team's fifth best time of the afternoon to complete Winchester's scoring.

Despite the loss, Sachem coach Joe Cantillon saw some promise in several of his runners. "Melrose was the top team in the league, so our boys, especially the top three (Kennedy, Callahan, and Murray) really ran respectable individual races."

"Also, John Provenzano ran his best time by twenty seconds and I'm confident that he can improve quite a bit more."

The Melrose meet was much like a repeat of the same old song heard Tuesday when the Sachem harriers found themselves on the short end of a 25-32 score. Although it lost, the team gave a very impressive showing against a tough Wakefield squad.

Winchester's number one man, junior Kennedy ran a gutsy race, finishing with a 16:07 time, his personal best.

He was edged out for first place by Wakefield's Scott Robertson. He recorded a 16:00 time which at that point stood as the course record.

Murray claimed Winchester's second best time as he finished fourth overall at 16:46, just one second ahead of Callahan. It was at this point that Wakefield really sewed up the meet. They took the next four places, displaying their depth of talent.

Finishing in tenth place, and fourth on the team was freshman Sirchis. This was his first varsity race, and he proved himself to be a contending varsity runner. He was followed by senior Provenzano, who was trailed by two Wakefield runners. Mark Schwartzman finished next followed closely by Dick Rooney and Peter Quine.

Although they lost, the Sachems made this a close meet, showing their potential to upset powerful cross-country teams. This Friday, they will try to prove themselves as they host Burlington at 3:30.

When asked how he felt about getting later, fullback Chris Wagstrom raced down the field with the ball, pushing past a Woburn fullback and then past the Woburn goalie to charge into the net. Almost ahead of the ball itself and so the ninth goal was scored.

The Cosmos defense was also very discouraging, allowing only one Lowell shot on goal and letting the ball past midfield just six times. Williams Layden, Rice and goalkeeper David Koffman showed their power throughout the game.

Wellesley Club Hosts Leslie Holmes Oct. 23

Leslie Holmes will be the star of this year's Winchester Wellesley Club Benefit, Oct. 23.

An alumna of Wellesley, Holmes has done graduate study in Music Education at New York University, opera study at Manhattan School of Music in New York, Boston University and the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria. She has performed in Salzburg, New York, Boston, Tanglewood, and in many New England regional opera productions.

Her solo performances, for example as Cio Cio San in Madame Butterfly and as Antonia, Fermina and the Moorish Gypsy Dancer in Man of La Mancha, illustrate her dramatic versatility and musical range. She is currently appearing on her own show, "Leslie Holmes Sings," a radio program produced every Saturday morning at WCRB-FM.

Her long association with opera, operetta and musical comedy has led her to create a special offering which traces American song through the twentieth century. It was presented as "Americana: from Herbert and Gertrude to Rodgers and Bernstein" for the Reunion Weekend at Wellesley College to the spontaneous delight of the audience. She will sing highlights from this program and describe the changes our country has heard as the musical stage developed from Viennese operettas to American Musical Comedy.

In addition to solo performances with the Boston Symphony, Boston Pops, the Gardener Museum, Castle Hill Concerts, Boston Chorus Pro Musica and educational radio and television, she shares her devotion to music with many students in her home town of Wellesley. She is married to a physician and the mother of three sons.

The Winchester Wellesley Club members anticipate an entertaining morning which will also include the chance to pick out small gifts of hand woven items at the boutique, organized by the weaving guild Cross town Shuttle of Somerville. Preparation of the fresh salad bar luncheon and baking the homemade desserts occupies the members now, but they are not too busy to make tickets to this delightful morning available.

The deadline for tickets is Oct. 16. Because of arrangements at the Parish of Epiphany Hall, all tickets must be purchased in advance.

Please contact your Wellesley College alumna friend or call Ann McGovern, 729-2661 or Margie McIndoe, 729-3420.

During Prohibition the first recorded liquor raid occurred on the evening of Sept. 16, 1921. Police Chief William R. McIntosh and his forces seized several bootleggers, a 30-gallon copper still, a glass carboy, three barrels of mash and 100 pounds of sugar.

Weather

Weatherman Albert Visits School

Dick Albert, WCVB-TV's "News-Center 5" weather forecaster, spoke recently to the students at St. Mary's School.

Speaking to a group of third through eighth grade students, Albert touched on several meteorologic occurrences of universal interest to children.

He explained how and why lightning storms, hurricanes and tornadoes occur and what safety precautions the children should take in each of them.

Born in Newton, Mass., Albert received both a bachelor's and a master's degree from the University of Michigan. He worked in Albuquerque, San Francisco and Denver before joining the Channel 5 staff in 1978.

Albert pointed out to the children that the study of meteorology includes a great deal of calculus and physics. He also noted that although many women read the weather on TV, few are actually meteorologists.

Book Fair

The up-coming Boston Globe Book Festival has announced additional authors to its list of guest speakers including Tom Wolfe, author of "In Our Time," who will speak on Saturday night, Oct. 11. The Festival begins on Friday, Oct. 10, at 6:00 p.m. and runs through Sunday, Oct. 12.

The Boston Globe Book Festival will be held at The Hynes Auditorium, Prudential Center. Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens.

Deaf Aided With Device At Winchester Hospital

A gift from the Winchester Womens Club Juniors will add a new dimension to the lives of deaf persons in Winchester Hospital's service area.

Called the porta-tel, the instrument is a typewriter-like unit allowing the deaf person to communicate with the hospital's emergency room for instructions or information on emergency situations.

In actual use the Porta-Tel works in the following way: An emergency situation arises with the deaf person or with a member of his family. He dials a special number (729-9015) and places the receiver in a cradle located on the top of the set.

The special number rings only in the hospital emergency room where a member of the emergency staff takes the phone receiver and places it on the hospital unit. Now, by using the typewriter keyboard, the deaf person can "speak" with the hospital emergency room staff person, describing the emergency situation and asking for special help or instructions.

The emergency room staffer also communicates with the deaf person using the typewriter keyboard. In each case, the message being transmitted is shown on a special screen located on the unit.

A second unit is also available at the hospital for placement in the room of a deaf patient, allowing him to communicate with his home and to receive messages from members of his family while he is a patient.

The two units costing $1000 were presented to the hospital by Mrs. Diane Maher, former president of the Winchester Womens Club Juniors and Mrs. Barbara Tomasone, chairman of the special fashion show event that was used to raise the money for the gift.

The units were purchased through the Framingham Center for the Deaf and were demonstrated at the hospital by Mrs. Mary Ancill, a representative of the Center.

Winchester is the only hospital in the area to have this new communications device especially designed for its deaf community residents.

Women Voters Slate Drive For Membership

The Winchester League of Women Voters invites members and all citizens interested in the League, to attend a wine and cheese and coffee reception Wednesday, Oct. 15 at 7:45 p.m. at the home of Membership Chairperson Dee Ruta at 9 Ridgfield rd.

President Judie Muggia will deliver brief remarks on the local group and the areas of both study and action on the agenda for 1980-81.

Some of these concerns include Proposition 2 1/2, education to promote defeat of the bill on the November ballot, the housing crisis facing Winchester, After-School Programming for children in grades K-8, Job Re-Entry for Women and many more.

For further information please call Judie Muggia at 729-3383.

Pool

Town workers and members of Winchester's Pool Drive stand next to a sign erected Monday urging residents to "Jump In" the effort to construct the pool.
(Staff Photo by Noreen Murphy)

Canvas For Pool Drive Continues

Working across town, volunteers began their door to door visits inviting everyone in Winchester to support the idea of an indoor, year-round pool for local residents.

The plan to complete the canvass in a week or less proved overly-ambitious on the part of the solicitors. Officials of the drive now say it will take several weeks to cover and hear back from everyone in town.

According to volunteers, many residents are holding the material and discussing it with their families.

At the same time, "pool parties" have begun to happen and sizeable gifts have already been made.

Anyone who has not been called on and who wishes to donate, should telephone Dorothea Twomey, 729-4562.

Officers and Directors of the Winchester Rotary Club include, (first row, L to R) Lester G. Whittaker, Sargeant at Arms, Lawrence N. Pasquale, First Vice President, Dr. Charles F. Mahoney, Past President, Dr. J.D. Murray, President and Salvador F. Porras,

Nursery School
The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School will present a program dealing with children's understanding of death on Wednesday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tucker Room of the First Congregational Church in Winchester. The speaker for the evening will be Dr. Charles Streff.

One of the most enjoyable things about traveling is being able to shop in different places. However, before spending money on purchases in another country, check the prices of the things you are interested in buying here. China and crystal, including taxes and mailing costs from England are about one-third of the cost in the United States. Made to order clothes in such places as Hong Kong and Italy are great bargains. The biggest savings are usually to be found in local products such as perfume in France, silver work in Mexico and baskets in Haiti.

Our professional staff at McGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Ave., Woburn, 935-0600 has travelled extensively so many times the information they give you is first hand. Stop by our office and browse through our many brochures. We'll do everything possible to plan a trip that will suit your taste and budget. Open Mon. - Fri. 9-5, Sat. and evenings by appt.

TRAVEL TIP: Don't forget the duty free shops at the airports.

Obituaries

Dorothy Mardulier

Dorothy H. (Wyer) Mardulier, 67, of Winchester and North Truro died at her home Sept. 26 after a long illness.

A descendant of the Nantucket Wyers via the Maine branch, Mrs. Mardulier was born in Medford and graduated from Medford High School and from Wheelock College in Boston. She ran a private nursery school during the Depression and served as a substitute teacher during World War II.

Mrs. Mardulier was the founder and New England Director of the Civil Defense League for Animals, which was organized to help wounded and abandoned pets and other domestic animals in case of war and bombing attacks on the United States. She was led to do this by her great love of animals and the distressing reports from England during the Battle of Britain concerning the tragic suffering of pets and farm animals resulting from the air raids and missile attacks.

Mrs. Mardulier is survived by her husband, Francis J. Mardulier, of Winchester and North Truro; a son, Francis J. Mardulier, Jr., of North Truro and Wellfleet, better known as Capt. Jim; her mother, Margaret Ellen (Smith) Wyer; and a sister, Margaret Rita Tyler Fernald of Winchester and North Truro.

A funeral mass was celebrated Sept. 29 at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Winchester, the concelebrants being the Reverend Charles E. Anadore of St. Barbara's and the Reverend Mark S. Sheehan of St. Mary's. Her ashes were interred at Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

Donations in her memory may be made to the American Cancer Society, 247 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, 02116.

Harry E. Damon

Harry E. Damon Jr. of 164 Strong Island Road, Chatham, formerly of Winchester died recently.

Born Nov. 2, 1908, he was educated in the Morristown School, Morristown, N.J., the Tome School in Port Deposit, Md., and held a BA from Burdett College in Boston.

From 1928 through 1954, he was Director and General Manager of Beggs and Cobb Inc. of Boston and Winchester where he was in charge of all direct manufacturing and coordinating of leathers to customers. From 1955 through 1961, he was General Manager of the Colonial Tanning Company of Boston, Ayer and Canton and Belleville, N.J. where he was in charge of the Ayer Division and consultant to Canton and Belleville. From 1961 through 1962 he was consultant to all manufacturing and sales of the Granite State Tanning Company of Nashua and Manchester, N.H. From 1962 through 1963, he was a consultant on manufacturing and development for new customers for John Flynn and Sons of Salem and Pownall, Vt. He was Director and General Manager of the Eagle Ottawa Leather Company in Grand Haven, Mich. from 1964 through 1969 where he was in charge of all manufacturing and development of new products and coordination of sales with customers. He was Director of Nickerson Lumber Company of Orleans from 1969 through 1978. He was also manager of Nickerson Homes Inc.

He was Director of Winchester Cooperative Bank and a member of the bank's Executive Committee. A Director of Winchester Boat Club, he was a United Fund Chairman and Director of Winchester Hospital. A Vice Commodore in the Chatham Yacht Club, he was a President of Winchester Rotary Club and an honorary Chief in the Winchester Fire Department. He was also Director of the Rycenga Lumber Company in Grand Haven, Mich.

He is survived by his wife, Marjorie Sears Damon of Chatham; two daughters, Mrs. Carol Andrews of Marblehead and Mrs. Mary Anne Jackson of Hingham; one sister, Mrs. Dorothy Beggs of Honolulu, Hawaii and three grandchildren.

Dorothy Dunn

Dorothy B. (Brown) Dunn, 72, of 4 Sussex Road, died Oct. 6 at her home following a short illness.

Born in Winchester July 28, 1908, she was a life-long town resident. She was educated in Winchester schools, was a graduate of the Winchester High School Class of 1926 and a 1930 graduate of Wellesley College.

A past Vice President of the En Ka Society in Winchester, she was a member of the Friends of Winchester Hospital. She was a past President of the Florence Crittendon League. She was active in community affairs and gave many hours of volunteer work at Winchester Hospital. She was a member of the First Congregational Church.

Surviving is her husband, Paul C. Dunn; one son, Stephen W. Dunn of Harwinton, Conn.; one daughter, Cynthia Wong of Watertown and three grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held today at 2 p.m. in the Ripley Chapel of the First Congregational Church. Burial will be in the Crystal Lake Cemetery in Gardner. Donations in her memory may be made to the First Congregational Church Memorial Fund or to the Winchester Hospital Memorial Fund.

Arrangements by Lane Funeral Home.

Jean O'Connor

Jean E. (Dooley) O'Connor, 61, of 12 Pepper Hill Drive, died Oct. 6 in Winchester Hospital following a long illness. Born in Syracuse, N.Y. July 27, 1919, she was a resident of Winchester for 22 years.

A member of the Winchester Boat Club, she was active in the affairs of several committees of St. Eulalia's Church.

Surviving is her husband, John F. O'Connor; two sons, Dr. William H. O'Connor of New York City and John F. O'Connor Jr. of Winchester; four daughters, Carol M. O'Connor and Ann M. O'Connor, both of Winchester, Sharon J. Wilson of Sudbury and Mary M. Sch-meding of Orchard Park, N.Y.; three sisters, Barbara F. Dooley of Oak Park, Ill., and Ann Flynn and Mary E. Williams of Syracuse, N.Y.

The funeral is today at Lane Funeral Home followed by a funeral Mass in St. Eulalia's Church at 9 a.m. Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery. Arrangements by Lane Funeral Home.

James Duffy

James Stowell Duffy, a 1980 Winchester High School graduate and UMass-Amherst freshman, is presumed drowned in a canoeing accident Saturday on Lake Norwich in Huntington, Massachusetts.

Jim, 18, had been active in student government while at WHS, serving as a member of the Student Advisory Council and the Drug and Alcohol Education Committee. He also received several merit awards while attending the school. He was enrolled at UMass as a pre-law student.

While at WHS, Jim was also involved in dramatics and the German club. He was very popular with his fellow students and was elected for three years to be their representative on the Student Union. He served as chairman of the Student Advisory Council in his senior year with a Letter of Commendation.

The National Merit Scholarship program recognized Jim in his senior year with a Letter of Commendation.

Prior to leaving for UMass this fall, Jim lived with his parents, Richard L. and Shirley M. Duffy, at 11 Edgehill Rd. He is survived by his parents; his brother Richard Albert, a graduate of Tufts; his sister, Jane, a senior at Wheaton College; and his grandfather, Charles Carlton Stowell.

Funeral arrangements are not complete at this time.

Christo Pittas

Christo Pittas, 69, of 30 Mount Pleasant Street, died Oct. 3 in the Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford following a brief illness.

Born in Greece, he was a Winchester resident for five years. He attended schools in Greece. He was a waiter at the Ritz Carleton in Boston. For the past five years, he was a waiter at the Acropolis Restaurant in Cambridge. He was a member of the Hotel Restaurant Employees' Union and a World Fellowship Member.

Surviving is his wife, Eunice (Oster) Pittas of Winchester; one son, Michael J. Pittas of Winchester; one daughter, Susan G. Pittas of San Diego, Calif.; two brothers, Arthur Pittas of Brooklyn, N.Y. and Peter Pittas of Carteret, N.J. and three grandchildren.

The funeral was private. Donations in his memory may be made to the A.B.C. House, 2 Dix Street, Winchester, 01890.

Arrangements by Lane Funeral Home.

Military Goods

The military goods trade in the early 19th century will be the subject of an illustrated lecture, "Supplying the Volunteer Militia, 1790-1850," by Bruce S. Bazelon on Oct. 12 at 3 p.m. at the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett Rd., Lexington.

Warning Given On Old Fire Extinguishers

The State Fire Marshal's office issued a warning this week that certain obsolete fire extinguishers manufactured by the Bernzomatic Corporation of Medina, N.Y. (formerly of Rochester, N.Y.) are capable of exploding.

The "Bernzomatic Foam Fire Extinguisher" model FE 18 UL manufactured in 1970 and subsequently recalled by the Consumer Product Safety Commission on August 29, 1974 due to safety defects inherent in the unit.

It appears that the foam solution in the extinguisher corrodes the cylinder increasing the likelihood of rupture.

The units recalled are red with "Bernzomatic Foam Fire Extinguisher" in white letters. They measure approximately 7 1/2 inches in length and 3 inches in diameter.

"Model FE 18 UL" appears in the center of the back label with the date 1970 in the upper left hand corner.

There have been instances recently of this type of extinguisher exploding.

Anyone possessing this model fire extinguisher should immediately discharge its contents. Inquiries may be made addressed to the Bernzomatic Corporation, Onley Street, Medina, N.Y. 14103.

WOODHAVEN Professional Primer & Undercoater WHITE

Insulation must stay dry to cut your fuel costs. Keep it dry ...with PAINT!

(MOISTURE BARRIER ENERGY SAVER)

PRIMER-SEALER keeps moisture inside, helps keep insulation dry, reduces peeling & blistering outside, too. Required only on interior walls adjacent to exterior walls, roofs, unheated air spaces.

HOW DOES IT WORK? It's very simple! A single coat of this primer-sealer under your finish coat will provide a moisture barrier on your interior walls and ceilings. This will help keep moisture within the room, providing a more healthful, more comfortable atmosphere. The same moisture would otherwise penetrate the walls into the insulation, reducing its effectiveness and causing adjacent wood to rot. Traveling further, the moisture peels and blisters the outside paints. Insulation must be dry to work efficiently. Wet insulation will demand more heat from your furnace, add to fuel costs!

HOW DOES IT RATE? A paint product to be effective must have a "perm" rating of less than 1.0 when applied at a coverage rate of 400 sq. ft./gallon to smooth surfaces.

PRIMER-SEALER meets or exceeds those requirements, set by Federal Housing Administration Minimum Property Standards. The "perm" rating of PRIMER-SEALER compares favorably with a typical 2 mil sheet of medium density polyethylene.

COVERS UP TO 400 SQ. FT./GALLON

WOODHAVEN ALKYD PRIMER SEALER has a "PERM" rating of 0.85 as determined by an independent laboratory and thus meets the criterion for an effective coating for use as a vapor barrier.

Epiphany Schedules Flea Market Oct. 18

The Women of the Church of Epiphany Flea Market, etc., etc., on Saturday, Oct. 18. The fair will open at 10 a.m. with knit goods and baked goods.

Among these items will be a quilt made by the Epiphany Quilters, a group of women.

The Epiphany Quilters have done a number of quilts in various sizes, twins, doubles and baby quilts. They have even done quilts that others have started and never finished or have had the pieces and not put together.

There will be a cook-out luncheon consisting of hotdogs, hamburgs and beverage served at noon.

A clown, grabs, penny candy, and good used toys, completed games and jigsaw puzzles will be a feature for children. Also our mineral lady, Eleanor Banks will be there for children of all ages.

A Home Baked Bean Dinner will be served from 5:30 to 6:45 p.m. The menu includes cole slaw, ham, brown bread and rolls, apple pie and beverage. A fee will be charged. Plan on staying for the dinner which will be followed by an Auction of Services starting at 7 p.m.

The White Elephants will be featured upstairs in the Old Parish Hall along with books. There are many other booths to see and to purchase for Christmas. Among them will be jewelry, sewing, plants, and even something for bird lovers.

Mark your calendar for Oct. 18th and come to Epiphany Flea Market, etc., etc., etc., for a day of fun.

Howard Niblock First Health Board VP

Howard Niblock of Winchester was re-elected first vice president of the board of directors of Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Inc., at the recent fifth annual meeting.

Five years ago the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association merged with the VNA's of Lexington and Arlington to provide the communities with a stronger agency. Burlington was added in 1979.

In other board actions two Winchester residents were named as committee chairpersons. They are Marge McIndoe, Planning - Evaluation and Phyllis Fernald, Nominating.

Elected to three year terms (1980-83) as directors at large were Gertrude Rooney, Richard Norberg and Ruth DeSanctis.

Serving as directors to 1981 are Marta Frank, Maureen Looney, Marge McIndoe and Hutch Taylor. Service to 1982 are Celena Bradlee, Phyllis Fernald, Peggy Keefe and Mary Ann Outwater.

Winchester's State Sen Sam Rotondi speaking on health and aging issues to a capacity crowd at the annual meeting stressed the importance of home care.

Rotondi answered questions about the controversial Proposition 2 1/2 at a question and answer period following his talk.

In her report to the board Professional Director Jayne A. Tapia stated that the agency's cases increased by 9 percent during the past fiscal year and that total visits increased by 29 percent (over 7,300) more visits.

St. Mary's Holds Mass For School Opening Oct. 3

St. Mary's School held its traditional opening of school Mass Friday in the Mary Chapel of St. Mary's Church.

Students, teachers and parents attended the Mass which was celebrated by Fr. Mark Sheehan, school chaplain. The sixth grade students were hosts at the Mass and presented the prayers and readings. All the children joined in singing hymns.

Fr. Sheehan welcomed the children and teachers and offered the Mass for a happy and prosperous school year.

This year St. Mary's School has an enrollment of 225 students from 143 families.

St. Mary's Slates Cookie Sale Through Oct. 20

The St. Mary's School Parents Association is sponsoring a cookie sale, which started Monday and will end Oct. 20.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for the enrichment programs for the students.

The cookies are made by Valley Brook Farms and will be sold in boxes and tins. The cookies will be delivered early in November in time for holidays and gift giving.

Prizes will be awarded. A calculator will be given to the highest seller in each class, and the winning class will receive a pizza lunch. Every student who sells at least 25 boxes of cookies will be eligible to win the grand prize, a 10-speed bicycle.

Purity Supreme Will Move To Finast Building

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

The Purity Supreme supermarket will be moving from its location in Winchester Center to the old First National building on Main street, it was learned this week.

Major renovations, expected to take as long as six months, are being planned before Purity moves into the old Finast site.

Purity officials said they still owned the property downtown and would continue to do so but no longer as a supermarket.

No sale price was revealed by any of the four principals involved in the complex deal.

"We are going to do an awful lot to that store. We're going to make it into a place Winchester residents will be proud of. We're going to make it a showplace," said Purity VicePresident of the Food Division Frank Giacomazzi. "For the first time in many years Winchester will have a real supermarket."

Giacomazzi did not elaborate on the planned renovations.

It is still fuzzy as to who the actual owners of the new supermarket site are. The downtown Purity store is owned by Albert and Leo Kahn, who in turn lease the building to Purity.

Leo Kahn would not discuss his role in the new transaction with First National except to say that the Finast site was now actually owned by an unnamed real estate trust that were leasing the property to Purity.

The deal does include the entire 97,900 square foot parcel of land, which means

2½ To Send Message To Beacon Hill

By STEVEN AUSTIN

Proposition 2.5 is "the last possible chance to send a message to Beacon Hill that we've had enough of the highest property tax in the country," according to Barbara Anderson, Executive Director of Citizens for Limited Taxation, the group sponsoring the proposal.

Since 1932, Anderson explained in an interview with The Star Tuesday, there have been 126 attempts to cut, reform or limit property taxes in the state.

"One hundred twenty-six times," she said, "the Legislature has done nothing. This is the last chance we have for it. If we lose on this one, forget it. We can't raise the money or the enthusiasm to mount another campaign."

The measure will cut property taxes in a state whose taxes are 70 percent above the national average, Anderson said.

"No one is disputing that there is a problem," she said. Proposition 2.5 is the "only answer," she said.

Town officials have estimated that Winchester would lose some $3.7 million in revenue should the measure gain voter approval Nov. 2.

In an interview with The Star last week, school superintendent William MacDonald predicted "massive layoffs" of school personnel if the measure passes.

Under 2.5, MacDonald said $1.9 million of a total $10 million budget would have to be cut. Other possible areas include a reduction in the system's administrative staff and the elimination of all specialists for art, music, reading and all non-mandated physical education programs, of all counselors, of all in-tramural programs at the elementary and junior high level, of all extra-curricular activities, of all lunchroom and clerical substitutes and janitors, of all secretarial and custodial overtime, of summer school appropriations, adult education, open gym and building rentals and of miscellaneous accounts for travel, dues and membership in educational organizations.

Transportation, MacDonald said, would meet state requirements only.

Anderson, characterizing many of the negative responses to 2.5 as "hysterical," said the $3.7 million figure for Winchester was close to the mark.

Figures for Winchester at the tax group's headquarters in Boston say that reduction in revenue would be $3.1 million, Anderson said.

"What they're (town officials) are calling a loss is a gain for tax payers," she said.

Cuts under 2.5 are "gradual ones" of 15 percent per year, Anderson explained. "The money won't disappear," she said, it just won't be drawn from property tax sources.

possible funding sources to compensate for this loss of revenue could come from a number of areas, Anderson explained.

"The major source is the state," she said. "Of course, we can't promise that but there is waste in here that should be going to towns. Now, there's no incentive for the state to fund towns and cities."

Proposition 2.5 provides that incentive. "Since town meetings will have control over the 'bottom line' of all budgets under 2.5, waste can be cut away. Fees for services can be raised, with the user paying for the services.

She said funds for schools could be raised by booster clubs.

The proposal also provides a local option clause which Anderson believes is important.

"If, after one year, residents aren't satisfied with the cut, a local option of two-thirds of the electorate can override the proposition."

"The only guaranteed cut," Anderson said, "is 15 percent in the first year."

Under the terms of the proposal, a local referendum can override the proposal if that referendum is called by the state legislature.

"There's no reason for all the hysteria," she said. "It (Proposition 2.5) is only a law. The Legislature could take 20 minutes out of a busy day and repeal it."

"There is no possibility for the kind of disaster the schools are talking about," she said. "We're looking at what's best for everyone." Anderson said, "That includes policemen, firemen, teachers and the elderly. We believe this is exactly what the state needs."

She said the possible failure of the measure could pose another problem for tax payers.

"We're afraid the Legislature will get the opposite message we're trying to send to them," she said.

Selectmen To Ask Time For Parkview Tenants

"It's pretty bleak as far as town action is concerned."

— Douglas Randall Town Attorney

Selectmen will attempt to gain time for the tenants of Parkview Apartments but time is about all they can offer.

A crowd of more than fifty residents appeared before Selectmen Monday concerning plans by the complex's owner, Berndt Realty Inc., to convert the 318-unit project into condominiums.

However, the discussion was over almost before it began with Town Council Douglas Randall saying the town had no power to act in aiding residents.

A year ago, Randall explained, the condo problem came to Winchester in the form of a question before the Board of Appeals. The appeals board met that question by saying there were no zoning prohibitions concerning the conversion of rental apartments to condominiums in Winchester.

Randall said the State Attorney General's office had already disapproved by laws regulating condo conversion in Acton, Watertown and Framingham.

He said Cambridge had some "minor controls" due to the presence of rent controls in that city. Gloucester's ordinance is currently in litigation while Somerville is preparing to sign an ordinance concerning conversion.

"It's pretty bleak as far as town action is concerned," Randall said. He said tenants could petition the state legislators for aid.

Selectmen Chairman Wade Welch said legislative action might "not be appropriate since it would be an attempt by special legislation to override a general ruling."

Walter McLoughlin Jr., attorney for Berndt and firm owner Edward Berndt

Jr., fielded questions from the audience which ranged from concern for elderly residents to charges that tenants renting after the condo decision was made weren't told of that decision when signing a rental lease with Berndt.

McLoughlin said elderly residents would be allowed to remain in their units through their lifetimes without a rent increase, barring cost-of-living increases.

He offered the elderly what he called "a lease and protection of rent."

Berndt has "no intention" of evicting elderly residents, the attorney said.

In explaining Berndt's position, McLoughlin said the condo conversion papers had been filed with the Registry of Deeds in April of this year. "The issue is not the right of Berndt Realty to go condo," McLoughlin said. "We filed all the necessary documents."

He said the complex had been condo since April. He also explained that Edward Berndt Jr. would become sold owner of the condo complex in January of next year.

Residents 70 years of age or older will be allowed to stay at Parkview, he said.

He said he would be bound to the age defined by the state concerning the definition. That age could be 65 or 70, he said. He said the elderly occupied 29 units or 10 percent of the total at Parkview.

Another group affected by the conversion are what McLoughlin termed "the not so young."

Options available to this group, McLoughlin said, include buying their units with the 10 percent discount offered to residents through Oct. 21 or remaining in the unit until it is sold. One resident termed that Oct. 21 offer "an ultimatum."

He said the units won't be sold until Jan. 1 of next year.

In an interview last week with The Star, Berndt said the condos ranged in price from $30,000 to $69,000.

The attorney said tenants had "three or four months" to look for a place to live. "If no buyer buys the unit, McLoughlin said, rentals will continue with no eviction action. He said federal financing for the units was available.

In answering other questions from tenants at the meeting, McLoughlin said the units would be sold as they presently exist.

Concerning the long range options facing tenants, McLoughlin said those options "are to either buy or get out."

Some new residents, who rented apartments after the April conversion date, complained they had't been told of condo plans at Parkview.

A realtor rental agent with Berndt said some tenants were told of the plans. She said others weren't informed since the company had no definite plans as far as a date when conversion would get underway.

One tenant's remarks summed up the feelings of most of the residents at the meeting.

"I don't feel I've been dealt with straightly," the tenant said. "This meeting should have taken place between tenants and Berndt Realty."

Concerning questions about the site over which the complex is constructed, formerly a tannery, McLoughlin said, "I

Codman Co. First Choice Of Re-Use Group

Selectmen Vote On Washington School Monday

Wade Welch

The committee studying the re-use of the Washington School building have recommended that Selectmen choose the Codman Company of Boston.

Codman was one of four firms, which included the Washington Development Association, the Niles Company and the American Property Team, ranked by the committee in that order, as possible developers of the Highland avenue structure.

Developers plan to turn the building into an 18-unit condominium project.

However, Selectmen Chairman Wade Welch said he won't vote for any developer who required the insertion of a developers control clause, which would allow developers to retain majority ownership in the complex until the last unit was sold. Chairman Charles Tseckares has been asked to obtain assurances from developers concerning the insertion of the clause.

Those assurances, Welch said, must be in writing.

Such a clause, Welch said, could allow the developer to retain control of the complex indefinitely.

"They could rent one (condo) and hold on forever," Welch said. If the developers clauses included, Welch said he won't vote to accept any of the bidders.

For example, a developer at the school site could sell 17 of the condo and retain one. As long as the developer held that one unit, he would control the complex's board of directors.

Welch said he was currently involved in litigation with 70 clients over just such a clause.

"It won't happen here as far as I'm concerned," Welch told Tseckares.

Selectman Edward F. O'Connell suggested that written assurance include provisions limiting developer control until the last unit is sold or the end of one year, whichever ever comes first. Welch agreed with O'Connell's suggestion.

The Codman Company offered $305,000 for the building.

The second developer ranked, Washington Development Association, offered $255,000 while the Niles Company, which ranked third, offered $256,000. The fourth ranking developer, the American Property Team, offered $342,000.

While the American Property Team offered the largest amount for the school, the committee felt Codman met the criteria more than did the three others.

Tseckares said a number of criteria were used in ranking the developers and reducing the number of firm from 15 to four.

Those criteria included environmental concerns, which had the committee studying the impact of the project on the neighborhood at large.

"The building is, after all, a building in a neighborhood," Tseckares said. "We wanted to minimize that the impact on the neighborhood."

The committee, which included neighborhood representatives, also looked at the site plan, examining such areas as parking and activities planned for the project.

They also investigated proposed architecture of the building.

"We tried to encourage developers to make changes to the building to make it look more residential than institutional."

The committee also examined the coordination between marketing plans and architecture, Tseckares said.

Tseckares said developers had been encouraged to direct the marketing of the condos toward Winchester residents, using local realtors and ads placed locally.

Tseckares said he would contact the ranked developers concerning the control clause and report his findings to Selectmen next Monday, when the board plans to vote on the committee's recommendation.

Committee Approves Teacher Agreement

As expected, the School Committee this week unanimously approved the new two-year contract with the Winchester Education Association that gives the teachers successive seven and one-quarter percent pay hikes.

The 270-member teachers union overwhelmingly ratified the contract last week. Now Fall Town Meeting will be asked to vote to fund the contract that will cost the town approximately $385,000.

Along with the money, the teachers also received a specific recall procedure for tenured teachers that are laid off. Under the agreement, laid off teachers that are to be recalled will be allowed 10 days to respond if offered a "suitable" (which means full time) position.

If they fail to respond in 10 days they waive their recall rights.

But, if a teacher refuses a part-time position they do not forfeit their recall rights. In addition, if the first teacher recalled accepts a part-time position and a full-time position for which they are qualified becomes available, then they have first rights to the full-time position.

Also, longevity compensation for teachers seeking early retirement was increased from $750 to $800 the first year of the contract to $850 from there on.

The School Committee, meanwhile, maintained control of the Reduction in Force criteria that is to be used to lay off tenured teachers because of declining enrollment.

The five criteria used in determining which teachers get laid off are seniority, performance, needs of the system, years within the same discipline and years of continuous service in Winchester.

"It's very important language to us," said School Committee member Constance Papas, who along with Roger Bauman, represented the School Committee during the negotiations. "It (RIF language) allows for something more than seniority to prevail," when making RIF decisions. Papas told the committee Tuesday night.

WEA President Steve Gorrie said he "was glad that it's finally settled. Hopefully, now we can go onto other things, like fighting (Proposition 2.5)."

The old contract had expired Aug. 31 and teachers had been working without a contract since school began Sept. 3.

Selectmen Vote To Oppose Question 2

Selectmen voted Monday to support and endorse a citizens' committee studying Proposition 2.5 in its opposition to the proposed measure. The vote represented the Board's first formal action on 2.5.

Lawrence Smith, chairman of the citizens' committee told Selectmen said that while the purpose of the proposal, the cutting of property taxes, was a "worth while one," it provided no means to raise lost revenue.

Smith said Winchester faced a 30 to 35 percent reduction in revenue during fiscal 1981 should 2.5 gain voter approval. He said the committee, made up of nonelected residents and those not working for the town, planned a meeting Wednesday night where they expected to take a position opposing the proposed measure.

The measure, Smith explained, "borders on fiscal disaster."

Selectman Edward F. O'Connell, in commenting on the proposal, said, "This is not tax reform. There's a difference between pruning the apple tree and cutting it down. People in Winchester are used to getting apples. It (Proposition 2.5) removes but it doesn't replinish."

Selectmen Alan Macdonald agreed, saying there was a need for a broader sort of reform rather than one which limited itself to one area.

Chairman Wade Welch also agreed and said the town faced cutting $647,000 from last June's budget should the measure be approved in November.

In answering questions concerning Selectmen's decision to act as a board in opposing the measure, Welch said, "We ran to speak in the people's interest. If we cut $3.5 million (the estimated amount Winchester stands to lose under 2.5) the best programs will go, those which serve the citizens who need them most."

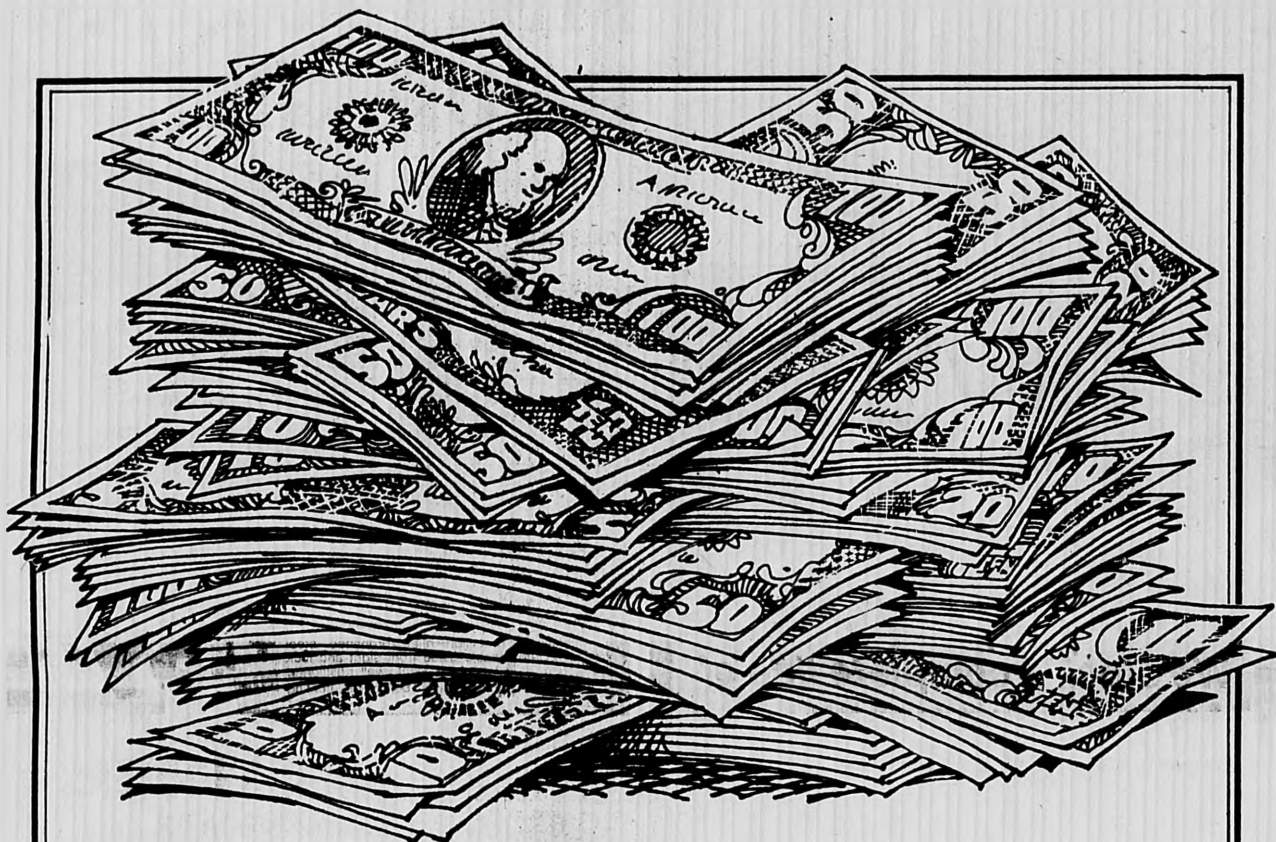

Smith is a former Selectman and member of the town's Finance Committee.

School Notes

Multicultural Specialist

The School Committee this week unanimously approved the appointment of Grace Young Madsen to the position of multicultural specialist.

She will start Oct. 20 and will receive a salary of $10,078.

She replaces Lee Behnke who resigned earlier this year. Five candidates were interviewed by Behnke, Curriculum Director David Ackerman and Marva Gibson before Madsen was chosen.

Intramurals

The new intramural program at the McCall Junior High has started off slowly but school officials still are confident it will gain in popularity once a few kinks are ironed out.

McCall principal Robert Fitzgerald admitted there hadn't "been the enthusiasm from the students that we had hoped would be there."

The three sports offered in the fall were flag football, soccer and volleyball. School Committee member Mary Jean Weylman suggested that part of the reason for lack of enthusiasm about the program might be attributed to flag football being just of primary interest to boys.

The lowest participation for any activity was 25 students with the high being 210 for floor hockey, which doesn't start until the winter. Most activities had 50-60 kids involved.

"We're disappointed but we haven't lost patience. We think it will come," said supervisor Jan Dolan.

The School Committee also approved the appointments of the following 12 people as intramural faculty managers: James Centorino, Joseph Crowley, Joseph Dilorio, Richard Elliott, Neil Gillis, John Grange, Thomas Hughes, Edward McGrath, Eugene Prior, Cheryl Quinn, Susan Tierney and P. Kennedy Tully.

Non-Resident Students

The School Committee this week rejected the requests of two parents seeking to allow their children to remain in the Winchester schools after moving out of town.

They also approved a similar request of a high school senior whose family had also left town.

Under an old policy, the only students whose family moves out of town that can remain in the Winchester schools are those students going into grades 6, 8 and 12, the last years of the elementary, junior high and high school levels.

The vote rejecting the request of two students not in one of the three required grades could be reversed pending new information from the parents.

The vote was 5-0 with Constance Papas abstaining because the parents weren't at the meeting to present their side.

Group Sets Discussion At Public Library

The Winchester Great Books Discussion Group which meets at the Winchester Public Library the first Wednesday of each month (7:15 p.m. - 8:45 p.m.) has chosen its readings for the 1980-81 year.

This Great Books Series B includes Freud's "Civilization and Its Discontents", Aristophanes' "Peace" and "The Birds", Voltaire's "Candide" and selections from Gibbon's "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire".

A complete list of the readings will be posted on the bulletin board in the vestibule of the library. Inexpensive paperback sets of readings are available for those attending the group.

death on Wednesday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tucker Room of the First Congregational Church in Winchester. The speaker for the evening will be Dr. Charles Streff.

Dr. Streff is a psychologist who has had many years experience in helping families and individuals deal with the process of dying and the experience of grief. Dr. Streff teaches a course in the psychology of death and dying at Fitchburg State College, is involved in private practice in Acton, and serves as a consultant to hospices in the area.

The program will consist of a lecture by Dr. Streff on how a child's understanding of death changes at different developmental stages. Death is a difficult topic for adults, and as a result most adults have problems in answering the myriad of questions that children ask when they experience the death of a relative, friend or pet.

Dr. Streff will provide suggestions to explain death in ways that will be appropriate to the understanding of children at different ages.

A question and answer period will follow the lecture, and additional reference materials on death will be available. An admission fee will be charged.

WINCHESTER HEALTH FOODS, INC.

A new store needs to tell what it offers that is different. Perhaps a good way to start is to explain jam. Grocery stores carry jams and jellies that are good and at good prices. Gourmet stores specialize in fancy jams and preserves at reasonable prices. Winchester Health Foods carries preserves that are sweetened only with honey and one is even made from wild berries grown with absolutely no herbicides or pesticides. The preserves are imported from Canada, their taste is tops and their prices reasonable.

Winchester Health Foods carries nitrate free rozen meats, TV dinners that are free of artificial ingredients, ice cream sweetened only with honey, whole wheat and artichoke pastas, free of many common additives and yummy spaghetti sauces containing no sugar or salt. One cannot believe how good they are unless one has tried them!

We have Birell's malt beverage which is an excellent non alcoholic beer substitute at only 49¢ a can. Many other beverages and snacks are available and they also have the "health food store" difference. Winchester Health Foods carries salad dressings that are free of preservatives. Some are free of added salt and still have an excellent flavor.

Winchester Health Foods carries a variety of specialty breads including salt free and even gluten free breads. There are a number of grains and hot cereals as well as delicious whole grain "ready to eat" cereals.

Of course, we carry a full line of natural vitamins and mineral supplements and related products.

We are located in Winchester Center at 29 Thompson Street. Tel. 729-9585. Come in and browse. Take your time. Ask some questions.

as easy as 1-2-3

- 1- Select a base, like one of these straw brooms from our large collection of straw and rattan.
- 2- Add some dried, silk, or poly flowers from our array of colors and styles.
- 3- Finish with a lavish bow made from some of our colorful ribbon.

Door decorations, table centerpieces, and other lovely fall accents are so easy to create when you come to LeeWards. This week I have lots of new ideas to show you, and all the materials you need to make them, like those listed below. Join special MAKIT-TAKIT workshops during this sale and in less than an hour, take home a beautiful fall decoration you've made as easy as 1-2-3! (The cost of your fall decoration will vary according to the components you choose.)

Steven Austin: On Closing A Summer House

The sky cleared at midday and, sitting in the house looking out across the slate-blue water, you can hear the floating dock rubbing against the red-stained wooden steps that lead you down from the bleached-white rocks to the bay.

It is the end of the season; a time when Maine summer houses are shuttered against winter; when you take a ladder and a green, plastic bucket and follow the rain gutter around the edges of the house, lifting out handfuls of wet, dead leaves.

There are lobster men on the bay, their boats built low to the water. From a distance, they seem more like illustrations on the postcards the summer people sent back home than real men.

When you wave at them from the deck surrounding the house, they lift a yellow, rain-coated arm toward you. You can't be sure of their smiles at that distance. You can't be sure if they smile at all.

Earlier, when a gray screen of rain was still down and waves of gray fog drifted across the surface of the water, you wake up and are warmed by a child's secret notion of not knowing for a moment where you are.

The rubbing of the dock brings it back to you. You remember then. You remember there are shutters to be hung and a canoe to be stored and a fireplace to be cleaned.

You work with your friend's father.

He has a seagull that returns every season to the chunks of white bread he throws. The seagull brought something new this season; a child that follows the gull at something less than a comfortable distance.

The seagull and child are not universally loved by the people in the house. But your friend's father champions the bird's cause. You find him a formidable ally.

Hanging the heavy, wooden shutters on the window, your friend's father says, "This is sad. The end of the season is always sad."

You say yes, that you think it's sad, too.

Inside the house, your friend's mother sits at a table, addressing invitations to a party back home. You watch her count the pink and yellow envelopes. Her glasses lie beside a roll of stamps.

Coming out onto the deck, she says, "Oh, this is so sad." Closing the house is always so sad.

You delay putting the largest shutters on until the last minute, as if that delay holds on to the season for a time longer; as if it prolongs the season, keeping the end at a distance, hovering somewhere across the bay among the reds and yellows and fading greens of the tree line.

The sky, white-clouded and patched with blue, helps.

You were here a year ago for the closing. You remember wondering then if the house would be opened again. You knew it would be, but the cleaning and the shuttering and the storing made it seem then as it does now, as if the summer was a long way away.

When you can delay it no longer, you lift, with your friend's father, the largest shutters and the house inside is shadowed blue in the corners.

Their smiles are end of season smiles.

Your friend calls you out to take your picture.

She wears dark glasses and a blue and white fisherman's sweater. Standing there with the camera, the water in a gray sheet behind her, her image eases the end of season feelings.

Looking down the black barrel of lens, you know suddenly next summer will come.

Prop. 2½

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Our town officials and state officials are underestimating the damage which will be inflicted by Proposition 2½ (Question 2 on the ballot).

Town officers base their figures on the cuts necessary to bring Winchester within the 2½ percent of assessed valuation level and on the 62 percent reduction of the auto excise. The State Department of Revenue, as reported in The Boston Globe, projects a cut for Winchester of $6,326,128 in the 1981-82 fiscal year; nearly twice that anticipated by town officials.

But they both understate. For example, those projected cuts, no matter how they are applied, will require massive layoffs of community employees, who will immediately be eligible by law for unemployment compensation.

The additional costs for such compensation will only be obtained by further layoffs; about one person discharged for every four in the first round of discharges.

These reductions will extend over the three years necessary to bring the level to 2½ percent. But during those three years, and thereafter, when only 2½ percent increases are allowed, the costs of supplies, equipment and, most importantly, gas and oil required for even minimal operation are expected to increase by 8 to 12 percent each year at best. That means further cuts because of inflation. Meanwhile, the counties, the MDC and the MBTA, facing the same inflationary pressures, which are national, not local, will have to increase the assessments they are legally allowed to impose on towns and cities.

Since they are allowed to assess up to 4 percent of a community's tax income, their assessments will again reduce funds available for town use.

One can guess that, before it is over, flexible town expenditures after fixed costs for currently state mandated programs (which are not repealed by 2½), other costs imposed by the state and debt obligations will be more than 50 percent below current expenditures.

That spells disaster in fire and police protection, education, maintenance of public parks, building, roads, sewers and water mains and even in the ability to physically assess and collect taxes.

But it doesn't stop there. There is fat in every community budget. It provides extra funds for snow removal for unexpected snowstorms, damage from other storms and other unexpected drains on town income. These are the kinds of expenses which cannot be avoided, but there will be no funds for them.

It is true that the state has bailed out some towns in such cases. With 2½ in effect it will have to do that for nearly all towns and cities and at a much higher cost per community. The enormous increase in state taxes and fees necessary will take a year or more to enact and put into effect and the tax increases will offset much of the 2½ gain to taxpayers. Nor will the towns be able to meet rising pension obligations, either through funding to reduce the drain on operating expenses or through an increase in the operating budget.

People will be unemployed. Those on pensions will be at near poverty levels. Tax income will drop further because these hundreds of people in this community and hundreds of thousands throughout the state will be unable to pay their share. If one were to set out to destroy the Commonwealth it would be hard to find a more effective vehicle than 2½.

Saving Fuel?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In this day and age of conserving fuel and energy I was amazed to read the Winchester school calendar.

The Christmas vacation starts on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 23. It is hard to believe that the school department would open the schools for two days.

Has the School Committee calculated the cost involved in heating the buildings as opposed to the savings that might be made if the schools closed those two days?

Could there be a savings since many surrounding communities are not opening schools that week?

It seems as though the town of Winchester could do their part to conserve energy and close the schools on December 22 and 23.

O'Neill Praised

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Inspector Bill O'Neill of the Winchester Police Dept. is simply a good and compassionate man whom I feel deserves to be recognized for the considerate way he serves our community.

During the past year, I have become acquainted with him through his workings with youth. His technique is refined and one of true sensitivity and insight to both the youth with which he works and their families.

Growing in our world today is tough regardless of age. I realize that it's even tougher for the younger adolescent.

People like Inspector O'Neill share the stuff that nourishes growth and strength and for such I am grateful.

Let's face it. We're really very fortunate because there are very recent cases in other communities where kids and their families have suffered because of the poor character of legal authorities. "The guy really cares about Ya," said one youth who had been in contact with the Inspector.

Such stuff shines through. Mary Piccione

Thanking Whip

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Flipping through the pages of my portfolio recently an advertising layout caught my eye and brought back a pleasant memory.

It was the day before the Winchester-Woburn football game. There was excitement and anticipation in the air as I walked my dog through Manchester field, my eyes searching for an appropriate setting for a commercial product that I was to photograph: a product that could conceivably be carried to a football game.

As I approached the monument dedicated to the youth of Winchester, I noticed a man on his knees digging in the dirt, tidying up the area and planting yellow chrysanthemums. What a beautiful gesture, I thought as I commented on how attractive the area appeared.

I introduced myself as a graphic designer, explained my mission and lamented the fact that I did not have a Harvard banner to use as a prop. The man jumped to his feet and directed his attention to a youth standing nearby, "your brother went to Harvard!"

Needless to say I had my banner, composed my photograph, and was happy in the thought that this man whom I had never met took the time from his present endeavor to extend a helping hand.

A Portrait Of Adolescence

By Mary Cresse

Snap. Click. "That's it. Good. Lift your chin up a bit, please." Snap. Click. "Okaaay, one more. How's the family? Good. Say 'Harvey Wallbanger'. How do you like school? That's goo-heey, where's that smile? I see it, I see it..." Snap. Click. Cachung. "Atsa good girl! That's one set. You'll have your proofs in two weeks, thank you for coming, and have a nice day!"

As I left the studio, I had the slight hope that maybe, just maybe, my graduation pictures would come out all right. I looked in the mirror. The new hairstyle looked okay, as did the quarter inch of makeup Big Sister plastered on my face. I had a new dress on, too. I looked again. I almost cried. There, on the left side of my chin, was the largest product of adolescent nerves I had ever seen. Why today? I thought.

My anxiety was justified, I learned two weeks later. I would have looked better had the photographer left the lens cap on. Just as a review:

Proof 1 — That's strange, I always thought I had an upper lip.

Thank you "Whip" Saltmarsh and a special thank you to the youth whose name I do not know but whose kindness I have not forgotten.

U.S. Leadership?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Voters, you have a right to know.

Recently in Boston in convention assembled the American Legion, whose members have defended our land in peace and war, has publicly expressed its concern for the survival of our country as a world leader of the free nations of the world by adopting this carefully worded resolution.

Resolution 235(OH) (1979NC).

Subject: Trilateral Commission and its parent organization, the Council on Foreign Relations.

Whereas, international friendship depends on trust, mutual respect and integrity; and

Whereas, the present administration has placed the United States in a position where our friends now question our will and our determination; and

Whereas, the present administration strongly promoted the give away of our Panama Canal; and

Whereas, President Carter in strong support of the SALT treaty appointed Trilateralist Paul Warnke to be our chief negotiator of a second SALT treaty which would perpetuate the military superiority of the Soviets; and

Whereas, the present administration is dominated by a disproportionate number of elite members of the Council on Foreign Relations and its offspring, the Trilateral Commission has espoused and promulgated domestic and foreign policies which are judged to be inimical to America's best interest; now, therefore be it

Resolved, by the American Legion in National Convention assembled in Boston, Massachusetts, August 19, 20, 21, 1980, that we demand in the best interests of our country that the Congress of the United States launch a comprehensive investigation into the Trilateral Commission and its parent organization, the Council of Foreign Relations, to determine what influence has been and is being exerted over foreign and domestic policies of the United States.

Why has the media purposely chosen to ignore the voice of two and one half million servicemen?

You might want to ask your representatives in Washington, when they come looking for your vote, about the activities of these two elite groups.

Thanks Given

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Rarely does the Town of Winchester experience the outpouring of community pride and spirit that several hundred of us had the privilege of enjoying last Thursday evening. The Knights of Columbus hall was filled with people who demonstrated they care about this town and the young people in it. There were many others who were not able to be there who clearly demonstrated their caring in their own way as well.

The WISBA champagne reception was a celebration of this spirit. The effort put forth by so many people to provide new band uniforms for the Winchester High School band was monumental, and the results of the campaign reflect that effort. Not all the returns are in at this time, but we are very pleased to announce that the goal of $11,000 was exceeded, thanks to the generosity of this community. All of the funds collected will be used to provide uniforms and uniform-related items for the band, because that was the commitment we made originally. The actual final disposition of the funds for this purpose will be determined by the Friends of the Winchester Music Department in cooperation with Ms. Priscilla Miller, the band director.

So many people worked to make this WISBA champagne reception possible. Recognizing the peril of mentioning specific people because in the enthusiasm of the moment we will certainly inadvertently overlook someone, and yet wanting the community to know those who helped make the event a success, we wish to sincerely thank the following for their dedicated work:

Fran Haley as ticket chairperson, Pauline Lombardi for managing Sponsors, Patrons, and "Top Brass", Carla Lele for soliciting all donations for the evening, Marilyn Lane for coordinating the hors d'oeuvres, Linda Anderson for program preparation, Mark Lombardi for coordinating champagne serving, and Peter White and his staff at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Thanks also to Paul Mahoney of Mahoney's Rocky Ledge for decorations, Kenneth Henderson of Henderson's Stationers for the tickets, James Scanlon of Pandick Press for the programs, Mark Gallagher of Concord Caterers for hors d'oeuvres, Harvey Kornicks and the craftsmen of Macfield Jewelers for the "Sachem" jewelry, and the many other businesses in Winchester, and in other towns, for goods and services to make this evening a success. Our thanks go to Pat Hitchcock and the Executive Board of the Friends of Winchester Music Department for their support and tolerance of this effort, to the women who made the delicious hors d'oeuvres, and to the fine crew of workers in the kitchen to serve and clean up.

A special note of thanks to the Winchester High School Cheerleaders Tumbletots, and Student Union Members who gave so very unselfishly of their time and efforts to serve at the reception. Recognizing that this event was not directed toward their particular organization, these young people nonetheless generously volunteered to help. This was a true manifestation of open sharing.

To all others who in one way or another helped make the evening a success by your work or your donations, we extend our thanks.

Our gratitude goes to Newton Wayland, guest conductor at the WISBA reception, for fitting the event into his very busy schedule, and for sharing with us personally after the performance his respect and admiration for the warmth and unity he felt in the town of Winchester; a feeling he says he has almost never perceived before anywhere.

Of course our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to Ms. Priscilla Miller and the young people of the Winchester High School Band for their fine performance, and for their continuing commitment to the band and what it has grown to stand for. It is for these young people, and their successors in years to come, that this whole effort was carried out.

Finally, and most importantly, we extend our thanks, and that of the young people we noted above, to each and every one who bought tickets and made a contribution to the WISBA effort. You are the ones who demonstrate the pride in our young people, the pride in our Town, and the spirit of community that enriches the Town of Winchester.

Proposition 2½ And Service Cuts

Editor's Note: The following is the second in a series of editorials on Proposition 2.5 submitted by Winchester's League of Women Voters.

Too often one hears Proposition 2.5 spoken of in terms of home-owner property tax relief only. Rarely do we see information regarding the effect on the services we count on, in and outside of Winchester.

It is true that the tax levy in different cities and towns varies widely. There are 86 towns with a tax rate at 2.5 percent, but all these towns have a population of about 3,000 and enjoy volunteer fire departments, regional schools etc. Of another 104 cities and towns of 12,000 to 30,000 population, only four enjoy a rate under 2.5, the locality hosting the Pilgrim nuclear facility and three Cape Cod tourist centers. The remaining 48 cities with more than 30,000 population face instant bankruptcy under this law.

How will this fact affect Winchester?

Among the "instant bankruptcies" we may include cities like Cambridge and Boston. Bankruptcy in relation to Proposition 2.5 means that the 2.5 percent levy permitted would be less than that funding necessary to pay current fixed and mandated costs. There will be zero funds for cities employees in all departments (fire, police, DPW, etc.) never mind parks and recreation, councils for the aging and full school programs.

Tax levies are particularly high in these cities because private property values to be taxed are counter-balanced by large numbers of tax free educational and health care facilities which require extensive services and which serve the larger community including Winchester.

Added to them is the broad business community which employs so many and again, requires extensive city services to be safe and accessible places of employment; the exact city services which will be drastically cut or eliminated.

At home, within Winchester, we face the same dilemmas. Since we cannot cut any of the currently mandated state expenses or fixed costs we discussed last week, we must look to the cutting back or elimination of our own vital town services as well as those services to the neediest — our poor and elderly.

Try the following test; take out your latest tax bill and write down your current assessment. Now write down your total tax for the year. Multiply your assessment by 3 if your house was assessed in 1968.

2.5 percent of that tripled amount will be your approximate tax if this law passes and the standard of "full and fair" cash value is applied conservatively in Winchester.

The above guideline is a general application, subject to interpretation of the law,

Soccer Kicked

Editor's Note: The following letter was written to William A. Colella, Director of Athletics in Winchester's Public Schools.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

What in heaven's name is the problem with the boys' varsity soccer coach? And why are you neglecting your responsibilities as Director?

The boys' varsity is not playing well. Frustration, lack of team spirit and poor morale abound. That they are outscoring most of their opponents is simply indicative of the quality of players, but they do not play well.

Most of these problems can be directly attributed to their coaching. Mr. Bouley has divided the team into "starters" and "scrubs." The starters, in the tough games, become so exhausted by the fourth quarter that they can barely move. The scrubs are rarely played in the tough games. In addition, whenever the scrubs do play, they are trying so hard to please Mr. Bouley and prove they can play that they actually miss many things they would not without this added pressure.

Many of these boys have been playing soccer in the BAYS since the fourth grade. They have been taught very well; they have skills, play as a team and have dominated their division for years. They know when they are playing well, and they know what their capabilities are. Playing good soccer and sportsmanship were always the primary goals of their BAYS team. That the team won as convincingly as they did was a natural result of playing good soccer.

The varsity team, however, is much different. The objective seems to be to win at any cost. If this means some boys play until they are ready to drop or others rarely play or one boy actually takes the ball from his teammates to score, then so be it. How do you justify this educationally? Are the needs of the coach and athletic department so important that they overshadow the needs of the boys? Is winning at any cost an objective? Or has the athletic department lost sight of the fact that they are dealing with young people, individual persons with needs of their own?

Mr. Bouley is in an enviable position. His team has the potential to dominate the league and play well in the State's.

Coaches in the BAYS have repeatedly invited Mr. Bouley to attend practices and games, feeling that he could see what his feeder system is providing for him. Parents have attempted to communicate their feelings to Mr. Bouley, particularly concerning his lack of substitution. Some parents feel their sons are not playing due to the suggestions.

Perhaps as the Athletic Director you can use your influence on Mr. Bouley. Perhaps you can explain that by having the fullbacks and halfbacks simply booting the ball as hard as they can puts unnecessary responsibility on the forward line. Perhaps you can explain that the odds of the opponents getting the ball are just as great as the forward line, unless the backs begin to pass.

Perhaps you can explain that there is no such thing as starters and scrubs in soccer. You put one boy in for four minutes or so and let him run as hard and as fast as he can. Then put in a second and do the same. And then a third. Mr. Bouley was quoted in the local newspaper that he had three boys vying for one position. How fortunate! Use them all.

We as adults, educators and parents have certain responsibilities to our young people that we must meet, and we can never lose sight of the fact that their needs must come before ours. I am trying to meet my responsibilities. I ask you and Mr. Bouley to meet yours.

★ Finast

Fotomat that is adjacent to the supermarket building. Kahn said he didn't foresee the transaction having any impact on those two businesses. He said they would most likely be able to continue leasing their buildings just as they did with First National.

What finally got the deal near consummation three months after Finast closed the Main street store was when Finast bought the property from U.S. Steel and Carnegie Pension Fund, Inc. of New York City, the actual owners of the Winchester Finast along with six others in Massachusetts.

U.S. Steel spokesman Louise Moloney said her firm bought the property in 1959 and had leased it to Finast. Finast had a lease with U.S. Steel that ran through 2009 with five year options to renew starting in 1984.

As long as Finast occupied the lease they had control of the property. U.S. Steel could only intervene if Finast wished to sell the property.

It was in the last week to 10 days that Finast bought the property from U.S. Steel for an undetermined amount and in turn sold it to the real estate trust that subsequently leased it to Purity Supreme.

Because of the rental agreement with Finast, U.S. Steel was receiving just $900 a month rent from them for use of the property. For as long as Finast leased the property that's all they would be required to pay until the lease expired in 2009, Moloney said.

"We can do a lot better things with our money," she added.

Lawrence Buxbaum, Vice President of Governmental Affairs with Finast, said there was no particular reason for selling the property, except that it "happened to be one of the few that we owned."

He added that the deal with Purity had been finalized "within the last week or so" and that "the ball is in their (Purity) court now as to when they'll open it."

As to what impact the transaction will have on the taxes on the property will have to wait until next year, according to a Board of Assessors spokesman.

Finast paid the town $22,727 in taxes last year, according to records in the Assessors office.

Assessors Clerk Dorothy Canning said the new owners would be required to pay the same amount this year.

But next year's rate will be changed once the sale price is disclosed and the property is assessed at 100 percent. The Finast building itself is valued at $152,000 according to the Assessors records. The Fotomat building is valued at $1,600 and the bank at $21,000.

The deal puts an apparent end to the town's hopes of buying the property for either a new Police and Fire Complex or a movie theater.

Gary McPhee, staff assistant to Town Manager Thomas Groux, said those plans were no longer being actively considered.

don't know, if you're scared, you should buy somewhere else."

Welch, who said he could personally vouch for McLoughlin's integrity, said he felt there was little Selectmen could do.

Selectman Edward F. Connell said he while he was comforted about Berndt's plans for the elderly, he was "troubled by those who moved in and were unaware of conversion plans."

"You may unwittingly be placed in a situation that poses a tremendous inconvenience for you," O'Connell told tenants.

"January, February or March is one hell of a lousy time to be displaced," he said.

O'Connell's suggestion that Selectmen draft a letter asking Berndt to extend tenants time at the complex until June 30 of next year drew applause from tenants.

McLoughlin promised to convey that sentiment to Berndt and notify tenants of that decision in a week.

O'Connell subsequently drafted that letter later in the evening.

167 Cities Wouldn't Reduce

If Proposition 2.5 were to go into effect today, 167 of the 351 cities and towns would not have to reduce their property tax levies because they are already at or below 2.5 percent, according to the Center for Studies in Policy and Public Interest of University of Massachusetts.

However, "A Fact Book on Proposition 2.5," one of several Proposition 2.5 publications available to residents through the local county extension offices, says that all of the 351 communities would lose revenues because of the reduced auto excise tax.

Tax reform and Proposition 2.5 are complex issues. To clarify residents' understanding of the proposition the book notes the following about what Proposition 2.5 will not do:

- would have no effect on state taxes other than automobile excise. Income, sales, gasoline, cigarette, liquor and other taxes would not be affected.
- would not put a limit on state spending.
- would not put any controls on state government.

The UMass book explains how

Proposition 2.5 would impact local services. Price of services can be reduced in three ways: by eliminating waste and mismanagement, by increasing productivity or by cutting the actual prices of services.

However, communities can do little about the prices of services which are set by labor negotiations and the open marketplace. Since Proposition 2.5 takes no account of inflation, inflationary increases must be absorbed within the 2.5 tax levy increase allowed.

In trying to cut the quantity of services town officials must reckon with those that are "fixed," and beyond local control and those that are non-fixed. The fixed services include principal and interest on municipal debt, pension and retirement obligations, state and county assessments and unemployment compensation contributions.

According to the UMass study these fixed costs amount to approximately 25 percent of a local budget and must be met before other services are funded. Schools account for about 60 percent of the average municipal budget. This leaves other non-fixed services to be reduced to meet the imposed cap.

Ambrose Parents Visit School In October

Ambrose parents have had two opportunities to visit their children's classrooms in early October.

On Wednesday, Oct. 1st Ambrose parents were invited to school for a Fathers' Coffee and Visitation Morning. After meeting for coffee in the lunchroom, Dr. Forest and Judith Caci, president of the Ambrose Parents' Association, welcomed the parents. They were then invited to visit the learning areas and to observe their children in learning situations.

The following week Ambrose parents were invited to an evening open house. Mrs. Caci previewed the Association's program for the school year and introduced the Board of Officers.

Dr. Forest introduced the Ambrose faculty and provided an overview of school procedures. Parents then moved to the home bases where followed a minischedule of their children's school day. This format presented an opportunity for teachers to explain curriculum plans and to acquaint parents with learning materials.

Refreshments for both "back to school for parents" events were coordinated by Mary Ellen Falcione, social chairperson.

Hospital Costs Affected

Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles submitted by Winchester Hospital on planned construction at the Highland Avenue facility.

Winchester Hospital's proposed construction and renovation project will have a beneficial effect upon overall staffing efficiency and costs.

For the first ten months of the 1980 fiscal year (October 1, 1979 through July 1980), the Hospital has operated with an annual fulltime equivalent (FTE) total of 642 employees.

This total represented 3.96 fulltime equivalent employees per occupied bed. Including currently budgeted positions, the proposed project will require a total of 703 fulltime equivalent employees by 1985. Considering the overall occupancy anticipated, this will represent 3.86 FTE's per occupied bed.

More effective staffing will accompany the proposed pediatric and young adult nursing unit, the expanded day surgical center, consolidated pre-admission testing and patient processing facilities. Improved scheduling will be possible in surgery, radiology, laboratory, emergency service and special diagnostic facilities. These efficiencies will help to control the costs of health care.

The Hospital also maintains a continuous review of all hospitalizations to assure medical justification for the admission and the appropriateness of the length of stay. This review is conducted by a Utilization Review Coordinator with assistance from designated physician advisors.

Admission screening is conducted by the Social Service Department to determine post-hospital care requirements and reduce the need for administratively necessary days of care—those days spent by a patient in an acute care hospital bed while arrangements are made for discharge and transfer to a non-acute care facility, i.e., nursing home, chronic hospital care, home care services, etc.

In accordance with standards set by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals, 50 records are reviewed each month by our Emergency Room Committee to assure the appropriateness of the patient's visit.

In compliance with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health guidelines, utilization review is also performed in radiology and a similar review is planned for the clinical laboratory as required by Public Health Department guidelines. A daily assessment of both intensive and cardiac care patients is also made to assure the necessity for this level of care. These and other reviews of the use of the Hospital's facilities and services have been and will continue to be used to assess the appropriateness of health care delivery.

Pre-admission testing is regularly performed at Winchester Hospital. Patients who are scheduled for elective admission and who live within reasonable proximity of the Hospital are encouraged to have pre-admission testing. Admission scheduling is routinely done for all elective admissions by the Admitting Office to maximize bed utilization.

The Social Service Department of the Hospital does a significant amount of pre-admission planning, usually as a result of referrals from attending physicians contemplating difficulties in placing certain patients following discharge. This type of planning typically involves visits by a social worker to the patient's home and counseling with family members.

Variable staffing is used frequently at the Hospital. Nursing personnel are cross-trained in several areas to accommodate peak volume periods. Vacation scheduling is also employed with vacations encouraged whenever low-volume periods are encountered.

Winchester participates in the Massachusetts Health Data Consortium, Utilization Information Services, and West Suburban Hospital Audio-Visual Services. In addition, the Hospital participates in an equipment exchange program with other West Suburban Hospital Association members. For group purchasing, Winchester is a member of Hospital Services of New England and the Hospital Bureau. Food is purchased through the SAGA Corporation allowing the group purchasing of food items for several health care facilities at volume prices.

The Hospital also has a group purchasing agreement through the Massachusetts Hospital Association for microfilming while joint planning has been undertaken with Massachusetts Hospitals in such areas as emergency medical services and disaster planning.

Take-Out Art Offered

Do you have a bare wall in your apartment or house on which you'd like to hang a framed picture, either a print by a well-known or famous artist or a colored photo depicting some stunning natural scene and which you can change every six weeks?

The library has over one hundred prints by such artists as Edgar Degas, Van Gogh, Claude Monet, Andrew Wyeth, Pablo Picasso, Paul Klee, Henri Matisse, John Audubon, Thomas Hart Benton, Grant Wood, Winslow Homer, Hsuan-Te, Tetsu Tokusai, Rockwell Kent, Joseph Turner and others.

One of the library's most popular services, over half of these reproductions are on loan at a given time. The same applies to the framed photos, pictures of this passing world, taken in several seasons.

The library has a table in the main lobby with hand-out material on voter information for the upcoming elections. One brochure is the "Massachusetts Information for Voters, 1980" and the other is on "Proposition 2½" by the League of Women Voters.

There are several new biographies which will be going into circulation today. "Susan Hayward," by Beverly Linet, the actress who portrayed tragic, stormy women; "Ted and the Kennedy Legend," by Max Lerner, a probing search into his life; "Alexandra Kollantai," by Cathy Porter, the only woman in Lenin's government, who defied him and went into political exile.

Then there's a new biography of the perennial favorite, St. Francis of Assisi, by Adolf Hall, called "The Last Christian." A critical life of Nietzsche," by Ronald Hayman, George Millar's autobiography, "Road to Resistance," a memoir of the French resistance in World War II and "Being Bernard Berenson," by Meryl Secrest.

One more thing — talk about oddities — but the library has a dress form which can be borrowed! Just in case you were thinking of doing some special sewing for the holiday season.

Hospital Slates Discussion On Teen Questions

"Are tampons dangerous for me to use? Is my smoking pot any worse than my parents drinking alcohol? Can I get VD from public toilet seats? Will hypnosis last for me, or is it a one shot deal? If I buy an over-the-counter kit for a pregnancy test, can I be sure it's accurate? How old do I have to be legally before my parents can't dictate to me any more? Is it normal for me to think about suicide once in a while? How can I tell if I'm just moody or really have depression?"

"These are some of the questions that we have been hearing from young adults," said Pat Skehan, RN, community health education coordinator for Winchester Hospital. "To help set things straight, Winchester Hospital is sponsoring an open forum for teenagers."

"Four doctors from the hospital staff will answer any questions that young people wish to write down — and no signature is required," Skehan added.

The panel of doctors will meet teenagers on Wednesday, Oct. 22, at Winchester High School from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The doctors are Andrew D. Guthrie, Jr., M.D., pediatrician who specializes in adolescent years; Edward T. Heck, Ph.D., psychologist; Donald E. McLean, M.D., pediatrician who also specializes in adolescent years, and Stuart F. Pesin, M.D., gynecologist. The meeting is open to the public.

Rotondi To Serve On Advisory Board

State Sen. Sam Rotondi of Winchester, has been appointed to the Massachusetts Victim-Witness Advisory Board by Beryl Cohen, Project Director, of the Massachusetts Statewide Victim-Witness Network.

The Advisory Board, chaired by Atty. General Francis Bellotti, is composed of professionals in the field of law, criminal justice, medicine, social work and human services concerned with or delivering services to crime victims and witnesses.

Senator Rotondi's appointment recognizes his involvement with criminal justice issues. As Director of Legislation for the Massachusetts Bar Association, he submitted a measure to eliminate part-time judges. In the State Senate, Rotondi has been instrumental in formulating Court Reform legislation.

Senator Rotondi, in accepting this appointment said, "More attention to the needs of victims will aid the entire criminal justice system. All citizens and taxpayers of the Commonwealth are either directly or indirectly affected by the level of services available in victim-witness assistance programs and service providers."

As an Advisory Board member, Rotondi is presently assisting in setting up Task Forces to focus on the specific problems of victims and witnesses. These Task Forces will address such concerns as legislation, domestic violence, victim compensation, restitution, rape, problems of the elderly and media coverage for victim-witness assistance programs. A directory of all victim and witness programs and service providers statewide will be developed and disseminated in order that the public will become aware of assistance available to them.

Rotondi reiterated his commitment to the success of the Advisory Board and its goals to address the problems inherent in the present Victim-Witness service structure.

Saltmarsh On New Commission

Representative "Whip" Saltmarsh, (R. — Winchester) was recently appointed to the special commission on local aid formulae by the speaker of the House of Representatives, Thomas W. McGee.

The seven-member commission was established by Chapter 4 of the resolves of 1980, and is mandated to investigate and study the current local aid distribution formula in order to determine if said formula provide a fair and equitable distribution to the cities and towns of the Commonwealth.

Stage Lecture

"Anna Cora Mowatt on the 19th-Century American Stage," is the title of an illustrated lecture which will be presented by Dr. Wendy Nelson-Cave of the University of London on Sunday, Oct. 19 at 3 p.m., at The Museum of Our National Heritage, Lexington. Admission is free.

In the lecture, Dr. Nelson-Cave will summarize the life and theatrical career of Mrs. Mowatt, a famous American actress and playwright who made both her debut and farewell of the stage in Boston.

She will also discuss Mrs. Mowatt's landmark American comedy, "Fashion, or Life in New York" (1845), a satire on the pretensions of the nouveau riche in 19th-century American society.

Dr. Nelson-Cave's lecture at the museum is one of several she will be delivering in the United States this fall before returning to England. She received her BFA and MA degrees in Speech and Drama from American universities, and her Ph.D. in American literature from the University of Birmingham, England. She has taught at the University of Maryland and Northern Virginia College, and at the Open University and the University of London in England.

Fund Drive Reaches Uniform Goal

Although all of the final returns are not yet in, the WISBA committee reports the town has topped the goal needed to purchase new uniforms for the high school band.

"Several large last-minute contributions helped us over," according to Loretta Pharo, co-chairperson of the WISBA champagne reception. "We are gratified not only that the money has been collected, but also that so many people responded so generously to this need."

The Friends of the Winchester Music Department, under whose aegis the WISBA reception was run, is currently committed to purchase $11,000 worth of new uniforms.

These uniforms, together with those purchased by the school department, will just outfit the band this year. An additional 10 uniforms have been ordered in anticipation of an even larger band next year. (A recent poll of the McCall Band suggests that as many as 47 students may sign up for the band next year, with only 32 seniors leaving.)

Priscilla Miller, Director of the Band, has received assurance from the manufacturer that the uniforms will arrive in Winchester within the next five weeks. The last part of the uniforms to be shipped will be the specially designed overlays.

Miriam Reid, co-chairperson of the WISBA event, said, "Through the overwhelming generosity of businesses in Winchester, as well as from other towns, in donating goods and services, the expenses of the entire event, from the initial planning and mailings to the final decorated cake, including everything in between, will be just about $500."

The total charges against the WISBA funds, then, are $13,200.

"Any additional money received for the WISBA effort will be kept in a special fund and used for some aspect of uniform needs," Reid said. This may include present or future needs.

Charles Govostes (left), Vice President of the Class of '55 and member of the reunion committee, reminisces with Nancy Samarco Ritmire, who came the second longest distance (Washington state) to attend the reunion.

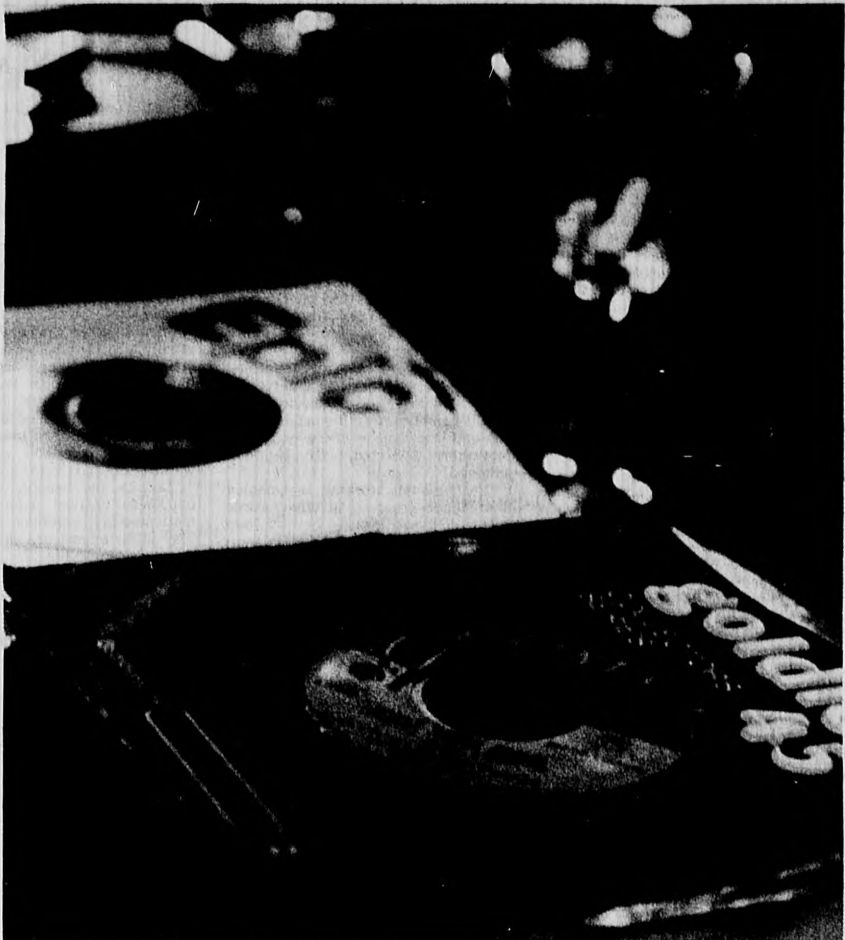

Funny, after all these years,
Those of us who led the cheers
And those of us, who lacking fame,
Sat stiffly silent through the game
All look the same.

Strange, how time can fly.
Some of us who used to cry
Through slow songs at the Senior Dance,
Knowing the odds against romance,
Still took the chance.

Peculiar, too, it seems to be
That those who worked at being free
Laughed at Life, and went their way,
Mingle with the rest today
Same things to say.

Oddly, then, we seem to know
A sense of loss, that long ago,
So young, we put our dreams in flight.
Watching them slowly fade from sight,
We meet tonight.

25th Reunion

The Winchester High School Class of 1955, winners of state championships in both hockey and basketball, held their 25th reunion recently. The reunion attracted more than two-thirds of the 168 graduates to a weekend of partying, football and more partying. The following is the forward to the Reunion Program:

"Twenty five years! Yes, twenty five years since we marched from Manchester Field, diploma in hand, each with thoughts of life ahead. How many of us expected to see men on the moon, the only resignation of a President in office, and a barrel of oil worth its weight in gold? In 1955, we had not experienced the Beatles, Viet Nam, or Billy Beer.

"We should have known that Manchester Field would be renamed for Henry Knowlton. But, did we know that familiar names like Lincoln, Washington, and Wyman would be removed from the rolls of Winchester school system; that steam trains would no longer rumble through the center of town, that jet engines, computers, and saccharin would become as common as peanut butter and radio?

"We've traveled a long road to be together and we miss our classmates not able to attend this reunion. Let us recall old memories, renew friendships, and pray for peace, happiness, and prosperity for all. Let us pledge not to allow twenty five years to pass before we meet again!"

ARTWEEK '80 Starts Saturday

Winchester artist Steven Shade

ARTWEEK BOSTON 1980 kicks off next week and two Winchester artists are right in the thick of it.

Steven Shade and Mary Ellen Conway will be joining more than 500 visual artists in the Boston metropolitan area in opening their studios to the public. ARTWEEK 1980, the largest open studio event in the country, will run from Oct. 18-26.

Shade and Conway, whose studio, "Art N' Facts," is located in Stoneham, work in painting, print-making and photography. Their studio is just one of 329 studios open to the public next week, of which 133 are located in Boston and 196 in suburban towns.

In addition to print-making, painting and photography, the 500 area artists also will display and discuss clay, calligraphy, drawing, electrographics, furniture, film, glass, jewelry, mixed media, performance, papermaking, sculpture and textiles.

In addition, one hundred museums, galleries and other arts organizations will schedule events related to ARTWEEK, including guided tours to studios, seminars, lectures, film programs and exhibitions.

Free maps, which locate all participating artists and related programs, are available at museums, art organizations, Paperback Booksmith stores, Charettes, BOSTIX, and The Artists Foundation or by calling the Foundation at 482-8100. Catalogues, reproducing the works of 324 artists, are also available for $5.

ARTWEEK, supported in part by the federal National Endowment for the Arts, Jubilee 350 and the Office of Cultural Affairs of the City of Boston, is a new experiment designed to encourage people to buy original works of art. A 20 percent discount incentive, offered by all participating artists, can be purchased prior to ARTWEEK at BOSTIX and The Artists Foundation. During the last ARTWEEK, approximately 15,000 visited roughly 400 studios.

Conway and Shade may not expect 15,000 visitors, but they do hope that their studio, one of few in the immediate Winchester area, will attract people interested in works of art and working in the arts.

"We wanted to offer fine arts to people in the suburbs," said Shade. By operating both a gallery and a studio (for lessons), the two artists felt they could meet several artistic needs of the area. "People want and need an alternative to television," said

Conway. "Art helps relieve stress and it is also a form of entertainment."

"The economy is so bad that people can't afford to go away much anymore," said Conway. "So they look for alternative forms of recreation — Working in the arts provides that for them."

It also, added Shade, gives people a chance "to express themselves."

Shade and Conway also believe that even if someone doesn't want to create their own works of art, they still need to have works of art in their everyday environments. "We want to bring art work to businesses and residences," said Conway. "We feel there is a need for artists like ourselves to work with people to enhance their environment artistically, to get involved in everything from the designing and planning of a working-living environment to actually hanging the works of art in those environments."

Shade and Conway started out offering only private lessons. But, they said, the demand soon proved so great that they have expanded to offering larger classes.

ARTWEEK Open House at their studio, at 409 Main st. in Stoneham, is 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 21.

Workaholic Problem Grows

By JOHN KENNEDY
Community Relations,
Winchester Hospital

Special To The Star:
"Workaholic" is a term that seems to be becoming a popular buzz word for describing men or women obsessed with their occupation and the need for achievement. Workaholism appears to be a growing symptom of our times and culture.

In an interview prepared for the release of Workaholics (Addison-Wesley Publishing Co., Reading, Mass. c 1980), probably the most authoritative book yet written on the subject, author Marilyn Machlowitz defined workaholics as people who "...put in long hours-not because they work slowly, but because they work more. They devote more time and thought to their work than they have to. Their attitude is most apparent when they're not working. Many climb the walls on Sundays and don't enjoy vacations very much." Of course, not everyone who works hard can automatically be termed a workaholic for, simply through economic need, many people are forced into working hours far beyond the traditional eight hour tour of daily duty. However, with workaholics, there seems to be an underlying enjoyment of long hours and a need to compete with others that pushes them toward performing feats of hard work for reasons outside mere financial reward."

Dr. John Hamilton, a staff psychiatrist at Winchester Hospital, feels that, though a tendency toward workaholism can be seen in individuals in any occupation, the phenomenon appears to rise most frequently in professions that include a certain flexibility in hours.

"People working in structured systems — such as assembly line workers whose job demands punctuality and where shift work implies a start and stop time — these employees seem more protected," Dr. Hamilton explained.

"Professionals working in technical maintenance areas — in other words, white collar positions — have a loose monitor system, and one that is more self-motivated. By setting their own pace, these professionals have a greater chance to work incredibly hard, due to both the requirements of the job, as well as their own personal demands. Their motivation may come out of job insecurity, or perhaps just out of a tendency to become totally absorbed in work they love to do," he said.

Workaholics seem to have gotten a bad name for themselves largely from the negative connotation of the term and its apparent tie with the word alcoholic.

Workaholic implies an addiction, and though the individual may, indeed, be addicted to his or her occupation, there is no clear cut evidence indicating that this "addiction" is necessarily an "affliction."

In fact, on the whole, workaholics are usually a fairly healthy, happy group of individuals, and such organizations as the American Cancer Society and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have compiled data indicating that people who live longest are often those who enjoy their work and keep working far past retirement age.

Despite the benefits of health and happiness derived from being highly motivated in a profession, the workaholic may often experience pressure from a neglected home life.

"The workaholic must gauge the role of a parent and spouse in a family, and should strive to maintain a solid home base in deference to the demands of a job," says Elizabeth Kenney of Winchester Hospital's Social Service department.

While the workaholic must be willing to make concessions for his or her family's sake as opposed to a job, the family, too, should be willing to make allowances for the workaholic's dedication to duty. Adaptability and understanding seem to be especially key factors for anyone living with a workaholic.

Stress is another factor which a workaholic may fall victim to in the driving pursuit of a career.

Kenney, whose department counsels cardiac outpatients at Winchester Hospital on the effects of stress explains that, "Everyone confronts stress as a daily fact of life. Stress is present at higher levels in situations such as an unhappy marriage, or in problems at work, but lower measures of stress are with us constantly — even in relatively common occurrences like lunch with a client, or in making a business presentation. Though workaholics are better equipped than most people in handling pressure — going so far as to thrive on it — they face stress more frequently and regularly, simply by the rapid pace with which they live their lives."

Coping with the presence of stress can involve the use of relaxation techniques and meditation designed to help the workaholic escape, if only temporarily, from the pressure conditions of the day. Since workaholics are also notorious for eating on the run while supplementing their daily intake with rounds of coffee and junk food, an improvement in effective dietary habits can be another wholesome form of stress reducer.

Workaholism is not a phenomenon out of which any clear, right or wrong conclusions can easily be derived.

The need to work long hours, seemingly tirelessly, through nights, holidays and weekends affects each individual and family differently and in accordance with personal dynamics, tolerance and demands.

Like many social trends, it's also interesting to note that children of workaholic parents have a marked tendency toward either following the examples of their parents into adulthood or, instead, they may totally reject the life standard which they've seen throughout their early years and opt for a lifestyle completely opposed to their parents' pace.

Art Association Asked To Exhibit

Walter W. Hulbert, branch manager of the Cambridgeport Savings Bank in Winchester Center, has invited members of the Winchester Art Association to participate in an ongoing exhibit.

Six paintings have been hung and will be on view throughout the next month.

Kathleen Indigaro has two watercolors on display. A scene of Cape Cod was painted on location during summer vacation. Another watercolor is of a cluster of field daisies.

Jean Barba's florals are portrayed in oils. A multicolored bouquet of petunias and a sprightly arrangement of spring flowers are Barba's offering.

Gloria Giello's snowscapes are in acrylics. One painting is of a skier on a sunny slope while the other portrays a farmer walking across his snowy pasture.

All three women are Winchester residents and on the executive board of the Art Association.

Indigaro is a member of the Reading Art Association and Barba and Giello have been active members of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Painter's Guild for several years.

High School Sets Mini-College Plans For Month

Every Wednesday after school at 2:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the Guidance Office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Oct. 22, the following institutions will be represented: Bridgeport, University of (Conn.), Brown University (Rhode Island), Bryn Mawr (Pennsylvania), Catholic University (Washington, D.C.), Emmanuel College, Fisher Junior College, George Washington University (Washington, D.C.), Grinnell College (Iowa), Ithaca College (New York), Maine, University of at Orono (Maine), New Hampshire College, The New School for Social Research, Northfield Mt.

Hermion, Swarthmore College (Pennsylvania), Trinity College (Washington, D.C.), United States Marine Corps Recruit and Wagner College (New York).

On Wednesday Oct. 29, admissions representatives from the following institutions plan to attend: California Institute of Technology, Fitchburg State College, Goucher College (Maryland), Nason College (Maine), Princeton University (New Jersey), Providence College (Rhode Island), and Unity College (Maine).

Summer's over and it's fun once again to spend time in a warm kitchen cooking all sorts of holiday dishes. Everyone has a favorite recipe for this time of year, be it an hors d'oeuvre, casserole, dessert, bread or

Show On Violence Against Women

The Quota Club of Winchester, with the Winchester Seniors Association as co-sponsors, will bring to Winchester on Oct. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at Jenks Senior Center, Thomasina Daniels of Transition House Shelter in Cambridge. Preceding her presentation about "Battered Women, Children, And The Elderly," she will show a 35 minute film that is addressed to the problems faced by these unfortunate individuals. It is titled "We Will Not Be Beaten." The public is urged to attend. Did you know that every 18 seconds, a woman is beaten in this country? She could be a relative, a friend, a neighbor, or a stranger on the street. To find out how you can be of help to these desolate people, come to hear Thomasina Daniels who is doing much to provide shelter on a temporary basis.

A box will be provided in the Meeting Room at Jenks Senior Center in which you can place needed items such as towels, sheets, underwear, toothbrushes, tooth paste, soap, and good usable clothing in good condition. Often those victimized arrive at the Shelter clad only in night clothing or whatever they may be wearing when attacked.

David Bromley Joins Hartford College Staff

Dr. David G. Bromley, a specialist in urban and societal problems, has joined the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences, University of Hartford, as associate professor and chairman, Department of Sociology.

Bromley succeeds Dr. Howard A. Parker, Prof. Parker, who joined the faculty as sociology chairman in 1973, has taken a year's sabbatical leave in order to pursue his research interests. Bromley's appointment has been announced by Stephen Joel Trachtenberg, president of the University.

Prof. Bromley, a native of Winchester, comes to Hartford from the University of Texas at Arlington, where he had served as associate professor of sociology since 1974. He taught previously at the University of Virginia, 1968-74, after a year as an instructor at Duke University.

He earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in sociology at Colby College, 1963, with advanced degrees in this field from Duke University - Master of Arts, 1966, and Doctor of Philosophy, 1971.

At his Texas post, Bromley also served as co-director, Center for Social Research, and coordinator of the Cooperative Education Program at the College of Liberal Arts.

Bromley has presented an extensive number of professional papers at sessions held by such organizations as the Southwest Social Science Association in Dallas; the Association for the Scientific Study of Religion, Southwest; the Southwest Conference on Asian Studies; and the Mid-South Sociological Association in Memphis.

His most recent paper, prepared for the August meeting of the American Sociological Association in New York, was titled "Shaping the Public Response to Jonestown: The People's Temple and the Anticult Movement."

Local Swimmers Join Aquathon

Swimmers from Winchester, Burlington, Lexington, Bedford, and Woburn will take to the water this Sunday in the 1980 Aquathon for Easter Seals.

The event, which will be held at the Woburn Boy's Club on Oct. 19 from 1 - 4 p.m. is being held to support Easter Seal swimming and recreation programs for physically handicapped children and adults.

Participants are soliciting sponsors this week to pledge money based on the number of pool lengths they will swim in a 15 minute time period. Swimmers of all ages and abilities are invited to join in the fun and support Easter Seals. Local swim teams and student councils are recruiting swimmers.

McCall Group Holds Open House

McCall Junior High School held its traditional Open House on Oct. 7.

Parents' Association President Alice McCarter welcomed parents at the beginning of the evening. Principal Bob Fitzgerald explained the scheduled progression through the classes, with ten-minute visits in each room. As parents followed their children's respective schedules, members of the McCall staff and Student Council members acted as guides in the halls.

The various teachers explained their respective courses and expectations to the visiting parents.

A record amount of dues was collected in the course of the evening. These monies will be used to fund different Parents' Association projects during the school year.

At the close of the evening, many parents congregated in the cafeteria for cider and doughnuts, provided by Social Chairman Anne Nevins.

Jane Coates To Exhibit Work

Winchester artist Jane Coates will join the festivities of the open studio event Artweek Boston 1980 as an exhibitor at The Old Schwamb Mill in Arlington.

The Mill will be open to interested Artweek visitors Tuesday, Oct. 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday Oct. 25 and 26 from noon to 5 p.m.

Coates, a calligrapher, is among the teachers and other artists associated with the Mill who will be gathering there to work, meet the public, and exhibit their artwork. In its entirety, Artweek will include over 500 professional artists in the greater Boston area.

The Old Schwamb Mill is a working historical museum of industry, art and craftsmanship, which has housed craftsmen and artists for over a century. For more information call 643-0554 or 643-0640.

The Winners Circle

And on it goes... It's nothing new, of course, for Winchester teams to fare well in fall competition. After all, the football team last year missed the Super Bowl by one game, or one touchdown, whichever you prefer.

The girls' cross country team finished second in the league.

The boys' and girls' soccer teams had their customary fabulous seasons.

And what difference has a year wrought?

Apparently, absolutely nothing.

The football team is once again rolling along after four straight wins and is ranked third in the state's Division I standings. Last week the gridders disposed of a decent Belmont team 21-6 despite turning in one of their sloppier efforts of the season.

The soccer teams, you ask?

The girls are 9-0-1 and have already handily defeated the defending state champs Concord-Carlisle at home and were enroute to another thrashing of the state champs at Concord last Saturday before the rains came and spared the hosts. The game will be made up later this month.

'Big Play' Gridders Sneak Past Belmont, 21-6

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

For the third time in four games, the Sachem football team traveled a different route to victory.

In games one and two it was the grind it out, I-know-I'm-better-than-you offense over hapless Somerville and Stoneham.

In game three, after the grind it out approach had failed in the first half against Lexington's gorilla front line, the Sachems turned to the passing game and another impressive win.

Then this week, on a sunny, crisp fall Sunday afternoon against Belmont, the Sachems unleashed their Big Play offense. Result: another win, this time by a 21-6 count.

But Coach Manny Marshall was anything but satisfied with his club's effort.

"It was not a good win. It was not too artistic," Marshall said, shaking his head. "We just weren't ready to play. Boy, when we were offside, we were really offside."

And, indeed, it was not the most efficient effort put forth by the unbeaten (4-0) Sachems, but, nevertheless, a win.

And what made it all possible was three Big Plays that resulted in all three Winchester touchdowns.

Halfback Gary Errico (25 carries, 103 yards and 1 TD) was the man on the first Winchester scoring drive, midway through the second quarter.

Starting at their own 23 yard line, Errico ran for 28 yards, which combined with a 26-yard Rich Fennell to Jim Gibbons completion and a pass interference call against the Marauders' Gerry Haggerty, pushed the ball to the Belmont 15.

Three plays later the Sachems were faced with a fourth and six at the 11-yard line. From there Errico took a pitch from Fennell and ran it wide right, cut in about the five and carried it into the endzone for his seventh TD. Bruce Campbell kicked the extra point through and the Sachems were up 7-0.

That was about it for the first half as Winchester just couldn't get anything else going, mostly due to some just plain old carelessness. Winchester offered the visitors three major league offense miscues to go along with interference, clipping and ineligible receiver downfield calls.

"We saw this one coming," Marshall shuddered later. "I was just hoping we'd have enough to beat them because we're the better team. This game was closer than it looked. We had two big plays. If we had been up just 7-6 when we went for the two-pointer, I know they would have got it."

But, fortunately, for Marshall's peace of mind, it never got to 7-6.

The Sachems resorted to their Big Play offense on their first two possessions in the second half, both resulting in scores to send Winchester out to a comfortable 21-0 lead.

The first score took just four plays in 1:27. Starting at their own 33, Errico ran three straight times for 13 yards.

Then Fennell, (67 yards rushing, 2 for 10, 71 yards passing) ran an option left with fullback Dave Criscione, turned it in at about the 50 and found nobody there. The junior quarterback scooted 54 yards for the score and after Campbell's point after, it stood at 14-0.

The Sachems returned to their passing game after Belmont had to turn it over after just one first down.

Starting at his own 12, Fennell hit tight end Ken Jacobsen at about his own 40 and he rambled all the way to the Belmont 43 before being hauled down.

Seven plays later, a third and eight from the Belmont 28, Fennell pitched to Errico going right and he pulled up and hurled a perfect strike to Paul Mathson a yard inside the endzone for the final Winchester score. Campbell converted and it was 21-0.

Undefeated Sachemettes, Glynn, Run Past Reading

By BILL BARON

The long awaited showdown had begun.

As dozens of teenage girls ran through the streets of Reading, the meet between unquestionably the two best cross-country teams in the Middlesex League was underway.

Reading and Winchester, lead respectively by freshmen phenoms Gail Saunders and Laurie Glynn, went head to head Tuesday afternoon in a confrontation that has tremendous bearing on the championship of the League. Both teams, loaded with talent and depth, put their impressive records on the line.

Glynn, running her typical type of race, got off to an early lead over Reading's Saunders. At the half way point, Glynn had stretched her lead to almost fifty yards, with Mary Boland, Eileen Conley, Lauren Fryklund, Jean Senna, and a couple of Reading runners pushing to stay close.

As Glynn raced over the track towards the finish, her lead became about seventy-five yards, a tremendous advantage considering the proven capabilities of her competition. She crossed the finish line with a time of 14:23, very fast despite the relatively quick course.

After Saunders finished, the Sachemettes really put the screws on Reading's hopes for victory. Boland, Conley and Fryklund pulled away from the other runners to finish within ten seconds of each other, taking third, fourth, and fifth places. Reading then showed their depth, taking seven of the next eight places, but it was too late, as Winchester had already clinched victory in the afternoon's showdown.

Senna, who hadn't competed in two meets, finished fifth on the team and ninth overall, with a time of 16:43. This was a great personal accomplishment as she came back to help ice perhaps the biggest victory of the season, Winchester winning, 22-33.

"It was really a complete team effort," Laurie Glynn said afterwards, while savoring her seventh straight victory. "We probably couldn't have won if everyone didn't run their best."

One important Sachemette who was unable to run was tri-captain Pam Brickley, who could be heard screaming her lungs apart in support of her teammates. "Pam spent most of the day passing out 'KILL READING!' buttons and decorating the locker room with posters," said Mary Boland, another captain. "She was just filled with team spirit."

"All of our girls ran absolutely superbly."

Richard McSweeney

A 'Killer Up Front'

Winchester's 13-year-old running sensation, Laurie Glynn, standing in the hallway near the high school lockers after the Sachemettes had whipped arch rival Reading, paused a moment when asked why she enjoyed running so much.

"She wins," a friend piped in, immediately drawing Glynn's wrath.

Of course, that is not the only reason but it certainly does make the prospect of jogging around town a little more pleasant.

And Laurie Glynn wins. And wins.

The freshman member of the Winchester cross country team has suited up for the squad's seven contests this season and crossed the finish line in each of them in first by a comfortable margin.

Tuesday, in the duel between the Middlesex League's two best runners, herself and Reading's Gail Saunders, Glynn walked away with it, breezing to the finish 15 seconds ahead of Saunders.

"She was just physically and mentally prepared for this meet," coach Joe Cantillon said afterwards. "We expected a real dogfight between Laurie and Gail Saunders. They had finished nose and nose in a pre-season meet at Franklin Park. They're the two best in the league, no doubt about it."

"She ran the kind of race she had to run. She knew she had to start out fast, get the lead and hold it," Cantillon said. Needless to say, she did.

The slim, quiet Churchill street resident shrugs off her skills and considerable achievements in just her first year of interscholastic competition.

Why does she run? "I don't know, something to do."

Was she nervous going against Reading's Saunders? Nope.

"We train on the same team. We're both on the Liberty A.C. (in Lexington) so we've run against each other before," she explains. And who usually won?

"I beat her sometimes," she replies, her eyes nervously glued to the floor.

Glynn got interested in running as a former speed skater. Running was good for her speed skating preparation and when she saw there wasn't much local competition or even places to compete, she doffed the skates and donned the running shoes.

Solar Energy Use Good Plan

Homeowners who are searching for ways to stabilize their monthly fuel bills should be aware that solar energy represents one of the best economic strategies available today. The main question shared by most consumers is whether there is real financial justification for what appears to be a large and exotic expenditure. Quite simply, all the uncertainty about the economic feasibility of solar energy is no longer necessary in 1980. It can be easily demonstrated that there are substantial financial and environmental advantages and benefits in the solar investment.

Probably the most widely publicized advantage for any qualified energy purchaser is the Residential Tax Credit Program. When you invest in solar energy, the federal government returns 40 percent of the cost of the system and the State of Massachusetts will enhance this tax credit by an additional 35 percent after the federal credit has been calculated. The total tax credit for Massachusetts residents tallies up to an impressive 61 percent. Suppose a solar domestic hot water system were installed at a cost of $4,000. The 40 percent Federal tax credit would reduce the cost by $1,600 to $2,400. And the Massachusetts tax credit would reduce the cost by an additional $940 for a final net cost of $1,460. A quick review of this process shows that the homeowner will not have to pay out $2,440 in taxes that fiscal year and is essentially purchasing a $4,000 system for $1,560, thanks to these government incentives.

There is good reason for the government to be so generous. These incentives are the first clear signals to the American public that a priority must be given to eliminating our dependence upon expensive imported oil and substituting more reliable alternate and renewable domestic energy sources. And the sooner, the better, according to the Energy Project at the Harvard Business School. Their landmark 1979 report, "Energy Future" estimates that the true cost-impact on the American economy for each barrel of imported oil ranges between $35 and $85 per barrel. Energy Project editors Stobaugh and Yergin state, "To these potential costs must be added some social and political risks, difficult to estimate, but no less real....Indeed, U.S. leaders have begun to worry seriously about the impact of inflation on the fabric of American society."

Solar energy is part of the solution to inflationary fuel bills. For instance, heating hot water in the home or business accounts for the second largest energy expense next to space heating. A solar hot water system can supply 50-75 percent of the typical hot water needs for the home.

A complete financial analysis, taking into consideration fuel savings, conservation measures and proper financing procedures, will in most cases assure the homeowner that the monthly combined bill for heating water will actually stay at 1980 level while the pay-back period for full recovery of the initial expenditure usually ranged from 4-7 years. As a home improvement, a solar system enhances the value and the marketability of the property. A survey of local realtors has revealed that prospective home buyers are far more interested in the homes that exhibit solar potential or has an operational system already installed. But perhaps the real surprise bonus that most homeowners don't realize is that a solar domestic hot water system is actually one of the most lucrative and guaranteed financial investments available anywhere, with annual rates of return ranging from 15-25 percent.

Escape Sachemette Swimmers Eye Marblehead Meet

And now the season has come down to one meet for the Sachemette swimmers. All this other stuff is just a workout. The meet with Marblehead, originally scheduled for last Saturday was postponed because of the holiday until Oct. 25. The team's swamping of Burlington Tuesday and upcoming meets against Bedford and Melrose should be just another hour with the sparring partner. It's all come down to one meet for the 5-1 swimmers.

"That's our only tough meet left," said Coach Vin Palumbo after his squad whipped Burlington 97-74. "This meet (Burlington) was nice. Bedford shouldn't be too tough. Right now we're working for the Marblehead meet."

Marblehead and Lexington (the only team to defeat Winchester) are the only teams ahead of the Sachemettes.

The swimmers triumph wasn't nearly as close as it appears.

The scorekeeper almost appeared as if he couldn't count past two when one views the gang of one-two Winchester finishes in just about every event.

Winless Wakefield Eyes Upset Of Winchester

For the second consecutive week Winchester Coach Football Coach Manny Marshall has to come up with a way to motivate his unbeaten football team.

Last week against Belmont he had to fight off a tendency to letdown after the previous week's big 19-7 win at Lexington. Sure enough, the gridders did not play nearly as well as the week before but still managed to stop the Marauders, 21-6.

This week's opponent, winless Wakefield, presents a different problem. Following Wakefield, the Sachems take on Melrose, Watertown and Burlington, three teams all expected to offer tough challenges. Which makes it all the more plausible that the Sachem squad will be looking past Wakefield.

"They haven't won a ballgame," Marshall mused, admitting it might be a little difficult getting the troops properly concerned. "I'd just like to see us execute well."

Despite the apparent overmatch, Wakefield Coach Ira Yabner is confident that it won't be the laughter some people might be expecting.

"I've seen a lot of positive things happening. We have a lot of young kids but our younger kids are starting to progress," Yabner said.

Last week Woburn whipped Wakefield 20-6 in the rain but Yabner was pleased with his club's effort. "We were behind 14-6 with four minutes left," said. "Then we started to make some mistakes and gave up some big plays. But we were in the ballgame right until the end of the end."

Yabner, after watching the Sachems dispose of Belmont Sunday, admitted his squad is not of the "same caliber as Winchester. But we've seen them twice (also against Lexington) and we feel we know them pretty well. They're a good team, a well coached team and we're going to have to play a very, very good game and that's what I'll be telling our kids."

"But I don't think we have to be in awe of Winchester. We respect them but we are not in awe of them," Yabner insisted.

Like previous opponents, Yabner said his defense will be keying on Errico even though quarterback Rich Fennell has shown considerable ability to pass and produce the big play the last two weeks. "But Errico still carries the ball 85 percent of the time. We'll be ready for both (passing and rushing) and they have some other good running backs as well."

Co-captain middle linebacker Mark Rose will anchor Wakefield's defense and will have to have a superb outing if Wakefield is to have any chance of staying with the Sachems.

Offensively, Yabner is hoping his young unit will continue to improve. The tailback in their I offense is Chuckie Odom. At fullback is Scott Blake; who Yabner said had a great game against Woburn with over 50 yards rushing.

Jim Gerace at split end and Bob Mason at tight end give Wakefield two competent receivers.

But the offensive line is inexperienced, Yabner said although the two tackles, Paul Zingerelli and co-captain Joe Amyony, both weigh in at about 230 pounds.

Directing Yabner's offense is Paul D'Agostino, just a sophomore.

"He's had trouble picking his receivers," Yabner said. "But he's only 15 so it's going to take time. He has good speed and runs a good option but he makes mistakes like any 15-year-old."

Both teams figure to be pretty healthy for Saturday's 1:30 contest at Knowlton Stadium.

This Week's Sports

Girls' JV Soccer Team Record 9-1

First year soccer player Kathy Mangano scored all three goals to lead the Winchester girls' junior varsity soccer team to their fourth consecutive shutout victory, a 3-0 win over Andover Tuesday.

"It's amazing because she just started playing soccer this year," Coach Donna Tanner explained. "She's just a natural athlete and her size (about 5-9) is intimidating."

Mangano also plays softball and basketball.

The victory, the fourth straight shutout (Winchester has outscored their opponents 12-0 during the stretch) pushed the team's record to 9-1.

Earlier the team continued on in their winning ways with victories over Burlington and Bedford both by 3-0 scores.

Scoring in the Burlington game were Patti Ricciardelli, Chris Franchi, and Kathy Leonard. For Chris & Kathy it was their first goals this season to bring the team total to 14 who have scored on J.V.

Defensively, the girls played super as Karen Kirk, Karen Twichell and Thea Phillou only allowed three shots on goal by Burlington players.

On Monday the JV's once again dominated in their best executed game of the season, winning 3-0.

Kathy Mangano played an outstanding game scoring her second goal in her first year playing the sport. A consistent performance once again by captains Kathy Fitzgerald, who notched her sixth goal, Maria Saviano, and leading scorer Ricciardelli. Franchi and Leonard also played very well.

The J.V.'s have shut out their opponents in the last three contests behind goal tenders Erica Johanson and Michelle McCarthy. Winchester has scored 32 goals while their opponents have tallied only 7 over the whole season.

Sachem Harriers Fall To Reading

By BILL BARON

The Winchester Sachems' cross country teams fell just short of victory in two of three meets last week. While being hosted by Watertown and by Reading, the boys were unable to forge ahead at the finish, and wound up dropping their record to 2-5.

In Tuesday's clash in Reading, Pat Kennedy finished second to the Rocket's best runner, Kevin O'Brien, as he recorded a time of 13:28. Ten seconds later, Hugh Murray outprinted another Reading runner, barely nosing him out to take third place.

But junior Joe Callahan lost the next finish line battle, and had to settle for fifth place, one second behind his Reading opponent. It was a slightly disappointing finish for the top three Sachems, for all of them were within striking distance of first place at the half way point.

Freshman Barry Sirchis followed three Reading runners to the finish as the Rockets clinched the victory. John Provenzano tried to catch two more Reading harriers in the home stretch, but ran just short of energy, finishing 13th overall with a 14:36 time. When the scores were tallied, Winchester lost, 26-34.

"The boys are beginning to mature," Sachem coach Joe Cantillon said after the meet. "The top four boys are showing a great deal of improvement, and they're gaining confidence with every meet."

The preceding Tuesday, the Sachems lost a meet in Watertown that could have gone either way. The final score was 27-28, meaning that a finish just one spot better by any of the top seven Sachems would have reversed the score.

Winchester's Number 1 runner, Kennedy, finished first on a short course which took the runners on a trek around Fresh Pond. Pat finished at 12:56, five seconds ahead of Watertown's Kevin Malloy. Hugh Murray cruised to the finish, taking third place, while "Dude" Callahan took fifth, five seconds behind Tom Mann of Watertown.

Kennedy had an especially fine day, as he finished less than forty seconds off the course record. However, it wasn't enough to keep the Sachems from losing their fourth meet of the season.

Friday was a different story entirely, as the Sachems rebounded to beat Burlington with perhaps their best performance of the season. Kennedy again took first place on his way to setting a record on Winchester's new cross-country course.

Pat finished at 15:58, well ahead of Andy Merlino and Walter McLaughlin of Burlington, who took second and third.

Hugh Murray took fourth, followed closely by "the Dude", finishing at 16:35.

"I felt very good while running today," said Murray, the sophomore with lightning-colored hair. "I felt really strong, and I had something left for the finish."

★ Glynn

Three years later she's ripping the Middlesex League apart as a freshman and has been the primary force in turning the girls' cross country squad from a good one to a real good one.

Cantillon, who's been coaching at Winchester for most of the last decade, pulled up short of saying Laurie was the best he's had.

"Ask me in four years and I'll tell you," he says. The only person that comes close, however, is Janis Oehm who graduated a few years back and is now a potential All America at the University of California at Berkeley.

"At this point in time Laurie is much more advanced as a freshman than she (Oehm) was. It will be interesting to see what happens the rest of her career," he said.

And an obvious reason for that is because she has been running longer than most. Whereas many cross country participants don't really get started until high school, Glynn arrived as a freshman with three solid years of experience.

"She has more background than any girl on the team," Cantillon explained, adding that it sometimes makes it more difficult to coach her than some of the other less experienced runners.

"Coming to us as an experienced, prepared runner she knows the basics and has other background behind her. So we have to spend more time thinking of her, designing workouts and long-term planning," that will be a challenge to her, Cantillon offered.

The unbeaten Sachemette squad is

Winchester-Concord Rained Out, Booters Then Waltz Past Bedford

The letdown that was almost certainly called for and definitely understandable simply never materialized.

The unbeaten girls' soccer team had to face a pretty decent Bedford team at Leonard Field Monday after an exasperating weekend. Not that they lost, mind you.

Instead on Saturday they had traveled to Concord for a rematch against the defending state champs. That the Sachemettes had handily disposed of Concord in Winchester two weeks earlier made the contest all that much more interesting.

And Winchester came out and was absolutely all over Concord, outshooting the hosts 13-0 through most of the first half but they couldn't push across any goals and the rains came to the rescue of Concord and the Sachemettes had to return home with nothing but the satisfaction that they can beat the defending champs anytime they choose, apparently.

"We didn't give them a chance to get anything going," a jubilant, if frustrated Coach Chris Scanlon said afterwards.

"To go out there and start to go right at 'em like the dam had burst was great. But we respect Concord, they're still a heck of a team. And now we're going to have to go back there and do the same thing we did Saturday," Scanlon said.

The make-up date has been set for either Oct. 20 (3:30) or Oct. 25 (2:30), Scanlon said, adding that the game will be made up in its entirety.

The superb, if fruitless effort, set up the Columbus Day encounter with Bedford, a team the Sachemettes had nipped just 3-2 earlier in the season. And coming off Saturday, Scanlon admitted he was concerned.

"We were really sky high on Saturday," he said. "I knew it would be tough (against Bedford)."

Wrong, coach.

Employing an uncanny ability to take advantage of every opportunity to score, Winchester rolled to a 6-2 triumph.

"I'm always happy when we get the win," Scanlon said. "But today Andrea deMars had a sprained ankle even though she did play and Prudy Horne had a stiff knee so I was a little worried."

There was, of course, no need to be. In fact, the two injured players almost made Scanlon look like a liar. deMars played her usual superb game, notching a pair of goals and Horne backboned a defense that allowed just one shot in the first half against goalie Kate McCarthy (a save on which McCarthy will surely face larceny charges).

The Sachemettes jumped out on top in the first quarter when Ann Porell booted a penalty shot into the low right hand corner. Patty McCabe upped the count to 2-0 when she got credit for a centering pass that a Bedford player neatly deposited in her own goal. It was that kind of day.

Shortly after McCarthy smothered the blast from about 10 feet out, Kim Donlon came right back with a goal, a shot that found the right corner along the ground.

Shortly before the half, deMars put the nails in the coffin with a header from about 10 feet in front to make it 4-0 at the intermission.

"The opportunities came and we took advantage of them," Scanlon said simply. "Our whole game is supposed to be trap and pass and we showed some skilled passing out there. We had some tremendous lead passes."

A few minutes into the third quarter deMars booted a sliding left footer into the right corner to make it 5-0.

Bedford's Lois Farrell finally beat McCarthy with a shot to the top corner but Maria Montouri answered that quickly, stopping a corner and deftly blasting a five-footer home to make it 6-1.

Bedford's speedy Michele Busa outraced everyone, including Winchester goalie Julie Sullivan for the final score.

★ Cross Country

Friday, when Burlington came to town, Winchester again dominated the top spots as they handed the Deviliettes a most convincing defeat. Boland and Conley followed Glynn to the finish ahead of Burlington's best runner, Joann Terrio, who had set a course record the preceding Tuesday against Wakefield.

However, she could only muster a fourth place finish in this race, as Boland, Conley, and Fryklund (fifth place) all set personal records for the course.

"The girls are still continuing to improve," said Cantillon. "Most of Reading's girls set personal records on their own course, and we still beat them. It'll take a catastrophe to overcome us."

THUR., OCT. 16

8-9 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
THE WHITE SHADOW (II). Coach Reeves (Ken Howard) returns to N.Y. for his high school class reunion in this first episode of a two-part special preview presentation.

James Whitmore and Robert Hooks guest star. Most of this was filmed in and around The Big Apple.

9-10 PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)
COUNTRY GOLD—THE FIRST 50 YEARS. A golden dozen of country music's reigning greats: Lynn Anderson, The Carter Family, June Carter Cash, Roy Clark, Larry Gatlin, Merle Haggard, Waylon Jennings, Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell, Mel Tillis, Ernest Tubb, Don Williams and Dennis Weaver is your host. Music for our ears.

9-11 PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
THE BOYS IN COMPANY C. Action! Drama! With Stan Shaw, Andrew Stevens, James Canning.

Michael Lembeck, Craig Wasson and Scott Highlands. They are some of the guys who arrive at a Marine Corps training center where they are assigned to the same company, and then sent to fight in the Vietnam War.

9-11 PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
BABY COMES HOME. Tony Award winner Colleen Dewhurst and Warren Oates star as a middle-aged couple, who, having raised three children, find themselves parents again. It's a dramatic story but liberally laced with humor.

Everyone needs love and attention. Just like they say. Mildred Dunnock is also in it and as always the pro.

FRI., OCT. 17

8-10 PM ABC (7 Central/Mountain)
BEFORE AND AFTER. America's obsession with slim figures, diets and pound-shedding exercises is explored as Patty Duke Ashton stars in the dramatic and bilingually humorous story of a housewife whose avoirdupois threatens her marriage. All about girth control.

SAT., OCT. 18

8-10 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
CENTENNIAL: THE CRIME. Brian Keith, Lynn Redgrave, Cliff DeYoung, Anthony Zerbe, Lois Nettleton, Cristina Raines and Alex Karras star in this episode of the TV adaptation of James A. Michener's best seller.

8-10 PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)
MARATHON MAN. If you missed this suspense thriller the first time, here it is again with, of course, Dustin Hoffman and Sir Laurence Olivier.

Skilled actor Olivier is a sinister figure from the Nazi past. Chilling as a fall night.

SUN., OCT. 19

8-11 PM ABC (7 Central/Mountain)
FUNNY LADY. Barbra Streisand back again as Fanny Brice singing all the best songs, romping through great comedy routines and loving all the wrong men.

8-10 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
THE OUTLAW JOSEY WALES. Clint Eastwood stars in this western-adventure which he also directed.

About a farmer's determination to find the outlaws who killed his family and destroyed his ranch. Some good character names: "Little Moonlight" and "Carpetbagger" among others.

MON., OCT. 20

9-11 PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
A CRY FOR LOVE. Powers Boothe plays a thrice-married alcoholic and Susan Blakely is cast as an amphetamine addict. Two self-destructive lovers who are aware of their problems and seek help but find that recovery is not that easy.

It's based on Jill Robinson's autobiographical best seller, "Bedtime Story." No, Virginia, this is not about Papa Bear and Mama Bear.

TUES., OCT. 21

8-10 PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)
FLATBED ANNIE & SWEETIEPIE: LADY TRUCKERS. Two young girls join forces to save an expensive trucking rig from the repossessor and keep it out of the clutches of hijackers. Rousing action-adventure film with Arthur Godfrey, Rory Calhoun, Avery Schreiber, Fred Willard and Billy Carter who makes his drama debut. That's what the marquee says!

WED., OCT. 22

9-11 PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
PLEASURE PALACE. Omar Sharif in a gutsy drama of a professional gambler who finds his reputation at stake.

THURS., OCT. 23

8-9 PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)
THE WHITE SHADOW (II). Ken Howard, James Whitmore and Robert Hooks star in this second half—see what happens when boyhood reminiscences are unexpectedly interrupted by harsh reality. Big cast.

9-11 PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
THE LAST SONG. Lynda Carter stars in her first dramatic role as a young mother who is forced on a trail of terror because she unknowingly holds the key to a deadly coverup. It's a suspense thriller. A nail trimmer.

9-11 PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
PARADISE ALLEY. Sylvester Stallone, Armand Assante, Lee Canellito, Anne Archer, Kevin Conway and Joyce Ingalls star in this drama set in New York's Hell's Kitchen after WW II. It's a heavy.

SAT., OCT. 25

8-10 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
CENTENNIAL: THE WINDS OF FORTUNE. Again: Lynn Redgrave, Brian Keith, William Atherton, Alex Karras and Lois Nettleton star in this chapter adapted from James A. Michener's best seller.

8-10-10:30 PM CBS (7:30 Central/Mt.)
BLINDED BY THE LIGHT. Anne Jackson and Michael McGuire star in this new motion picture for TV as parents whose son falls prey to mind control. Kirsty and James Vincent McNichol also star in this powerful account of brain washing.

SUN., OCT. 26

8-11 PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
SOPHIA LOREN: HER OWN STORY. The beautiful international star and Oscar winner pours her heart into this one as she portrays her mother and herself unfolding her life story from childhood to becoming a world famous actress. Rip Torn plays Carlo Ponti and John Gavin steps into the shoes of Cary Grant. Yes, she even rejected a proposal from the film idol. It was filmed entirely in Europe. Put your feet up and relax and enjoy.

TAX FREE EXCHANGE

You can sell your present investment property at a profit, pay the capital gains tax, and re-invest what you have left into a larger property. This could be an unnecessary loss of cash. There is another way to accomplish the same result without paying the tax on the profit. It is called a "tax-free exchange." It could be of special importance if your present property has already seen much tax depreciation over the years.

To qualify for a tax-free exchange, both properties must be held for "productive use in business or for investment" and must be of a "like kind," but most real property held for business or investment would be considered so.

The most significant advantage of a tax-free exchange is that it enables you to obtain the property you want by using the inflated current value of your present property without having to pay the tax on the profit because it is, in effect, an exchange not a sale. But if you are in this position, by all means, have a professional handle the details. It's no arena for amateurs.

Employment

OPPORTUNITIES WITH BURROUGHS

We are an expanding division of the Burroughs Corporation, a world-wide leader in the manufacture of computer-based systems with the following interesting opportunities.

ACCOUNTING

We're looking for a person experienced in accounting functions. You should enjoy working with figures, know how to operate a calculator and have some typing ability. Specifically, you will be involved with accounts payable, sales invoicing, accounts receivable including collections and assist in other accounting functions. The work will be varied and interesting. Please call Elliott Baldwin.

MARKETING SECRETARY

Due to a recent promotion within the Department, we are looking for a person who is capable of handling diverse activities in our Marketing Department. Reasonable typing skills and good communication abilities are necessary. You will be referring calls to appropriate sales and field service personnel, typing sales orders, maintaining sales filing systems and mailing out literature as requested. Please call Thomas Hoy.

MANAGER OF DRAFTING

We need a take-charge individual who is fully capable of expanding our drafting services and at the same time can function as a leader in packaging our new products. In-depth knowledge of commercial electronic packaging is necessary, along with experience in sheet metal practices, generating assemblies, schematics and PCB taping. Please call Howell Mitchell.

INCOMING INSPECTOR

We have an opening for a precision mechanical inspector. This position requires a high school graduate with 2 to 3 years' experience in set-ups of measuring equipment. Some background with inspection systems and procedures is desirable. Please call Dan Vitti.

MAINTENANCE PERSON

We are looking for an individual to perform light inside and outside maintenance as well as general cleaning duties on either a part-time or a full-time basis. Please call Dan Vitti.

We can offer you a good starting salary and a full benefits package. We are in a long-term, recession-proof business, where our growth is limited only by our ability to attract qualified individuals who are capable of growing with us. We provide a comprehensive benefit program which includes free medical, dental and life, credit union, stock purchase plan, and extremely liberal tuition reimbursement.

• NURSING STUDENTS
• EXPERIENCED NURSING ASSISTANTS

At New England Rehabilitation Hospital, we're always working to treat our patients with the finest care and personalized attention. But this Sunday, we want to treat you! To good food, great conversation, tours, exhibits, and the opportunity to see first-hand what we're all about. With our focus on you. You'll hear about things like our newly upgraded pay scale, our tuition reimbursement program, our in-service education with CEU's, our flexible schedules with no rotation, our multidisciplinary team approach. But there's more. You'll get to see what nursing can be like in a warm, caring environment... in a pleasant setting.

So come on. Let us treat you, for a change. At our Open House this Sunday. Just take Exit 41S off Route 128 onto Cambridge Street in Woburn. And we'll take it from there. Can't make it Sunday? Just call Lauren Johnston, R.N., at 935-5050 and she'll arrange something convenient.

Football

With 35 seconds left in the third quarter Belmont recovered a Mark Reardon fumble at the Winchester 49 and eight plays later Marauder quarterback Mike Gallagher collaborated with tight end Rich Manning for a nine-yard TD completion.

The Sachem defense, despite a lackluster pass rush held the heralded Gallagher to just one touchdown. Gallagher had a miserable first half, completing just one of seven passes (a screen) for about half a yard.

Gallagher finished the day with 10 completions in 22 attempts for 79 yards. But his offense was also plagued by penalties, with two more completions for 30 yards being called back because of penalties.

Winchester's defense did do a creditable job shutting down any attempt at a running game. The Maraunders could rush for a pitiful 28 yards in the first half, 52 overall. With the way Gallagher throws, it was needed.

"We knew before the game we couldn't let them run the ball," Marshall said. "If we let them run with the ball, the way they pass..."

...Crisolone, rushed into the fullback slot Sunday with Mark Johnson and Paul Manganaro unavailable, likes the position. "It's tough. It's different from halfback. Some of the blocking angles I know I screwed up. But if I do good this week (in practice) I think I'll be there. It's my kind of running. You just put your head down. You should see my helmet," the hard nosed senior cornerback said, showing a sizeable amount of dents in the red and black helmet...

...Belmont Coach Emerson Dickie was not enthralled with the officiating, particularly a pair of interference calls, one offensive and another defensive. But Marshall didn't agree the officiating had an impact on the final results, considering the Sachems 65 yards in penalties...

Sachem Booters Win Too Close For Comfort

By JULIE DERRY

"We win - but not the way we should. We should be beating these teams by six, seven goals," said Sachem soccer coach Gene Bouley.

Bouley was speaking about the Sachems last several wins against Reading (2-0), Burlington (2-0), and even their frustrating tie against Watertown. Though the Sachems dominated all three games, they haven't been playing as strong defensively as they could be.

Reading's only win to date was against Woburn, whom Winchester beat 10-0. Yet Winchester, with numerous shots on goal, only scored twice.

"We're just not scoring. We're not finishing off in front of the goal," commented Bouley.

In the Reading game, the first goal was scored by Paul Williamson in the second quarter. Scott Bowen chipped the ball to center field and then Williamson booted the ball past the goalie and into the net.

Later in the third quarter, Williamson again received the ball and dribbled down the middle of the field. He passed to Eric Lowenstein, who booted it to David Suvak. Suvak shot but the ball was too high and went over the net.

Repeated attempts were made on the Reading goal, but Winchester didn't score again until the end of the third quarter when Williamson and Suvak teamed up on another play.

From Midfield, Williamson passed to Suvak. As Suvak received the ball, the Reading goalie charged out of the goal towards him. Suvak dribbled around the goalie and shot on an open net. Winchester watched the ball roll into the net for the second goal.

In the fourth quarter Kevin Seargent had a couple of strong shots on goal. On his first shot, he received a pass from Scott Bowen. He then dribbled towards the net and shot. The ball went wide. His second shot was kicked from midfield straight into the net. The goalie barely caught the ball.

Winchester outplayed Reading the entire game. However, the precision needed to score was lacking with the number of chances the Sachems have had on goal, their wins should have been greater.

Ski Club Registration Has Started

The Massachusetts Ski Club is now accepting applications for membership in this winter's ski program. Formed back in 1969 for youngsters between the ages of 9 and 17, it is now the largest program of its kind in New England. Each week-end over 1300 children and adult supervisors board buses in the Winchester area for a fun-filled day of skiing and ski lessons.

Club Director, Skip Hall, stated, "Even last season, thanks to a tremendous job of snowmaking by New Hampshire ski areas, we were able to run 14 day trips, two overnights, and week long trips to Quebec and Utah."

Since some programs fill up quickly, early registration is recommended. Information on the program can be obtained by calling the club in Needham at 449-3074.

Field Hockey Team Stops Burlington

If the field hockey team were paid professional players one could cynically argue that they are playing for next year's salary.

But, of course, the Sachemette field hockey squad is anything but paid and yet are finishing a disappointing season with a flourish.

Last week the Sachemettes went undefeated, tying Reading, 2-2 and topping Burlington for the second time this season, 2-1.

And with no tangible rewards in sight for this 3-9-1 team, Coach Pat Ryser insists her team is still psyched up for the final four games which feature Lexington, Wakefield and Woburn.

"The big game for us is Friday at home against Lexington," Ryser said. "We lost 1-0 to Lexington the first time and the girls are really looking forward to beating them this time."

Sophomore Susan Ferry got things rolling against Burlington Friday with a goal midway through the second half to break the scoreless tie.

Another sophomore, Beth Miara added the second score a little later with an assist to a Burlington defenseman.

"She shot it from the right side and it went just like an L. If you saw the type of shot it was you would have said how did that ever go in," Ryser laughed, explaining how Miara's shot deflected in off a startled Burlington defenseman's stick.

Burlington finally got on the board with about three minutes left, beating goalie Elaine Pigott with a blast from the top of the circle.

The journey to Reading on Wednesday proved to be a frustrating one, even though Winchester walked away with a 2-2 tie.

Winchester drew first blood, scoring twice in the first half off the sticks of Martha Doherty and Sheila Connolly. But that was it for the day as the Sachemettes were stymied from there on.

"We had some pretty good opportunities but we just couldn't cash in," Ryser sighed.

But Reading did in the second half, scoring two fairly early goals to tie and that's the way it ended. The tables were reversed on the Sachemettes on the final Reading goal, with the tying score deflecting in off a Winchester defenseman.

"We outplayed them in the first quarter but in the second half they really came out flying. We had a tough second half," Ryser admitted.

So now the Sachemettes have the Lexington game to look forward too, along with the prospect of playing a major role in determining who wins the Middlesex League title.

Wakefield and Woburn could go down to the final day before a winner is determined and with the Sachemettes playing at home against Wakefield Monday and at Woburn on Friday, they could have a lot of say about who becomes champ.

The boys have also impressed, running up a 9-1-2 record following Monday's 2-0 win over Reading. Their only defeat was to the state's top ranked team, Wakefield.

Behind freshman sensation Laurie Glynn, the girls' cross country team has been transferred from a good team to a superior one that has an excellent opportunity to capture a number of post season honors.

And the swimmers are heading to their best season since 1975 with just one loss to date, to highly regarded Lexington.

The combined record of the five teams is 34-2-3.

Guild Celebrates 50th Anniversary This Morning

Inasmuch as 1980 marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour, the occasion will be honored with the celebration of a Mass for deceased members at St. Mary's Church today at eleven o'clock.

Following the Mass, luncheon will be served at the Towne Lyne House, Lynnfield. Mrs. Frederick Connor, President, will welcome members and guests.

Monsignor Eugene P. McNamara, M.S.W., spiritual director, will be celebrant of the Mass. Rev. Mark Sheehan will be the guest soloist, accompanied by Mrs. James Dasebach, a Guild member, as organist.

Ushering honors at the church will be shared by past presidents, Mrs. James Marchant, Mrs. Peter Murphy, Mrs. Marvin Johnson, Mrs. Jeremiah McCarron, and Miss Alice O'Leary.

Each member will receive a gold-color souvenir booklet as a remembrance of the occasion. The booklet will contain the program for the day, a list of the Guild activities for the year, a list of the past presidents, and the names of a large number of Guild members who expressed a desire to be listed as sponsors.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, President Connor will present Monsignor McNamara with a substantial check for the work of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston, the organization for whose benefit the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour was organized in 1930.

Mrs. Richard Keating, Mrs. Henry Valcour, Miss Alice O'Leary, and Miss Mary O'Connor assisted the President in planning for this celebration.

Apple Festival And Mini-Fair At Crawford

"What was mere pie-in-the-sky is now approaching 'apple-pie order.'"

So say finalizers of plans for Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church's upcoming Apple Festival and Mini-Fair slated for Oct. 25 from 10 - 4 p.m.

The main focus of the festival will be apple-baked goods, featuring old-fashioned favorites as well as more esoteric edibles. Crawford bakers promise all palates will be attended to, from the timorous to the thrill-seeking, at a Children's Booth and Snack Bar as well as at a groaning board of goodies that can be purchased by the piece or plateful.

A second feature of the festival will be a Mini-Fair showing some of the many metamorphoses a humble apple can undergo as substance, design or motif for apple-related crafts. Rounding out the day's offerings will be a "windfall" table of assorted handmade non-apple items intended to give early Christmas shoppers a headstart.

Chambers Sentenced In Robbery

The first of three suspects in the March robbery of the Winchester Savings Bank, the first bank holdup in the town's history, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to Mass. Correctional Institute Walpole last week.

James Chambers, 21, of Charlestown, was sentenced by Middlesex Superior Court Judge Albert Silverman to five to 10 years (to be served concurrently) for two counts of armed robbery while masked; five to 10 years (to be served concurrently) for armed assault with intent to murder; three to five years for receiving stolen property and three to five years for carrying an illegal firearm.

Asst. District Attorney Thomas Dreschler, prosecutor in the case, said the state had recommended seven to 10 year sentences on the armed robbery and armed assault charges. He declined to comment whether he was disappointed with the sentences.

Another suspect in the case, Salvatore Montiero, also of Charlestown, is set to go before Judge Thomas Dwyer this afternoon at the Superior Court in Cambridge. He is charged with armed robbery while masked.

The third suspect, 17-year-old Mark Giannino, is scheduled to go to trial on Nov. 6. He is charged with armed robbery while masked, assault with intent to murder and breaking and entering in the daytime.

Giannino's case was delayed because of confusion over his age. He was originally scheduled for trial in the Superior Court after his indictment. But his mother brought forth evidence that he was just 16 at the time of the crime and his case was returned to the Juvenile Court.

But Woburn District Court Judge Francis Cullen reversed that decision

Residents Protest Proposal

Cross street residents think they have enough traffic in their neighborhood.

The majority of the residents speaking at a Planning Board hearing Tuesday told John Lane, a local man who wants to turn a site currently owned by Boston Gas into an office building for from 15-18 doctors, they objected to the proposal on the grounds it would create more traffic in an area they believed is already too congested.

The public hearing dealt with Lane's plan for the 3.8 acre site. Lane has an option to buy the piece from the utility.

Lane is asking that a lot just in front of the site be re-zoned from residential to light industrial in order to allow the construction of the entrance into the proposed building.

His request is listed in this fall's Town Meeting warrant as article nine.

Lane's attorney, Harve Harold DuLong, told residents his client would be willing to sign a covenant having the entrance lot remain under residential zoning should Town Meeting vote such a change.

As explained by Planning Board member Stephen Carr Anderson, a covenant would "run with, touches and is bound with the land." Under the terms of such an agreement, the entrance lot would remain zoned residential, even if the building site changed hands.

Anderson said such an agreement could be altered by Selectmen.

In explaining the proposal, Lane introduced George Wilcox of the Erdman Company, builders of medical buildings.

Wilcox said the preliminary plans had called for a 20,000 sq. ft. building with parking for 100 cars. Following a question from Planning Board Chairman Charles Tseckares, Wilcox said the site, formerly occupied by a gas storage tank, was large enough for 50,000 sq. ft. building and a maximum of 200 cars.

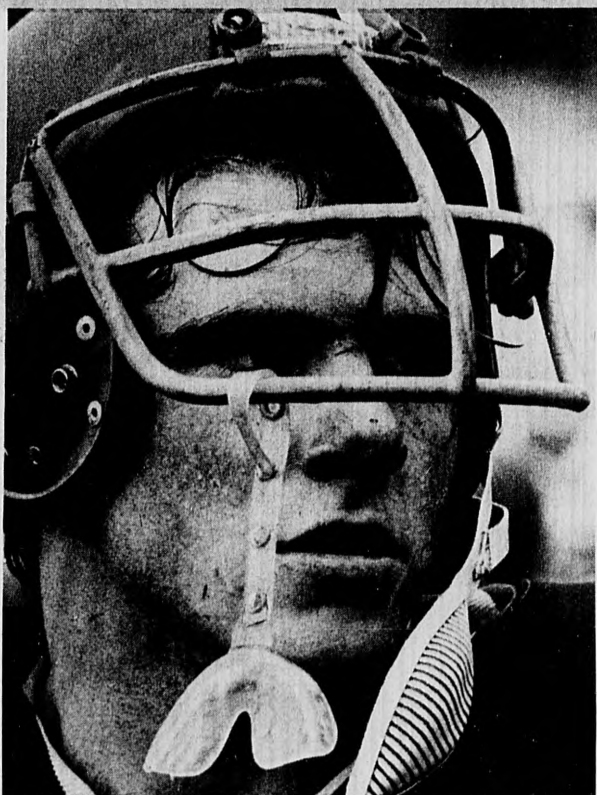

Attorney DuLong said his client would

Washington School Development

Codman Gets Selectmen's Nod

By STEVEN AUSTIN

The Codman Company got the nod to develop the Washington School Building Monday.

Selectmen voted unanimously to accept the recommendation of the Alternative School Use Committee that the Boston-based firm be allowed to purchase the structure for $305,000 and turn it into an 18-unit condominium project.

That decision follows a presentation before the board by the committee last week in which Selectmen Chairman Wade Welch asked for assurances that the selected developer not insert a developer's control clause.

Such a clause would allow a developer to retain indefinite control of the project until the last unit is sold.

For example, the developer could sell 17 of the 18 units at the Washington site and retain one. As long as the developer held onto that one unit, he would control the complex's board of directors.

Welch had asked the committee to contact the four selected developers last week to obtain assurances that such a clause would not be inserted.

Those four developers, ranked by the committee in order of acceptance, included Codman, Washington Development Association offering $255,000, the Niles Company offering $268,000 and the American Property Team offering $342,000.

While the American Property Team offered the highest amount for the property, the committee felt Codman met the criteria used in selecting the developer more than did the other three.

Carolyn Ward, a member of the re-use committee, said Codman submitted a formula dealing with the percentage of units sold in which they would gradually give up control of the complex.

That formula was based in part on a compromise suggested by Selectman Edward F. O'Connell last week. O'Connell suggested provisions be inserted limiting developer control until the last unit was sold or until the end of one year, whichever comes first.

Under the terms of the Codman compromise, the developer would give up one seat on its three-member board of directors when 50 percent or nine of the 18 units were sold. When 80 percent or 16 of the 18 units are sold, Codman will give up a second seat, thus handing over control of the complex to the buyers.

This compromise is also based on a formula-one year basis, whichever comes first, Ward said.

In an interview with The Star Tuesday, Welch said of the agreement,

"I think it's acceptable to the board. That was Eddie's (O'Connell's) compromise and I'm willing to go with it."

Ward said her committee was "extremely pleased" with the compromise.

"They (Codman) would hope to be retained as the managers of the property but that's up to the governing body," she said.

The committee initially received 15

Tenants May Get Extention

By STEVEN AUSTIN

A time extension for residents of the Parkview Apartment complex is currently in the works but owner Edward Berndt Jr. says that announcement won't be made "for a week or two."

In an interview with The Star Wednesday morning, Berndt called reports in the Woburn Daily Times concerning an extension for tenants to April "a guess."

"We're still working that out," Berndt said of the possible extension.

Residents at the 318-unit complex had been offered a ten percent discount if they purchased their unit by Oct. 21. That deadline passed Tuesday and Berndt said 45 percent of the condominiums had been sold to tenants.

"We'll be going public shortly," Berndt explained.

More than fifty residents appeared before Selectmen last week concerning the conversion and were told by Town Attorney Douglas Randall the town could offer no aid.

Since there are no prohibitions in Winchester concerning the conversion of apartments into condos, Randall said legally, the town could do nothing to help residents.

"It's pretty bleak as far as town action is concerned," Randall told residents.

During that same meeting, Selectman Edward F. O'Connell suggested Selectmen draft a letter to Berndt asking that

Selectmen Want Wyman Plan Held

Selectmen have asked that plans for turning the Wyman School into a multi-use facility which would include a day-care program be put on hold. Selectmen are waiting until a decision concerning a possible move by the Bartlett School to the Parkhurst school building has been reached.

Chairman Wade Welch said Monday there was a warrant article on the Fall town meeting docket dealing with either a move by Bartlett to Parkhurst or plans to level the Parkhurst building for single family house lots.

Following a presentation by Helen Philliou, in which she outlined a proposal which would have the Wyman site become a multi-use facility, Welch said, "it would be premature" to discuss the multi-use concept with the Alternative School Re-Use Committee until the possible Bartlett move had been ruled upon.

Selectman Edward F. O'Connell shared Welch's feelings.

Since plans presented by Philliou are, in her words, anything but "cast in concrete," O'Connell suggested those plans be put on hold pending the outcome of the Bartlett-Parkhurst discussion.

"You may do yourself harm" O'Connell told Philliou. He advocated having "all your ducks in a row" prior to presenting the proposal to town meeting. Residents in the area immediately surrounding the Wyman school agreed, with one of them saying there were still "so many ifs involved."

"I think we should wait on the Bartlett," another neighbor said. "Our concern here is that we don't get into a commercialized situation." Neighbors did say that the plans proposed Monday concerning a multi-use facility were "something (they) won't be against off-hand."

Welch explained the possible move by Bartlett to Parkhurst would come no sooner than Aug. 1, 1981.

He also asked neighbors in the area to organize and keep the re-use committee informed of concerns in the area.

In explaining her plans for the Wyman structure, Philliou said operational costs for a day-care facility would be $50,000 per year. She said the rental figure that has been discussed is $18,000 annually.

These figures, like the plans for the Wyman building, are anything but firm, Philliou explained.

Philliou said she would discuss her plans before the fall town meeting in order to give residents an opportunity to

Multi-Cultural Specialist Has The Background To Match

She was born in China, educated in Japan, served as multicultural specialist in the Brookline Schools and just returned from a year's stay in Copenhagen.

Could there be anyone more perfectly suited for the position of multicultural specialist for the Winchester Public Schools than Grace Yong Madsen? Don't think so.

Madsen assumed the duties of multicultural specialist in Winchester Monday, replacing Lee Behnke, who resigned in the spring. Madsen is naturally excited about the opportunity.

"I hope to be able to work with the administration as well as the teachers to introduce basic changes in materials that will address more cultures," the eight-year Arlington resident said this week from her bare quarters in the Lynch Elementary School.

If the reception of the committee that handled the interviews of the position is any indication, Madsen should have no trouble working with administrators and teachers.

Curriculum Director David Ackerman, who along with Lee Behnke and Marva Gibson made up the committee, said the threesome was extremely impressed with Madsen's resume.

"It's just the type of person we're looking for," said Ackerman. "She's not a person with related experiences who would have to adapt to the position. She's actually been a multicultural specialist. She was the strongest (candidate) on paper and our interviews confirmed that," he explained.

Born in China, Madsen was educated at the International School of the Sacred Heart in Tokyo before coming to Duchesne College in Omaha, Neb. as an English Literature major.

She attended graduate school at Boston College and followed that with two years of teaching at the now defunct Graham Junior College in Kenmore Square for two years.

She then left the working world for two years, getting married, having a daughter (now nine) and living in Washington, D.C. for two years.

"It was an exciting place," she said of the nation's capital. "There were a lot of international people there but I like Boston better. I feel that's where my roots are."

Her husband, (a native of Denmark), a graduate and now instructor at MIT, is equally enthralled with Boston and the couple moved to Arlington in 1972 after leaving Washington.

After working a variety of language related (she's fluent in Japanese and Chinese) jobs in the private sector, Madsen started work in the Brookline Public Schools, grades kindergarten through eight.

The first of her four-year stint there she served as an English Second Language specialist. In her second year she began her work as a multicultural specialist. She left that job in 1979 to go to Copenhagen for one year with her husband who had an opportunity to teach at the Technical University in Copenhagen.

She returned and now here she is in Winchester. "I was looking for a job and Winchester was looking for a multicultural specialist," she laughed in explanation of how she landed in her position.

She hopes to sit down with department heads and hold teacher workshops to discuss the different ways of teaching students about other cultures.

All she is asking, basically, is that teachers, parents and students approach the subject with an open mind.

"We all come to school with a cultural lens," she said. "We all perceive the world from our own background. It's important that teachers and students become aware of the lens."

Madsen added that she hoped to be able to meet with parents and educational groups to discuss the purpose of her program and what she is trying to accomplish.

Because the job of "multicultural specialist" is a relatively new position in school systems, people can react to it in different ways. That is something she finds surprising in the United States, historically perceived as the "melting pot" of the world.

Groux Acting As Town's Director Of Public Works

Town Manager Tom Groux is acting as Winchester's DPW director in the absence of former DPW chief Walter Tonazuck who left the post Friday to take a similar position with Lexington.

Groux said he was currently in the process of creating a committee to help screen applicants for the position and review resumes. The town, he said, advertised the position in the Boston Globe last Sunday and will advertise locally this week.

Tonazuck turned in his resignation as DPW director Sept. 22, effective Oct. 17 to become DPW director for the town of Lexington.

He had served as Winchester's DPW director for four years. Tonazuck was the town's first and only director, assuming the position when it was created under the Town Charter.

Prior to joining the Winchester staff he was DPW director in Easton for three and a half years.

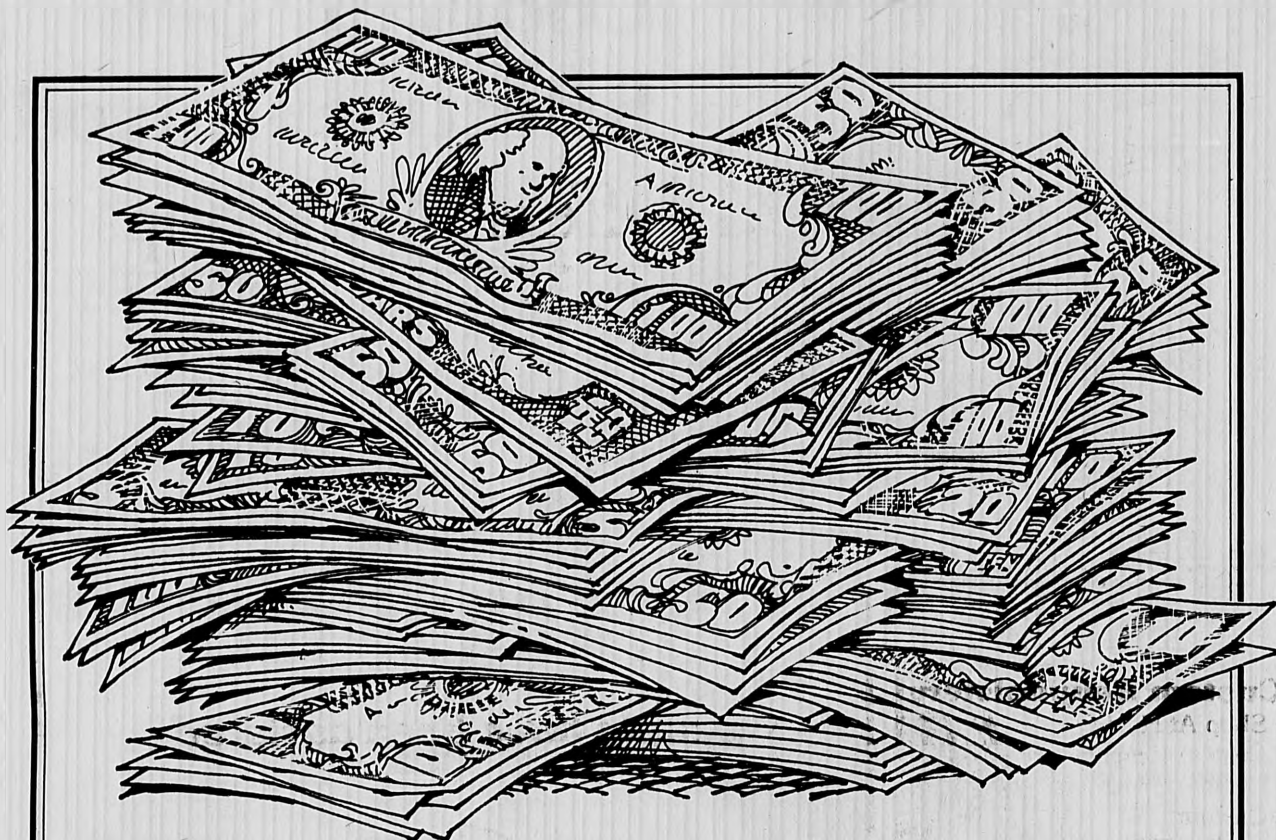

Selectmen O.K. Burlington Route For Bus

Over the "strenuous" objections of two members, Selectmen voted Monday to allow the Community Transit group to begin service to the Burlington Mall.

The 3-2 vote to allow the buses to visit the Mall beginning sometime in November on a three-month trial basis drew fire from Selectmen Chairman Wade Welch and Selectman Edward F. O'Connell.

Alan Macdonald, John Williams and Michael Saraco voted to allow the buses to include the Mall in their routes.

Welch and O'Connell based their objections to the plan on the contention that such a plan would take business away from Winchester merchants.

School Committee Approves Appointment Of Teacher Aides

The School Committee recently approved the appointment of six teachers aide to positions in the Winchester public schools.

The positions are not new but are funded but unfilled openings.

Paul Lynch was named elementary counselor at the Lincoln School, a half-time job. He is a graduate of St. John's Seminary College with a masters in Education from Boston University. He has worked in related positions in both the Arlington and Medford school systems and had recently done work in Winchester as an Elementary Evaluation chairman.

Claire Condon was appointed to a primary special education class at the Lynch Elementary School at the rate of $25 per day.

She has attended University of Wisconsin and the University of Montana as an Elementary Education and Early Childhood major. She expects to get her B.S. from Lesley College in January. Over the past year she has student taught at the Lesley Ellis Kindergarten and Day School and at the Muraco School.

Ann Russell was named to an intermediate special education class position, also at a rate of $25 per day.

She is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College and has a masters in Education from Harvard Graduate School. She taught in the Winchester school system as a fourth grade teacher at the Parkhurst School in 1957-58 and was a tutor at the Lincoln and Noonan Schools from 1971-73. She will be paid $25 a day.

Cheryl Quinn was named a full time aide to two visually impaired students attending the McCall Junior High and will also receive $25 a day.

She is a recent graduate of Framingham State College with a major in Elementary Education and is expected to receive her masters in Education from Boston State College after she completes her practicum.

Lorraine Bradley was named a full time aide for a Muraco School student awaiting a CORE evaluation and will be paid $30 a day.

She has been a teacher aide at the high school since 1976 in the music and physical education departments.

Gretchen Yurgelun will be paid $25 a day as a full time aide at the Vinson-Owen School.

She is a graduate of Wellesley College and expects to receive her masters in Education from the College of Notre Dame in 1981.

Car Break-Ins Concern Local Police Department

Winchester Police are looking into a rash of car breaks in incidents reported Monday.

An Arlington street car owner reported his automobile broken into Monday as did a resident of Watson place who told police thieves took a tape deck and four tapes valued at $100. Another car break-in was reported by a resident of Dortham street, police reports said.

In other action, a Washington street man reported four tires valued at $300 slashed on his 1978 Volkswagen as it sat parked in his driveway Sunday.

Police are also investigating breaking and entering incidents on Governors avenue and Main street.

The Governors avenue break is believed to have occurred between 6:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. Friday. Entry was gained when a sliding door was forced with a screwdriver. Taken were boxes and silver coins valued at $200.

The Main street break is believed to have occurred between 8 p.m. last Wednesday and 7:30 last Thursday. Entry was gained through an unlocked bathroom window. Two 8,000 b.t.u. air conditioners were taken in the incident.

WHS Cheerleaders Praised

Editor's Note: The following article was submitted by Winchester High student Mark Schwartzman and deals with this year's high school cheerleaders.

"There's no stopping us now, we're on the move," rang in my ears as I left the bus filled with what has to be the most highly spirited and talented group of cheerleaders in our division.

Reading the Winchester Star, I noticed articles on the football team, the WHS marching band and the award winning Tumbellettes, but not one mention was made of our cheerleaders.

As a member of the WHS band, I witnessed how enthusiastically the cheerleaders performed at the football games and the superb coordination they had with Ms. Miller and the drum majors.

Therefore it really is appropriate to give the cheerleaders a well deserved commendation.

Knowing that there was more than just a game show, I went behind the scenes, (no, not the dressing room), to learn what makes these girls outstanding.

Some little known facts about them are:

Some of them paid out of their own pockets to attend a cheerleading camp this past summer.

They not only cheer for football games, but also twice a week at WHS soccer games.

When not performing, they are either practicing, painting posters or decorating. (i.e. the TP squad)

Those smiles that we see during a game are 24-hour smiles and so is their spirit whether on the field or in class.

Their dedication and Satchem spirit is overwhelming. This I witnessed while riding with them to the Lexington game, a ride which I shall never forget.

As we left Winchester, the team captains, Denise Fava and Linda Merotta led a prayer for the players, band and Tumbellettes. Then there was a moment of silence, the last I would observe that day.

A frenzy erupted on the bus with the girls chanting non-stop cheers, polishing their white shoes and tying their black ribbons.

There were over 30 different cheers in their repertoire, some of which were traditional and many others, originals. A few could probably make a hit single.

When the bus came to a stop, I felt that these girls could go out on that field and defeat Lexington with their enthusiasm. Throughout the game they performed with excellence, psyching up the players as well as the many fans. Under the coaching of Sandy Barsanti, the cheerleaders are: Seniors, Capts. Denise Fava, Linda Merotta, Kate Kent, Molly and Maryanne Wade, Juniors: Barbie Coughlin, Peggy Burchard, and Nancy Monteith, Sophomores: Lisa Saliba, Alysia Pope, Barbra McNammara and Freshman: Kelly Collins.

On the trip back their screams tore the bus apart. According to Molly Gibson, "The school spirit is the best ever."

The girl's messages to the boy's are the soccer team is really dynamite and the 1980 squad is awesome.

As I stood in the bus I could not help but be moved by the spirit and pride which radiated from these girls. I found myself screaming along with them.

Hoarsely, I asked one when their voices would return.

Peggy Burchard replied "Around 12 noon Sunday."

With this I thought of the cheer that summed up what makes these girls the best.

It reads like this, "We're crazy, spastic, we're enthusiastic!"

That you are, and much more.

Harvard Offers Workshops

The Center for Lifelong Learning at Harvard University offers a variety of Saturday workshops in November of special interest to owners and managers of small business firms, department managers in larger firms, professional practitioners, and members of non-profit organizations.

"Small Computers: Understanding and Selecting Equipment and Services" provides an exploration of small computers. Topics include costs and benefits, varieties of equipment and services, criteria for evaluating alternatives, system designs, and staff requirements and changes in office operations. This workshop will be held on Nov. 1, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuition is $55.

"Planning and Funding Small Business Growth", for principals of small enterprises, is designed to help participants set realistic profit goals and secure the financing required. This workshop will be held on Nov. 8, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuition is $60.

"Business Computers: Effective Use of Computers in Small to Medium-Sized Organizations" includes techniques for management control and evaluating effectiveness, and guidelines for measuring adequacy of equipment and programs. This workshop will be held on Nov. 15, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuition is $55.

"Marketing Strategies for Small Businesses" examines the various elements of the marketing process, including analysis of the marketplace.

also eliminate the "most offensive type of uses" from a zoning board list allowing a number of other types of building, such as factories, warehouses or truck terminals, in an area zoned for light industry.

Lane termed his proposal one which would have "local professionals serving local health needs."

Dr. Tom Mulvaney, one of two attending the meeting who spoke in favor of the proposal, said "Winchester deserves a first class medical building. 'I think it's a good idea and Winchester would benefit from the proposition.'"

Lane said he planned to landscape the entrance lot and the sides and back of the site to prevent another access to the property and be more pleasing aesthetically.

Of traffic, Lane said he anticipated a 3-5 percent increase in daily traffic. He said he planned to have a traffic study done in the area so he could bring more precise figures before Town Meeting.

And it was traffic that Cross street residents had in mind.

All the objections but one centered around an increase in traffic flow.

The consensus of the residents was probably best summed up by a resident who said, "It's unreasonable for people in this area to expect more traffic."

Lane contended that while there would be an increase in traffic, that traffic would be car traffic as opposed to the heavy tractor trailer traffic a factory might create if it were built on the site.

Lane, who estimated the cost of the building at $1 million, said town building codes allowed for the construction of a doctors' office complex on land zoned for light industrial use.

The Planning Board will hold another hearing at which the proposal will be discussed Monday night. Town Meeting will consider the proposal which requires a two-thirds majority vote to gain approval.

Pup

Winchester's Todo, Gail Matthews' "Good Luck Puppy," now has puppies — of a sort. The well-known downtown pooch has dozens of life-size replicas at the Topsy Turvy Children's Shop. People in town often see Todo going to work every morning as the "office dog" at College Marketing Group, Inc., on the Winchester Terrace. The Douglas Company, of Keene, New Hampshire, which made the original toys of the Dr. Seuss Cat in the Hat and the Campbell Soup Kids, has reproduced Todo along with her life story, which is attached to each replica. The life story book is the first of Mrs. Matthews' "I Have No Home" books about the puppy. Promotions and personal appearances for Todo and her stuffed friends are planned across the country and in Bermuda. Todo will also appear in the November issue of YANKEE. Todo is a Shih-Tzu Chinese puppy, a breed considered to be good luck in Chinese legend and went to live with the Matthews when she was just four months old. Todo is not banking on good luck alone, however. She is one of very few dogs with her own accountant — Dean Estabrook.

Police Slate Explorer Post Meeting Oct. 28

On Tuesday Oct. 28, at 7:30 p.m., The Law Enforcement Explorer Post sponsored by the Winchester Police Dept., will hold an informal open meeting in the Guard Room of the Police Station at 30 Mt. Vernon st.

This meeting will be to invite interested young men and women, and tenants' time at the complex be extended through June 30.

At a Selectmen's meeting Monday night, O'Connell said the board had not yet received a response from the real estate firm.

Walter McLaughlin Jr., the attorney representing the current owner of the unit project, Berndt Realty Inc. told residents last week the necessary papers for condo conversion had been filed with the Registry of Deeds in April of last year.

He also said Berndt would become sole owner of the property in January of next year.

"The issue is not the right of Berndt Realty to go condo," McLaughlin said at the time. "We filed all the necessary documents."

The attorney explained that those residents 70 years or older would be allowed to stay in their apartments with no increases in rent beyond cost-of-living increases.

Other tenants, McLaughlin explained, had "three or four months" to look for a place to live.

Concerning long range options available to most tenants at the complex, the attorney said those options were "to either buy or get out."

The condo units range in price from $30,000 to $69,000.

In reducing the number of proposals from 15 to four, the committee applied a number of criteria.

Among those criteria were environmental concerns which had the committee studying the impact the project would have on the surrounding neighborhood, an examination of the site plan which looked at parking and activities planned at the project, an examination of proposed architecture which had the committee encouraging the developer to make the building less institutional looking and more residential in appearance and an examination of marketing plans in which the developer was encouraged to sell the units to local residents, using local realtors and local advertising.

Ward said all 15 proposals are currently posted in the basement corridor at Town Hall for viewing by residents.

The next step in the process, Ward explained, has Selectmen taking the recommendation to the fall town meeting for approval.

If town meeting gives the recommendation a "yes" vote, the area would then have to be rezoned from its current public conservancy, the zoning category all public landings and schools are ranked under, to multi-family use.

and sent his case back to Superior Court where he will be tried as an adult.

Under Mass. General Law 119, section 61, a juvenile can be tried as an adult after consideration of five conditions. Those conditions are seriousness of offense, criminal background of the defendant, protection to the public, past treatment of the defendant the likelihood of rehabilitation.

The March 22 noon time holdup was foiled by off-duty Winchester Police Officer James Pierce.

Pierce, driving with his son on Washington street enroute to a Cub Scout meeting, was stopped at a traffic light when he saw people inside the bank with their hands raised. He pulled over to Park road and approached the bank.

As he did, a driver in a yellow Torino beeped his horn and fled from the scene. Police charge that the driver of the car was Montiero.

Once the other two suspects inside realized Pierce was approaching, they fired two shots out the front door and bolted out the back door towards Swanton street.

On Swanton street Chambers forced a woman and her son out of their car at gunpoint but was later caught at the intersection of Church and Dix streets after his car went out of control.

Giannino was arrested later that night in his Charlestown home and Montiero was picked up three days later in Boston.

All $28,440 that was taken in the heist was recovered.

Association Sets Career Seminar For November

"Self-Assessment in Career Planning," a two-session workshop sponsored by Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association Inc., is scheduled to help residents with questions about careers.

The two consecutive sessions will be held on Nov. 6 and 13 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Lexington Branch of Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association Inc., 186 Bedford St. Persons interested in attending the workshop should call Nancy Langman-Dorwart at 861-0890.

Led by Jane Wells, assistant director of MIT Career Planning and Placement Office, the workshop will focus on introducing participants to the career planning process and will help individuals to analyze their interests, values, and skills as they relate to a career. The workshop will also help participants to identify resources and to make career decisions.

Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association Inc. is a community mental health agency serving residents of Lexington, Arlington, Winchester, Woburn, Burlington, and Wilbraham.

Brink Ordained As Minister In Recent Ceremony

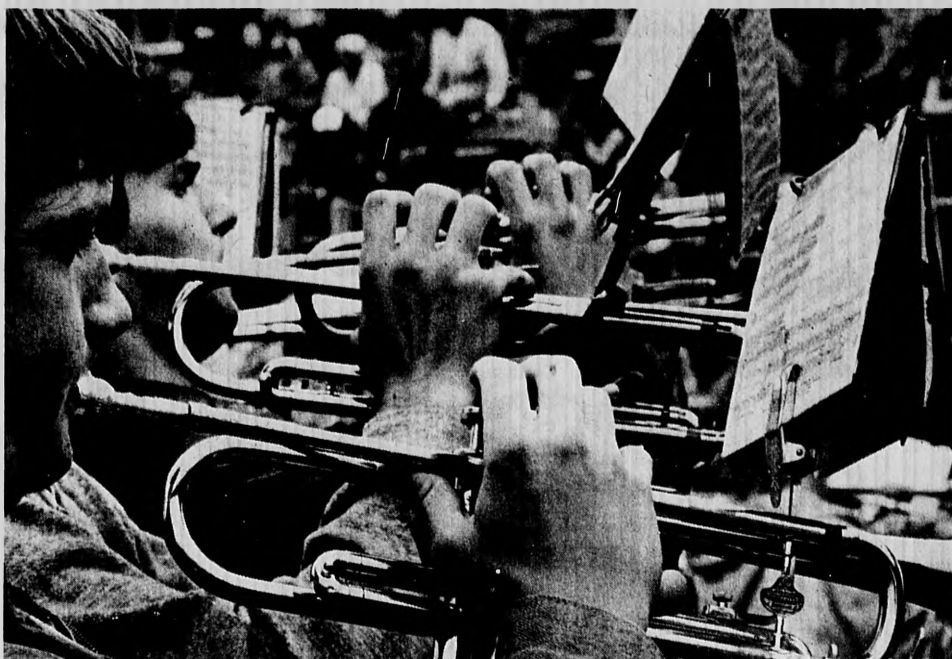

On Oct. 19 Carol Brink was ordained as minister in the Massachusetts Conference of the United Church of Christ.

The service was held at the First Congregational Church. She qualified for this at an ecclesiastical council held at 30. She has accepted a call to be a call to be Associate Pastor at the First Congregational Church in Camden, Maine.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Brink of 33 Samoset rd.

A graduate of Winchester High School in 1963, she was graduated from Hood College with a major in religious studies in 1967. Upon graduation she became an editorial assistant of Colloquy magazine for two years. Following that, she spent four and a half years at the Koinonia settlement in Americus, Georgia. Returning to the Boston area, she worked at the Episcopal Church in the south end of Boston.

In 1977, she entered Andover Newton Theological School and graduated in 1980. During her first year in seminary she was the Junior High Leader in Winchester's First Congregational Church, after which she became the student pastor in the Wellesley Hills Congregational Church.

The high school band performed through drizzle and chilly temperatures at the home football game Saturday. Neither the band nor the team seemed affected by the weather as both put on winning performances.

College Receives MECCA Funding

President James E. Houlihan, Jr. of Middlesex Community College, Bedford, has announced the Division of Community Services received a substantial grant from the Office of Consumer's Education, U.S. Office of Education, Washington, D.C. to train older adults in consumer issues.

Twenty people 55 or over will be trained through Project MECCA (Model Elder Counselor Consumer Advocates) to become Consumer Advocate Paraprofessionals.

The Mary Rank Gerontology Center of the Community Services Division, Middlesex Community College will train these 20 people together with five to ten professionals from community agencies to serve as peer counselors, consumer educators and consumer advocates.

All training is free and will begin in early December with an orientation to the program.

Classroom sessions will meet 10 hours per week for 20 weeks.

The final phase of training will be a 20-week supervised field placement during which each trainee will provide consumer help, information, referrals and support to the clients of an agency serving the interests of older adults. Trainees will be reimbursed for travel.

Upon completion of the training, the Project MECCA staff will help participants with job placement.

The primary goal of Project MECCA is to change the attitude and behavior of persons 55 or over in their roles as consumers.

Project MECCA will also expand the current Consumer Resource center at Middlesex Community College, establish a consumer "hot line" and maintain a speaker's bureau. A training manual of the Project will be developed for use by other institutions interested in replicating this program.

If you are interested in becoming a Project MECCA trainee, please call the Program Coordinator, Barbara Rubin, at 275-8910, ext. 292 for more information, as soon as possible.

Arts Council Gets Set For Requests

Those at the State Arts Council headquarters in Boston are preparing to receive between three and four hundred requests for funds over the next six weeks from groups across the state. Many applications arrive incomplete, sometimes because an applicant feels there is little chance of success.

"I'm always surprised when an applicant says he thinks only large, well established organizations can get Council funding. Nothing could be further from the truth," says Anne Hawley, executive director of the state agency. "Anyone who glances through our funding list quickly sees that most funded organizations are small or medium-sized. And their proposals cover everything from a special newsletter to record the reminiscences of senior citizens to financial support for a series of chamber music concerts."

"Last year, 221 organizations across the state shared in the $2.4 million awarded through the Financial Assistance Program. Financial Assistance is the Council's primary funding arm for professional dance, humanities, literature, music, theatre, visual arts and community-based cultural organizations. This year's deadline for new applications has been changed — from February to December 12."

When the Council meets to allocate funds, it asks three major questions. What is the artistic quality of the proposed project? Whom will it serve? And are Massachusetts artists and humanists involved? Responses to those questions alone determine who is funded, not the size or reputation of the organization involved.

How can all applicants be sure that their proposals receive all of the consideration they deserve? Program directors at the Council have compiled five essential rules to follow:

1. Be specific in describing your project.
2. Prepare tight budget figures and check your math.
3. Attach all the requested documents.
4. Remember these funds come from the state's taxpayers, so try to tell us how your project truly serves the state's citizens.
5. Do not apply to do things for which you have no background or experience.

"Applicants must also understand that there are special requirements because this is a public program," says Susan Hartnett, a Council staff member who reviews applications. "For example, some applicants resent the fact that we need to see detailed budget figures. Others are irritated that we require a complete resume' of the artist involved. We have to know specifics like those because we have to be certain the money will be well spent. We are awarding public monies and we have to account for every penny."

Nancy Padnos who deals with visual arts and humanities organizations says: "What we want is a clear and brief description of your project, how much it will cost, what your organization does all year long, how much you spend overall, and who will benefit from your programs. We also want to know that you can deliver what you promise."

Those interested in applying to the Financial Assistance Program for funding that will begin on July 1, 1981 should call 727-3668 now to arrange the personal interview. The Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities is located at One Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass. 02108.

Halloween Tips

Halloween is supposed to be a little scary, not horrifying. Careful parents can help make Halloween a safe treat for the millions of hobgoblins and witches who will be out and about on October 31.

The Kemper Insurance Group reminds parents of these tips:

Go with your children on the neighborhood rounds or send a responsible teenager. Plan to return by nightfall.

Stick to your own neighborhood or to the homes of people you know.

Avoid darkened houses. Homeowners who welcome "trick-or-treaters" usually keep their homes well lit.

Closely examine all "goodies" before allowing your children to nibble.

Costumes should fit properly and be made with light, visible colors and flame retardant materials.

Reflective tape on all sides of the costume helps drivers spot children.

If possible, use makeup instead of a mask when designing an outfit. Many masks severely limit visibility.

Those swords, knives, broomsticks and even metal or wood "magic wands" can be deadly if your child slips and falls. Cardboard versions (with a little creative coloring) look great and are less hazardous.

Flashlights are safer and easier for children to carry than candles or lanterns.

Neighborhood, community or church Halloween parties can be safe — and fun — alternatives for trick or treating.

Artweek

Bentley College will help celebrate "Artweek Boston 1980," Oct. 18-26, by opening its Linden Hall studios to the public on Thursday, Oct. 23, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and 6 to 8 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 25 and 26, noon to 4 p.m.

During these hours, the award winning works of Joan Trimble Smith, Bentley's artist-in-residence, will be on display, and she will be present to demonstrate oil painting and pastel drawing techniques.

"Portal," a massive outdoor granite sculpture by Boston artist Carlos Dorrien and the Bentley Gallery will also be included as "Artweek" points of interest. Currently on view in the Gallery is an exhibition of oil paintings and etchings depicting futuristic fantasies by Kevin Garrity in his first one-man show.

"Artweek Boston 1980," sponsored by the Mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs, is an invitation for the public to meet over 500 Boston area artists in their studios. A map locating each artist's studio and listing related programs is available free at museums, galleries, arts organizations, The Artists Foundation, Inc., and Paperback Booksmith stores.

For more information about Bentley's participation in "Artweek," contact the Office of Student Activities, 891-2230.

Steven Austin: A Lady Sings The Blues

She was an old woman with an orange plastic raincoat and a paper shopping bag and there were black rings around her eyes. Her feet and ankles were thick and hung over the sides of the cracked, leather shoes she'd worn down at the heel.

Outside, the rain made the streets glisten black, the water hissing beneath the wheels of the cars. I followed her down the tunnel at Haymarket, listening to the hiss of the rain grow fainter. She slipped through the turnstile when the man in the booth had his back turned.

Waiting for the train, I watched her rescue a half-eaten devil's food cake from the trash can. She slipped the cake into her bag, patting the top of her treasure.

When the train came, we both chose a deserted part of the car, and with the aisle between us, she asked me if I was crazy.

"Excuse me?", I said.

"I said, 'Are you crazy?'" she repeated.

"No, just tired," I replied. The train slid along the tracks, its jointed body snaking around corners, past the dim light bulbs in dusty, wire cages.

"I'm tired too," she said, adjusting the shopping bag, moving it from the floor of the car to her lap. "But I'm crazy, too."

There was something like a smile but which never quite became a smile at the corners of her eyes.

"Are you?" I asked.

"Oh, yes," she said, looking down into the mouth of the shopping bag. "I'm as crazy as I can be."

People further up the car who'd overheard us seemed glad they were no closer.

"I'm crazy because I'm not rich," she explained without my asking. "Not being rich makes me crazy."

Her body swayed with the motion of the car, her shoulders rocking gently back and forth, her head as free and full of motion as those spring-headed, toy dogs in the back of some automobiles.

"Everyday, I try to be rich," she said. "Everyday I try. And I almost make it. I come so close. But something always happens to mess it up and then I'm not rich. I'm just crazy then."

I nodded stupidly, trying to pretend what she's said made perfect sense.

"You think I always looked like this?"

"I didn't say anything."

"Well, do you?"

"No ma'am," I said. The people in the front of the car were interested enough to inch further toward us, but not interested enough to come too close.

"Damn right I didn't. I was a singer one time. I was a singer and I was pretty and there was a time when you'd a had to fought men just to sit next to me."

"What did you sing?"

"Don't matter what I sang now."

Right now, all that matters is I'm old and not rich and that makes me crazy."

Talking, we almost missed Park Street. When the train stopped, the people further up pushed through the front door. The singer and I had the back door to ourselves.

Stepping down off the train, the shopping bag brushing against her leg, the singer said, "It's a hard world out there."

She looked up at the ceiling and shifted the shopping bag to the other hand. "Sweet Jesus, it's a hard world."

By MARY CRESSE

Early Saturday morning, maybe seven thirty. A lone bicyclist pedals past you on your morning jog through the hazy apricot mist of an autumn sunrise. A distant bark of a dog sounds through the biting air and the scene is suddenly broken by the sight and sound of a chain of cars, headlights on, heading for Wildwood cemetery.

You decide to follow, or at least pass the site and observe. There you notice a group of thirty or so boys placing a wreath of flowers on a grave. You look again. Now they're all kneeling and they look like they are praying. Didn't they dedicate all their games to him? You continue your jog, feeling somewhat more energetic.

Winchester High School football co-captain Jay Gill explained things this way: "He deserved the season dedicated to him. He had done so much for us and we want to try to show our appreciation in any way. So we bought flowers. Gary Errico made a wreath with a Schem picture in the middle, and it sits right in front of his grave. We go up every Saturday, put the flowers down and the team and the cheerleaders pray for about fifteen minutes. Then we leave the cemetery again, headlights on, and go out to breakfast."

"Does this give the team more spirit for the game?"

"Well in a way it does and in a way it doesn't. For instance, he always used to come in and give us pep talks. He always used to cheer us up if we were down and get us psyched for the game. Now Gary and I have to do it and it's not the same without him. But in the locker room we have a huge wooden sign with a Schem logo on it, and a gold cross below. Underneath that it says, '1980 Schems'."

"During a game do you think of him?"

"Definitely. In the huddle I'll say, 'Don't forget Mr. P.' One time after I said that in the Somerville game, we scored a touchdown." With that Jay sat back and smiled. This expression seemed to reflect a true Schem spirit shared by the entire team.

You watch them at the game every Saturday afternoon, screaming for their teammates, tackling and trampling the other teams. But what you don't see is the inside of this team. Football players aren't exactly in the habit of carrying around bouquets of flowers, praying in the locker room or in the cemetery. Sometimes that image just doesn't fit, other times it fits perfectly.

"He was more than a trainer," Jim Gibbons explained. "Even if you wanted to talk about something that had nothing to do with sports he'd listen."

You could call it a gesture of dedication. Appreciation. More importantly, you could consider it a kind of gift to a very good friend. Frank Provenzano.

"Even if you had never had him as a trainer, you knew him. I just don't know how to explain it," Jay remarked.

I don't think anyone has to.

Letters From Readers

TV And Oil

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The next time the Public Broadcasting System stages one of their fund raising telethons just tell them "I've already paid, at the pump!"

I'm talking about the PBS's national telecasting of the Anti-Saudi Arabian film called "Death of a Princess". The Saudi government asked that it not be shown.

They claimed it was an inaccurate and misleading film, prejudiced against that country by vindictive journalists.

The Saudis claimed that even the film of the execution of one of the Saudi family princess and her lover for adultery was phoney, that it was a staged bit of play acting and not the real thing as claimed.

But no matter, what happened is that the day after the protested film was shown on national public television over the protest of the Saudi government to Washington, the Saudis raised the price of oil $2 a barrel or one cent a gallon at the gas pump. So it's you and I who are paying for the sensationalism of public TV.

The film is typical of the kind of trouble the national and international media can stir up in the world, trouble that so often leads to the loss of another American friend and ally with a Marxist government in its place.

Saltmarsh Lauded

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Representative Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, Jr. of Winchester is to be commended for his role in bringing meaningful and long-overdue reform to the way that state and county construction contracts are awarded and monitored. The reforms, recommended by the Special Commission Concerning State and County Buildings, faced a difficult road in the Legislature and would not have become law without the support of Rep. Saltmarsh.

Often under strenuous circumstances, Rep. Saltmarsh acted courageously to guarantee action on the important reforms. Thanks to his responsible voting, new comprehensive laws are on the books in Massachusetts which will prevent future opportunities for the type of corruption which led to the so-called MBM scandal.

I was proud to have Rep. Saltmarsh work so closely with me to bring about an important change in state government. Representative Andrew H. Card, Jr. (R-Holbrook) Co-Sponsor of legislation creating Special Commission

Voters Thanked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincerest thanks to all the people who have helped me in my uphill struggle to become your candidate for state senator.

My campaign was long and difficult. Much of our time was used to fight a challenge on a minor technicality, preventing my name from being placed on the ballot. At the very last minute, the election committee ruled in my favor. During this hectic time, not a worker left my side, although I must admit I would have understood their frustration. In fact, as the struggle seemed to heighten, I discovered more friends joining our team.

I feel that I fought a good campaign, and my only regret is that my time was limited, keeping me from reaching all of you on a personal basis.

But the future is still in our hands. I will continue to speak out against the pay raises, cost of fuel adjustment, the gas tax increase, and the terrible concern for the way our hard earned dollars are spent.

2½ Supported

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Many of you have heard the dire predictions concerning acceptance of Proposition 2½, such as serious cuts in services of police, fire, you name it.

I am reminded of at least two occasions when in my business experience "the rug was pulled out from under me." I'd sell the house, auction our winter clothing, stop eating? Hardly.

Your vote to kill Proposition 2½ is your assent to continue the extravagance and brazen arrogance of those who work hard to be our elected leaders.

Saltmarsh Thanked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Representative Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr. has once again demonstrated his 100 percent participation in the legislative process during the 1980 legislative session.

During the 1980 legislative session Representative Saltmarsh served on the Rules, Banks and Banking and Transportation Committees as well as the Alcohol Abuse Special Commission.

What is especially remarkable is that during this heavy work schedule in the State House he successfully dealt with the complexities of constituent problems in Stoneham and Winchester while compiling a 100 percent Roll Call record.

Representative Saltmarsh was viewed by his peers during the 1980 session as a person who truly reflected the wishes and concerns of his constituency.

I would like to publicly congratulate Representative Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh for maintaining such a distinguished record of public service. I would also like to thank the citizens of Stoneham and Winchester for sending him to represent them in the Massachusetts Legislature.

Dancing Along

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I hope this will be a fun letter. I'm sure it will be different. It's not political, it's not about the poor and elderly, nor the birds (I do like those letters, however), nor espousing one cause or another.

These days everybody's dieting, going to Gloria Stevens or Weight Watchers. Good grief, how much and how well we Americans eat! It's pretty crazy, isn't it, with so much of our world undernourished?

It's just that I must have some disciples for "my thing" that is pure joy and fun. Lordy, how we need that these days!

O.K. This is what you do. Sunday nights turn on your radio, F.M. 102, for the Boston Pops. They're on 5-7 p.m. But the part you want especially is from 6:30-7 p.m. That's when they play the really jazzy, raunchy stuff. Turn the volume way up and dance! It's wonderful exercise. I can't think of any band that plays "A Fifth of Beethoven" or "Twelfth Street Rag" as well as the Pops. These are all superb musicians, probably teachers, and they give it all they've got. Fiedler was marvelous, but so is John Williams.

I've worked up quite a routine. I put out the livingroom lights so the neighbors won't think I'm completely nuts and dance up a storm. At 7 p.m. I collapse in a chair and say, "wheew", but what a high!

Try it, you'll love it! Please do it and tell me via this "letter's" section that it's a new discovery for you and you feel young again. We were the big band era, if you remember, and weren't we lucky?

I am 63, have five grandchildren and think we all need all the help we can get. Do it, and write!

Parkhurst

or business, the question should not even be considered until a rental figure commensurate with the $2.5 million value of the land and building has been offered.

Clarence S. Borggaard

Of the three schools recently closed, two are about to be converted to residential use, the Noonan and the Washington schools. Between them, another 32-35 residential units will be made available for Winchester residents.

"In what way," I ask, "does the Parkhurst School differ from these other two?"

If they can be converted to residential use, and thus made to contribute toward the solution of the housing shortage, why, then, should the Parkhurst School be singled out to be torn down or rented to outsiders for business purposes at a nominal rental figure?

The Wyman School, yes, in order to preserve it as a school, against the day that we may need another school — but not the Parkhurst, which will never again be needed as a school.

Every taxpayer in Winchester has a substantial investment in the Parkhurst School. If it is torn down, every penny spent on the building is lost. If it is converted into residential units, it could return a very substantial sum year after year.

If torn down, the land alone (without the building) might bring about $100,000, and would yield about 9 single houses most of them on triangular lots of several different levels. Taxes on these 9 units would yield approximately $32,000.

Converted, the land and the building would bring about $500,000 and would yield about 21 residential units — 18 inside the building, and another 3 single houses on the present playing field.

To sum up:
Converted torn down (land)

It seems totally illogical to me that neighbors who can tolerate a school with 300 screaming littering kids for 30 years (and fight to keep it) should now find themselves unable to abide that same old familiar building, all dressed up with lawns, shrubbery, flower gardens, etc., just because their kids no longer go there to school and people are to live there instead. As far as traffic is concerned chances are that fewer people will actually live there than worked there when it was a school.

In view of all this, I implore the Town Meeting to vote to lift all restriction against converting this valuable building into badly needed places for Winchester people to live.

2½ And The Business Community

Editor's Note: The following is the third in a series of articles on Proposition 2.5 submitted by Winchester's League of Women Voters.

Is Proposition 2½ really a friend to business? Let's look at the facts. Do you own or work in an area business? Do you own a "realty trust"? On the face of it, Proposition 2½ seems to offer an instant benefit package to our business community, but let's look a little deeper.

In the big cities, such as Boston and Cambridge, 40 percent of the city revenue comes from residential property owned by Realty Trusts alone. The reduction in taxes on these properties appears to be a windfall, but there were, in California, two long term effects negative to the interests of Realty Trusts owners. First, tenants found very quickly that there was no provision for landlord savings to be passed on to tenants in lower rents, and as a result, tenants banded together to fight, successfully, for greatly tightened rent control. Second, the reduced city income under 2½, means reduced city services to neighborhoods. Can rentals be maintained where there is reduced police and fire protection, transportation and DPW services?

In Massachusetts, classification is in effect to be used by cities and towns if they so wish. It remains to be seen what percentage of the tax income is allotted to the business community within the law. Second, Proposition 2½ provides that user fees must not exceed actual costs of providing the service in question, but there does not appear to be a similar limitation on licensures. Doubtless water, sewer etc. fees will come up to cost levels, but what will happen to registration and permit fees for signage, plans filings, car and truck registrations?

Mystic Valley Children's Council Discusses 2½

Proposition 2.5 was the topic of a debate at a recent meeting of the Mystic Valley Council for Children. The council, which consists of people who live or work in Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester, or Woburn, sponsored this debate in order to educate the community about the possible effects of Proposition 2.5 on services for children.

Citizens for Limited Taxation (CLT), the organization which sponsored Proposition 2.5 was represented by Dr. Henry Miranda. Dr. Miranda, a physicist who lives and works in Bedford, claims that Proposition 2.5 is meant to send a message to state legislators. "I urge you not to get bogged down in specific details," stated Dr. Miranda in reference

The most painful effect on business health under Proposition 2½ is reserved for our big businesses; i.e. manufacturers, research industry and all other light and heavy industry. Under this law, ALL increased levies due to growth must be applied to reducing the tax rate.

This means that not one cent can be applied to the increased services required by business expansion.

In other words, in spite of increased income from expanded business, can you as a businessman, afford to expand or improve your property bearing the added cost of roadwork, utilities, etc.?

Can you attract and keep employees in an area with reduced services, limited school programs, reduced transportation and protection?

Do you want to do business in a state which may vote in a law which will stop business health cold?

to the unlikelihood of people agreeing on all 10 points in Proposition 2.5.

Dr. Miranda stated that unemployment in California dropped substantially the year after Proposition 13 passed. He said that "high technology is the future of Massachusetts," and that property taxes are keeping engineers from moving here.

The opposing view was represented by Robert Weber, chairperson of the West Suburban Council for Children and a member of the speaker's bureau of the Vote No on Question 2 Committee. Weber claimed that Proposition 2.5 is more than a message to the legislators because CLT is concurrently lobbying for a constitutional amendment which would change the state's constitution to include the 10 specific provisions in Proposition 2.5.

He also noted that unemployment in California began its significant decline the year before Proposition 13 passed.

"The most onerous section of Proposition 2.5," according to Weber, "is the override provision." This calls for a two-thirds vote of a community to override the 2.5 percent cap on property taxes. In effect, then, one third of the population of a community is all that is needed to keep the 2.5 percent cap in place.

Dr. Miranda claimed that the cut in revenue would not necessarily call for a cut in services, but Weber suggested that many programs, such as extra-curricular activities, libraries, and recreation, will have to be cut back or eliminated.

Board To Discuss Athletics

The School Committee will be discussing their "philosophy" on athletics in the public schools at the regularly scheduled meeting on Nov. 12.

School Committee Chairman Catherine Alexander said the subject had come up in the past during budget negotiations and "many times the School Committee had been approached by members of the community on what the philosophy of athletics is."

The discussion will center around how the committee prioritizes athletics and extra curricular activities.

What happens at the polls on Nov. 4 may have some impact on the discussions. Should the tax cutting measure, Proposition 2.5 pass, the school budget will reportedly have to be cut by almost $2 million (out of $10 million).

School Superintendent William MacDonald and School Committee member Sandra Rodgers indicated that potential areas that could be affected by 2.5 are the interscholastic, intramural and extra curricular programs.

Copies of the special Centennial Edition of The Winchester Star can be purchased at The Star Office or at The Star Printing Center, both at 3 Church st. Both offices are open 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The Star Printing Center is also open Saturdays, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Boston Edison answers frequently asked questions:

"What's the best way to prevent an electric fire in my home?"

Don't overload electric sockets with extension cords and extra plugs, and be sure to replace worn out wiring. Keep toasters, heaters and electric grills out of the reach of children. And NEVER use a penny to fix a fuse.

Property Revaluation Is Underway

The preliminary work of setting new values to town properties began this week with the house to house inspections expected to begin Nov. 3.

Robert Patten, president of Patten Appraisal Associates, said the work of transferring ownership data from the Board of Assessors records to information cards that the field people will use going house to house began yesterday.

Diana Darden, who is heading up the clerical work, is given the two-week headstart before the field workers begin so a backlog of the data can be obtained.

The revaluation, which will set all properties in town at 100 percent of fair market value, is required by every community in the state. The project will probably take until spring to complete and will be used in determining next fall's taxes.

The field workers will be inspecting the entire house, both interior and exterior, for quality of construction, number of rooms, heating capacity, etc.

Patten was involved with the last firm to revalue the town's property, National Appraisal Associates, in 1966. "It's like old homecoming week for me," Patten remarked.

Information for residents will be distributed by the Assessors office and the appraisers before the actual house to house canvassing begins, Patten said.

Hours when the workers will be visiting the homes will vary to accommodate when residents will be home.

Classified Deadline

Deadline for classified ads in The Arlington Advocate, Belmont Citizen and Winchester Star is 4 p.m. Tuesday. The cost is $1 less if payment is brought or sent with the ad.

Response to the request for sheets, towels, toothbrushes, toothpaste, good used clothing, etc., for Transition House in Cambridge shows that there is an interest in the less fortunate members of our society.

The public is urged to attend the meeting at the Jenks Senior Center at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 28. This program is sponsored by Quota Club of Winchester and the Winchester Seniors Association.

There is no admission, but a box will be at the door for any clothing, sheets, towels, blankets, soap, or other necessary items that help to make life more comfortable. A film proceeds the talk by Thomasina Daniels from Transition House in Cambridge. The film is entitled, "I Will Not Be Beaten."

The New England Conservatory of Music concert choir, directed by Lorna Cooke deVaron, will present a sacred concert in St. Mary's Church on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The choir will sing selections from Masses by diLasso, Paine, and other selections by Mouton, Dufay, Milhaud, and Faure.

Tarr And Kent Perform At First Congregational

The duo of Edward Tarr, virtuoso trumpeter, and George Kent, organ, will open the 1980-1981 Musicale series at the First Congregational Church in Winchester on Saturday, Nov. 1.

Tarr, master of the Baroque (natural) trumpet, and Kent will appear in two events.

At 8 p.m. in the evening they will present a concert of Baroque and modern works for trumpet and organ. The concert will be preceded at two in the afternoon by a lecture-workshop on The Baroque Trumpet And The Early Literature for Trumpet and Organ.

Tickets for both events are available at Henderson Stationers and at the door before the performances. The Music Committee of The First Congregational Church is presenting Edward Tarr and George Kent in cooperation with the University of Lowell, College of Music, M.E.N.C. Chapter.

Tarr is a performer-scholar-teacher who has concertized and taught internationally, prepared new editions of early trumpet music, written a history of the instrument, and made more than eighty recordings with orchestras, with George Kent, and with the Edward Tarr Brass Ensemble, a group which he founded in 1968.

These recordings have won the Grammy Award, the Grand Prix du Disque, and other major international awards.

He currently resides in Basel, Switzerland, where he teaches and performs. As a child he lived in Winchester between 1948 and 1951 while his father, Donald, was assistant minister at the First Congregational Church.

George Kent, of Westerly, R.I., is Professor of Music at the University of Rhode Island, Resident Conductor of the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra, organist and choirmaster of Christ Church, Westerly, and founder-conductor of the Community Chorus of Westerly.

Tarr and Kent, whose collaboration began thirteen seasons ago when Kent went to Switzerland to study Baroque trumpet performance with Tarr, have made numerous tours throughout the United States, Canada, Europe and Japan.

This past summer they performed and taught in Sweden and Germany before going to California to prepare a new recording. The current tour marks their thirteenth year of touring together.

Wellesley Club Sets Visit To College Campus Nov. 4

The Winchester Wellesley Club invites all interested high school juniors and seniors to visit the Wellesley College campus on Tuesday, Nov. 4.

The afternoon visit will include lunch with students, visits to dormitories, a full tour of the college, and an opportunity for questions at the admissions office.

Cars will depart from the front of Winchester High School at 11:30 a.m. following the early released time dismissal and will return students to Winchester about 4 p.m.

Students are asked to sign up for the tour in advance at the high school guidance office or may call Mrs. Lane McGovern, Acquaintance Chairman for the Winchester Wellesley Club.

133 Contribute To Area Blood Drive

One hundred and thirty-three people joined the Red Cross Bloodline at the St. Eulalia's Bloodmobile Tuesday, Oct. 15. Mrs. Mary Carey, Drive Chairperson, said "Thanks to you all who responded at this time. The Red Cross collected one hundred and fourteen units at our drive. Coming the day after a long weekend, the first seventy-seven donations were especially important in replenishing platelet reserves (platelets are used to counter the effects of chemotherapy). If you weren't able to make this drive, please mark your calendar for Tuesday, Dec. 16."

The next Winchester Community Blood-drive will be held that day at St. Mary's Hall, 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Grollman Will Address Death Issues Oct. 28

Winchester High School administrators and guidance counselors have invited Rabbi Earl Grollman to meet with the high school staff concerning the issues of death and loss, particularly as they affect young people.

Rabbi Grollman is a well known author and lecturer and will speak with the faculty in an effort to help them understand their own feelings.

The program will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 28, directly after school.

Parish Slates Rummage Sale Oct. 29

The Fall Rummage Sale and Boutique of the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St., Winchester will be held in the Parish House on Wed., Oct. 29, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. and Thursday, Oct. 30, from 9:30 to 1 p.m.

Under the direction of this year's Chairwoman, Mrs. Gustave Kaufmann, the women of the Parish have been working to catalogue, price and arrange a large selection of clothing for men, women and children.

Mrs. Kaufmann urges anyone who has not yet delivered clothing to the Parish House to do so now so that all articles may be clean and well pressed for the sale.

Those with questions may call Mrs. Kaufmann (729-3029) or the Church office (729-1922).

The Arlington Symmes Hospital Auxiliary is holding a Fall Rummage Sale in the basement of the Calvary Methodist Church, Mass. avenue, Arlington, Thursday, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

There will be a 25 cent admission fee on Thursday evening. Items include good clean used clothing, bric a brac, toys and books. Money raised from this sale is donated to the Symmes Hospital Special Equipment Fund.

Nuke Question Examined

A front-page article in a recent Wall Street Journal is being cited by local activists as substantiation of the need for a nuclear power moratorium.

"The well-researched report emphasizes the over-capacity and capital crisis of the electric utility industry which are important financial reasons for a YES vote on Question 8 in Winchester," says Janet Bernstein, coordinator of the Fourth Middlesex Moratorium Committee.

The Committee is responsible for placing on November's ballot a public policy question calling for a moratorium on new nuclear power construction and licensing and a mandate for renewable energy courses, and is now working for passage of that question.

Bernstein, a graduate of the Sloan School of Management at MIT and of the Carnegie-Mellon Graduate School of Industrial Administration, says that, even apart from safety considerations, there are financial reasons alone for stopping nuclear plant construction at this time. The Wall Street Journal article, she claims, verifies that most utilities are plagued by over-capacity from expensive construction projects planned in the rosy high-growth years of the 50's and 60's.

In the New England area, industry figures indicate a 35 percent surplus of supply "spinning reserve", over peak-load demand.

In the energy crisis after the 1973 oil embargo, however, growth in electric demand dropped from a 7 percent annual rate to little more than 2 percent a year.

The Wall Street Journal says that a typical utility "has too much energy from too many expensive power plants authorized decades ago. ...Because of this nuclear commitment there now isn't enough money left to change the company's fuel mix and multi-billion dollar construction plans."

"The people who live in Boston Edison's service area are lucky," Bernstein explains. "Since Boston Edison has not started construction of Pilgrim II, we can express now, before the mis-investment of millions of dollars, that we want other, more appropriate investments in energy in the next decade. This is precisely the purpose of the nuclear power moratorium that will appear as Question 8 on the Winchester ballot."

Although it is a non-binding, advisory question only, activists in the Fourth Middlesex Moratorium Committee expect that a strong showing of voter sentiment will be seen by legislators as a mandate for nuclear power moratorium legislation. Since the question in non-binding, the moratorium could be ended whenever necessary without another ballot question.

"Most people in Winchester don't realize the potential of alternate energy sources in New England," says Bernstein. "With proper development, solar energy could provide a quarter of the nation's energy by the year 2000. Hydro-electric could provide New England with electric capacity equivalent to several nuclear power plants, and many of these hydro facilities could be installed at existing dams on local rivers. Co-generation (the use of waste heat from industrial processes) could provide the energy equivalent of a large nuclear plant. And wind and biomass are also plentiful, versatile sources in New England.

"But perhaps our most important source is conservation," she continued, wryly quoting the Wall Street Journal's suggestion that the utility industry's present commitment to conservation "must be tempered by its over-capacity."

Over 100 volunteers have been involved in Arlington, Lexington, Winchester and Woburn campaigning for passage of this question. Most of these volunteers have been telephoning neighbors to ask for help in the campaign and have been distributing literature about the campaign throughout their neighborhoods. The Committee says it needs more volunteers in these four towns, however, to complete distribution of its literature before the election.

Interested persons may contact the Committee through Janet Bernstein, 165 Lake street, Arlington 02174, telephone 643-1044.

The Fourth Middlesex Moratorium Committee is one of over 30 local grassroots groups throughout Massachusetts which are working in their own districts for passage of a nuclear power moratorium question, with advice from Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX), a statewide progressive citizens' organization.

Mini-Bus To Offer Free Ride To Area Voters Nov. 4

Winchester Community Transit (CT) will pick up voters free at all the polling places Tuesday, Nov. 4.

The Community Transit Advisory Committee has announced this offer both to underscore the importance of voting and to encourage citizens to go to the polls.

To ride free, voters must cut out a Winchester CT logo from a special transit notice appearing in the Election section of next week's Star.

After voting, a rider simply hands the logo to the driver of the minibus whose route passes by (or near) his polling place.

The logo "ticket" will only be accepted at or near the polls and during the normal bus hours — 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Next week's transit notice will also list the polling place for each precinct and the bus route that serves it.

Columbus Women Honor Founders During Meeting

Players

The Robin Hood players, a traveling troupe of three young men from California, performed for the students of St. Mary's school last Friday. The one-hour performance was "The Story of the Talking Leaves," a play with humor, drama and a lesson. The lesson concerned learning a written language, as the hero, Sequoia the Indian, left his tribe in disgrace only to return with the knowledge of an alphabet and the ability to preserve his tribe's history and culture.

Theatre

Suffolk University Theater welcomes the Studebaker Mime Company to a new residence on Beacon Hill for the 1980-81 season. Having artists-in-residence represents a major departure for Suffolk University's usual schedule and "Studebaker" will be far more than silent partners in the arrangement. The mime troupe will hold master classes, will develop workshops for outreach to local high schools.

Bartlett School Parents To Hold Meeting On Oct. 29

On Wednesday, Oct. 29 the Bartlett School parents and teachers will hold a meeting in the school gym at 83 Church St.

Norine Casey, Principal, will welcome guests and introduce the new staff members who include Marc Bruehl, Teacher Grade V, Mrs. Norma Barth, teacher Grade VI, and Keith Bugbee, Physical Education teacher.

She will also introduce officers of the Development Fund who include President: David Fulmer of Crosby street, Arlington, Vice President: Mrs. Marianne Sardone of Fellsway, Medford, Secretary: Mrs. Marigrace Filtzer of Swan road, Winchester, Treasurer: Mrs. Barbara Graves of Sawmill Brook road, Winchester and Enrichment Chairman: Mrs. Janet Senna of Foxcroft road, Winchester.

Parents will be given an opportunity to sign up for committees to plan Development Fund activities and to chaperone class parties and field trips. Field trips this fall have included visits to such places as Drumlum Farm, the Winchester Hospital, Habitat, the Museum of Science, Buckman Tavern, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Gardner Museum and the Boston Globe.

Fourth graders will attend the Boston Ballet performance of the Nutcracker, fifth graders the Boston Opera's Hansel and Gretel, and sixth graders attend the Youth Concerts at Symphony Hall. Sixth graders also enjoyed a week at the Cape Cod Outdoor Education Centre.

Also the Young Audiences of Massachusetts will present an Introduction to Opera in the school gym on Wednesday Oct. 29.

This group is funded in part by the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency whose funds are recommended by the Governor and appropriated by the State Legislature.

This year students in grades four to eight, in addition to staying after school for sports programs taught by Jeanne Sandstrum and Stephen Robinson, have been staying for a sewing and craft program taught by Mrs. Pam Purdy.

After the general meeting in the gym, parents will adjourn for refreshments and a chance to visit with the classroom teachers.

Tickets Available For Friends' Jubilee Ball

Reservations are now available for the Friends of Winchester Hospital's "Jubilee Ball" which will be held Friday evening, Nov. 7 in the Great Hall at the Faneuil Hall Marketplace.

Dancing will be from 8:30 to 12:30 with music provided by the Bay Club's Larry Cooper Orchestra.

Groups or individuals planning to attend are urged to contact Reservations Chairperson Mrs. Richard Warhol, 9 Sheffield road, Wakefield or Ball Chairperson Mrs. Richard Malatesta, 14 Canterbury road, Winchester.

Cost of tickets is $11.00 per person and includes snacks, coffee and dessert.

A highlight of the evening is the drawings for gifts and gift certificates donated by local merchants. Among them are Koko Boodakian, Chitel's, Craddock Apothecary, McCormack's, Arlene's, the Black Horse Bootery and many others.

The Friends of Winchester Hospital is a volunteer organization of 261 men and women who last year contributed 18,224 hours of service in a variety of hospital departments.

The Ball, which is their major fund raising event, allows them to make an annual donation to the Hospital. Last year a Data Scope, for use in the operating room, was donated.

Graham Will Play With Jazz Group In Boston Area

Gifted musician and Berklee College of Music faculty member Gil Graham, of Webster street, is performing as a featured percussionist with the popular "Take Five" jazz quintet at top jazz venues in the Boston area.

A regular SRO attraction at the prestigious Lulu White's jazz club in Boston, Graham and his group have appeared with nationally-famed comedian Professor Irwin Corey and Tommy Campbell, the drummer for the Dizzy Gillespie orchestra.

Graham has performed with the Waltham, Newton and Brockton Symphony Orchestras as well as with such jazz giants as Larry Coryell and Rahsaan Roland Kirk.

Second Half Sachems Crush Wakefield, 36-7

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

The Wakefield player ambled slowly, dejectedly towards the team bus parked at the end of the driveway near Knowlton Stadium. His team had just been whipped by Winchester 36-7 and his question hurled at one of the Wakefield assistant coaches pretty much summed up the afternoon.

"What happened, coach?" he asked with a pleading, baffled expression that might have been found on Englishmen, women and children following the Blitzkrieg attack.

What happened was a deeper, more talented Sachem team put it all together in the second half against a valiant Wakefield team still in search of its first victory.

What happened was an 8-7 first half Winchester lead ballooned to 36-7 after the Sachems scored on four of their first five possessions in the second half and finished with over 500 yards total offense.

What happened was Wakefield played their "best (football)" in a year and a half," and when they ran out of gas the Sachem lines, offensive and defensive, simply devastated the Warrior line men. But it certainly didn't start out that way as the Warriors first half play, particularly their first quarter effort, had Sachem Coach Manny Marshall and the meager Knowlton Stadium audience Memories...

...and bad ones they were. Last year Melrose stung the unbeaten Gridders. This week they meet again and the players remember. See Page 16

Sachemette Booters Eye Title, Playoffs

And now its all come down to the playoffs for the girls' soccer team.

Sitting atop the Middlesex League with an 11-0-1 record overall, the Sachemettes are closing in on another league title. Depending on what happened yesterday against Belmont (after The Star went to press) and what happens against Lexington, it could be another undefeated season for the Winchester booters.

"Belmont was the biggest game for us," as far as the league competition, is concerned, said Coach Chris Scanlon. "If we beat Belmont we could lose to Lexington and still win the league."

The final two games are against Wakefield and Burlington, two clubs of which there "is no question we wouldn't lose to them."

Last week's action saw the Sachemettes get surprised by a determined Andover squad before turning them back, 3-2.

On Friday it was the good times once again as Winchester got it all back together and crushed Chelmsford, 9-0. And Scanlon attributed the tight Andover win with giving the team a little wake-up call following a string of impressive triumphs.

"Andover wasn't the easiest game. The girls were resting back a little bit on their laurels," Scanlon said, adding that Andover scoring on two breakaway goals prompted some post-game discussion.

"That's where that paid dividends," Scanlon said. "In terms of after the game and sitting down and talking about playing teams like Andover who hustle a great deal. We got back some of our basic ideas on defense we were stressing at the beginning of the year."

Allison McPhail, filling in for the injured Laura Schromm, got the Sachemettes off and running with a second quarter goal after being set up by Andrea deMars.

Kim Donlon upped the count to 2-0 when she scored out of a scramble out front.

Andover came back in the third quarter with the first of the breakaway goals. "Julie (Sullivan) came out to block it but as she went down she (the Andover player) got it past her," Scanlon said.

But, no fear, deMars iced it a few minutes later taking a pass from Donlon and rifling it into the left corner for a 3-1 lead. Andover added another goal but Scanlon was more than satisfied with his squad's fourth quarter play.

And in case Scanlon needed further convincing, he had to wait no longer than the Chelmsford game two days later. The 9-0 whitewashing, combined with an earlier 8-0 pasting, clearly demonstrated how overmatched Chelmsford was.

What made the rout more impressive was the fact that goalie Kate McCarthy (elbowed in the neck during the Andover game), Carol Donohoe (kicked in the calf during the Andover contest), Karen Feldman and Kathy Mahoney (both away visiting colleges) were all missing. But, no matter, because Ann Porell, Kim Donlon and Jeanne Powers all came pulling hairs and asking themselves, "What's happening?"

"You've got to give the devil his due," Marshall said afterwards. "And Wakefield did a real nice job in the first half. We knew what they were going to do and they came and did it exactly the way we thought they would. You've got to give them credit," Marshall said.

And what the Warriors did was come out with the opening kick-off and travel 66 yards in six plays, the last one a 60 yard touchdown burst off right tackle by Ralph Benoit to put the visitors on the board just 1:45 seconds into the game.

After the Sachems lost possession on downs at their own 49, Wakefield came right back and drove to the Winchester 16-yard-line before Paul Abbanat came up with a fourth and four shoestring tackle of Benoit short of the first down. The Sachems were spared.

"There was a time I thought they were going to go up 14-0," Marshall said with a grimace. "If they had gone up 14-0..."

Winchester probably would have won anyway but it might have been a little tougher. And to Winchester's credit, the offense took advantage of the situation and marched right down the field to take the lead.

Booters Turn Back Belmont And Stoneham

By JULIE DERRY

Despite a few unlucky games earlier in the season, the soccer Sachems are rolling on-and over-their opponents. Their success formula has become obvious: hard, aggressive playing, which means great soccer.

"We've been confident the last few games and we've played well," said coach Gene Bouley.

Bouley is referring to his recent battles against Stoneham (3-1), Lexington (0-0), and their big win over Belmont (3-1) on Tuesday.

Lexington and Belmont were Winchester's real challenges - and the Sachems rose to the challenge. In spite of the 0-0 tie in the Lexington game, the Sachems played fantastic soccer.

"That was one of our best games all season - good aggressive playing," commented Bouley.

Although Belmont put up a good fight against Winchester, the Sachems dominated the game. They kept pressure on the Belmont defense throughout the game. The aggressiveness the Sachems showed offensively scored the three goals of the game.

Towards the end of the first quarter, offside calls were called against Belmont near the Sachem goal. Winchester was awarded an indirect kick. Fullback games Ellis booted the ball to Paul Williamson. He then passed the ball across the net to Scott Bowen on the right wing. He booted the ball high into the right corner of the net.

In the second quarter Winchester continued to dominate the game, though several shots on goal were taken by Belmont. Not one shot scored, though due to Sachem goalie Mark Sterenka who turned in many beautiful saves during the game.

On one shot, Sterenka grabbed for the ball, sliding out in front of the net and trapping the ball with his chest.

At the end of the second quarter the Sachems were putting pressure on the Belmont goal. Three successive kicks were taken on goal-first Lowenstein, then Williamson, then David Suvak.

Winchester was tense on the sidelines and the Sachems kept pressing.

On the last shot by Suvak, the ball seemed as if it would go out off the end of the field. But Williamson was there to save the ball. He bounced the ball on his knee and then kicked it over his head with his back to the goal. Lowenstein received the ball in front of the goal and headed it into the net scoring the second goal.

Early in the third quarter the Sachems put pressure on the Belmont defense for a third time. Ellis, on one of his many strong plays during the game, booted the ball from in front of the Winchester goal down to Lowenstein in the left wing. He shot, but the ball bounced off the goal post.

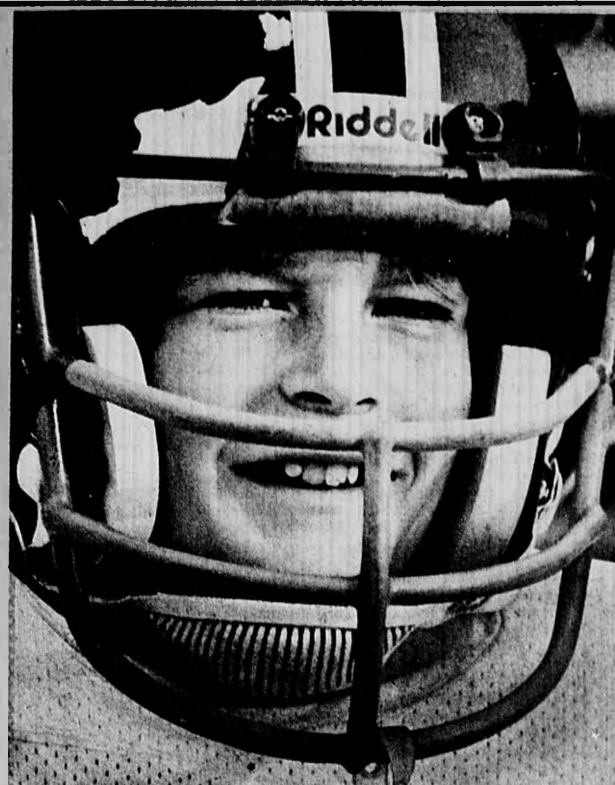

Williamson recovered the ball, dribbled it in, and passed to Suvak. Suvak shot but it went too wide.

Bowen received the ball in the right wing and passed it across the net to Tom Fiorillo. Fiorillo shot and scored to clinch it.

Towards the end of the third quarter,

The Future Is On The Way

Their names are not easily recognizable now unless they are the younger brothers of varsity players.

They are not as fast, as big or as quick thinking as their varsity counterparts. None of them have their drivers license and for some of them, their voices might change in a year or so. Careful plans are being laid by many on how to handle that first shave.

They are members of the sophomore and freshmen football teams where some of the players weigh in at under 100 pounds, or the same as one of Sam Hunt's legs.

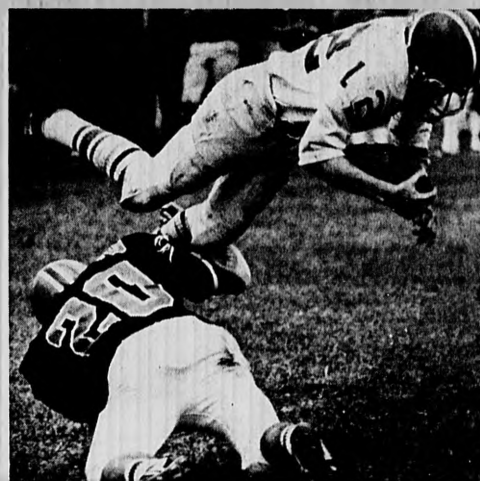

But it won't be that way for long. This year's quarterback Rich Fennell was "just" a sophomore last year. Gary Bayle played on the freshmen and sophomore teams. So did former Heisman Trophy winner Joe Bellino.

No Sellout

The uniforms are identical, the plays might be similar and it's definitely the same game but you'd never know it by looking at the crowd. But for these freshmen players, the larger crowds — and the varsity — are just a year or two away.

Getting Up For The Little Games

All the good teams do it.

All the lousy teams thrive on it.

All teams know why it happens, vow to never let it happen again and usually fail miserably.

"It" is that great sporting tradition of the overwhelming favorite - despite protests to the contrary - coming into a game with an overwhelming underdog so confident that they can win even if their wives and girlfriends played every other play, that they get blown off the field by the bum.

How do you figure it? Here in Massachusetts of course, we have two masters of the art. At the professional level, the New England Patriots have followed more impressive thrashings of good teams with woeful, absolutely baffling performances against some of the NFL's true doormats with amazing regularity.

And at the college level Boston's love-hate affair with Boston College football teams is constantly rekindled with every BC defeat of Stanford and Texas and defeat by UMass and Holy Cross.

"Getting up" for the little game. The toughest thing in sports. You just know if the Pittsburgh Steelers had played, say the Giants, in last year's Super Bowl the Giants would have walked away with it.

The driving force of the march was, who else, Gary Errico. Errico, who finished the day with 234 yards on 32 carries, galloped 41 yards off right tackle to the Wakefield 30 yard-line on a third and one to put the Sachems back in business.

After a face mask penalty moved the ball to the 15, Errico buried cornerback Paul Forte on an option and Jim Gibbons carried in for the touchdown.

Errico ran straight off right tackle again for the two-point conversion to put the Sachems on top.

On Winchester's next two possessions, mistakes ended drives to close out the half with the Sachems up just 8-7.

First, Errico couldn't handle a pitch-out and the Warriors recovered on their own 49-yard line. After the defense allowed the allotted three plays followed by the punt, the Sachems marched to the Wakefield 24 with 1:01 left in the half.

On first down, however the Warriors' Mark Schille, starting his first varsity game, picked off a Rich Fennell pass intended for Ken Jacobsen at the goal line and the Sachems were stopped.

But the momentum had gradually shifted near the end of the first half, with the Winchester linemen simply taking control of the line of scrimmage. It was just a matter of time from that point and it didn't take long.

Chewing up half the third quarter, the Sachems took the second half opening kick-off and drove 71 yards in 13 plays with Errico running the final 15 yards in three bursts for the score. Errico added another two point conversion and Winchester was up 16-7.

Key play in the drive was a 10-yard Fennell to Jacobsen completion on a fourth and six from the Wakefield 25 yard-line.

The defense, led by Fred Skinner (eight tackles), Tom Porell (four tackles), three assists), Doug Goodlatie (five tackles, two assists) and Mark Micicche (five tackles, three assists), rose up again and forced Wakefield to cough the ball up after three plays lost a yard.

The Warriors held off the inevitable on the next drive as Shille picked off another pass, this time a fourth and 14 throw from Fennell to Paul Mathson at about the Wakefield 25.

After Wakefield lost five yards on their next possession, Winchester took over on their own 49 and the dam finally burst.

It took all of one play for Errico to go right with a pitch, look upfield and see nobody in front of him without the aid of binoculars and run the 51 yards for the backbreaking score.

"We ran a perfect option," Fennell said afterwards of the score. "It was the best one we ran all year. We had got so mad (at halftime) because we knew we were a much better team."

From there it was party time as Errico scored his third touchdown of the game and tenth of the year on a three yard run the next series to up the count to 29-7.

Steve Costello, who enjoyed easily his best game of the season with 70 yards on seven carries, closed out the scoring with 3:39 left from four yards out.

Afterwards, Co-Captain Jay Gill expressed his disgust with the team's first half performance.

"We can't play like we did today in the first half and expect to keep winning," Gill said. "We've got to play in the first half. We didn't do much different in the second half. We just came right at them. We wanted it to work."

Marshall was at a loss to explain his team's mediocre first half performances followed by devastating second half finishes.

"Why, I really don't know," Marshall said. He offered that sometimes it takes awhile for the offense to figure out how the defenses are operating against the option offense, which players are picking up which offensive players.

Sometimes it takes awhile for the coaches to determine how the opposition defense is reacting to the unbalanced Winchester line. Because so few teams run behind an unbalanced line in the league it is hard to prepare for the opponent's reaction.

Whatever the reason, against Wakefield, it was simply a matter of a superior team wearing down the opposition. Wakefield Coach Ira Yavner was proud of his squad's effort against the state's third ranked team.

"We were in this game. We gave them a battle," a somber Yavner said afterwards. "They just wore us down. Our intensity went off a little (in the second half). We had worked hard toward this game all week and we just burned ourselves out. We could only hold it so long because of our inexperience."

up with hat tricks to lead the Sachemettes. Powers' scoring outburst was especially pleasing to Scanlon.

"That was a nice surprise. It gave a lot of our second team players a lot of confidence. They got to play a lot and they played very well," Scanlon said.

This Week's Sports

FOOTBALL — The gridlers host Melrose in a 2 p.m. contest.

BOYS' SOCCER — The booters are at Wakefield for a key rematch against the top ranked team in the state tomorrow afternoon starting at 3:30. Then it's on to Melrose for another road contest Tuesday, also at 3:30.

GIRLS' SOCCER — The Sachemette booters return to Concord Saturday for a 2 p.m. rematch before heading off to Lexington Monday for a 3:30 encounter.

SWIMMING — The swimmers finally get to compete against highly regarded Marblehead Saturday afternoon at Northeast Regional Voke School in Wakefield.

FIELD HOCKEY — The field hockey team closes out its season with a road contest at Woburn tomorrow.

CROSS COUNTRY — The harriers close out the regular season at Woburn tomorrow afternoon before the league meet starts Wednesday.

Revenge: Melrose Is Back

"I remember last year. It gives me nightmares, that game."

—Jay Gill

He is not alone.

Despite the drama and disappointment of the Thanksgiving loss to Woburn, it is without question the 28-6 loss to Melrose three weeks earlier that ruined last season.

And it's time for Melrose again this week and the scenario is so similar to last year's it is eerie.

Like last season, the Sachems are entering the contest unbeaten and highly (third) ranked. Like last season Winchester is coming off a slaughter of Wakefield.

If the Sachems should lose to the Red Raiders, Gill and his cohorts may not sleep for many nights. But Gill and the rest of the squad is ready.

"We remember last year. Next week we are going to be ready," Gill announced in the lockerroom after last week's 36-7 rout of Wakefield. He had no trouble receiving any seconds.

Coach Manny Marshall remembers that afternoon well, also.

"They were as good as any football team we played last year on the day we played them," MacPherson insisted, including Woburn, but eventual state Division I champs.

But there are a couple of differences about this year's Melrose squad. For one thing, they have a winning record (3-1-1) and for another, a new coach, Bruce MacPherson.

'Winchester is possibly the best team in New England... They're a great team. We're going to go out and do the best we can but you've got to be realistic.'

—Melrose Coach
Bruce MacPherson

Marshall said it's not surprising that Melrose is having a pretty good year. He said they were expected to be tough.

MacPherson asks who's kidding who.

"Anybody who made us pre-season pick isn't to be informed," MacPherson said. "We have two starters back on offense and two starters back on defense. We're basically inexperienced, playing a lot of young kids. We're starting three sophomores (at defensive end, tight end and outside linebacker)," he insisted.

Junior quarterback Joe Driscoll runs the I offense with tailback Bill Mara and fullbacks Ken Linehan and John McCormack doing the bulk of the running.

MacPherson has been concerned with the squad's lack of consistency. Led by tackles Paul Cuthro and Jeff Auob, Melrose has done a "reasonable job against the run. But again, we have had problems being consistent. We have a good series then a poor series, although we have been better in the last few games."

MacPherson's staff have scouted the Sachems the past two outings and he is evidently ready to become a charter member of the Winchester Fan Club.

"Winchester is possibly the best team in New England," MacPherson insisted. "They don't have any weaknesses. They have everything, size and speed."

"They're undefeated. What have they lost, twice in the last 15 or 16 games? They're a great team. We're going to go out and do the best we can but you've got to be realistic."

MacPherson said his staff is very much aware of Gry Errico's running statistics (888 yards and 10 touchdowns in five games) but said he won't be keying on the senior halfback.

"Anytime someone carries the ball as much as he does, they're going to be a factor," he said. But, he added, Winchester has also shown an ability to score by just about every method. And he has been impressed with the other players, backs, who also had a big day against Wakefield as the rushing game topped the 400 yard mark.

It pays to be an idealist when you buy a diamond.

A diamond is not a casual purchase. You want it to be worn and enjoyed throughout a lifetime.

That's why you should never compromise on the beauty and value of the diamond you buy, regardless of its size. You should look for a diamond that's been painstakingly cut and polished to bring out all of its natural brilliance and beauty, one that meets the exacting standards that have been established as ideal. These are called ideal cut diamonds.

Why is cut so important? Because with diamonds, unlike colored gems, beauty depends on light reflection.

When a diamond is ideally cut, its 58 facets are placed in precise symmetrical relation to others. They act as a series of tiny mirrors, constantly capturing and reflecting light and bouncing it back through the top of the stone in a brilliant blaze.

A diamond cut too shallow to make it look bigger lets some of the light "leak out" through the bottom and appears watery.

One cut too deep lets light "leak" through the sides and appears black in the center when compared to an ideal cut diamond.

You can see the astonishing difference yourself. LK Ideal Cut Diamonds ensure you of getting the most beauty and value.

Sachemette Swimmers "Stay Tough", Edge Bedford 45-37

By MARY CRESSE

What has happened to the swim team? Have the other teams been jinxed? Or is it just talent? Well, whatever system they're using, it's working, because last Saturday, the squad edged top-seeded Bedford out of their comfortable niche of champions in the Eastern Massachusetts swimming standings.

The 45 - 37 match could hardly be labeled a walk away win for Winchester. Those who were on the team last year were somewhat wary of the 1979 Boston Globe Coach of the year and a number of Globe All-Scholastics on the Bedford squad.

"If we stay tough, there's no reason why we shouldn't beat them," assistant coach Vinny Palumbo told his team.

In other words, "go out for the kill". This attitude prevailed as WHS lost only the first event, the medley relay, before the diving, and then captured first in three straight events.

Lynn Van Ummersen and Cheryl Powers flew past Bedford and pulled in with a clean 1 - 2 finish in the 200 free.

Freshman Ann McCann, trailing in the first four laps of the individual medley, pulled ahead in her specialty, the breaststroke, and sailed to a personal best time (PBT) of 2:25.8.

"I was feeling good at the end of the race, though I was a little more tired than I thought I should be," she said, "but I really didn't expect to do a personal best."

She was followed by tri-captain P. K. Porter, who maintained a clear second place finish, to extend the lead.

In the 100 free, Carol Schneller and Liz Porras fought in the closest race of the meet. Schneller, after falling back on the first lap turned on the power off the last turn and kicked away to a desperately needed victory.

"We can't let up now, tri-captain Julie DeCarlo said. "We've been swimming well, and we can't let them come back."

Bedford, however, won the diving competition, but senior tri-captain Carla Gulino and Michele Bowen matched that first place with second and third respectively. Diving counts as one event, and Bedford was clearly hoping that diving would pull them closer to Winchester. They closed the gap further by taking a clear win in the 100 fly.

Winchester's talent truly shone the brightest in the 100 free, where Van Ummersen and Schneller floored the opposition with a 1 - 2 sweep. Van Ummersen screamed in with a PBT of 59.93. Breaking a minute in the 100 is every swimmer's ticket to the states.

"Obviously," Van Ummersen said, "I didn't know I was going to win, but I decided I wasn't about to let that girl from Bedford pass me."

And neither was Carol Schneller, who outreached the other swimmer in a touch and go finish.

There was no competition in the 500, which Winchester's Cheryl Powers and Carolyn Hackett (third) took for Winchester, with Powers easily double-lapping the nearest competitor.

McCann glided in with still another PBT, this time in the 100' breaststroke, doing a 1:14.3. Beth Melilli followed in with her PBT of the day, kicking to touch out the opposition with a 1:18.5.

At this point, the meet was won, and Bedford's win of the 400 free relay made little difference in the score.

The 8 - 1 standing is already one of Palumbo's best seasons. Asked how he felt about still another win, Vincent Sr. smiled, "The smaller the fish, the bigger the wins."

If they hook something like Marblehead next Saturday, the 1980 Sachems will pull themselves in a 9 - 1 season and second place in the Middlesex League.

Belmont scored their only goal of the game by capitalizing on a Winchester mistake.

A Belmont forward charged the Winchester goal. A Sachem fullback had the ball but passed it back to Mark Sterenka, not realizing he was covered by another Belmont forward.

Another Sachem fullback obstructed the Belmont forward from scoring. Obstruction was called, giving Belmont a direct kick on the Winchester goal.

The Sachems lined up to defend their goal, but the shot was sunk.

Despite this, the Sachems played a strong game. If they continue playing as aggressively as they have been they could roll over Wakefield also.

And it's a phenomenon hardly peculiar to big time collegiate and professional sports. Just ask some Winchester football players who were on last year's team that lost to Melrose 28-6.

Just ask any members of this year's team who followed a brilliant performance against Lexington with mediocre efforts against the also rans.

Two weeks ago, after a fair to middlin' performance against Belmont, the Sachems vowed to be ready for Wakefield the following week. They hadn't played too well against the Marauders but it wouldn't happen against the winless Warriors. Just you wait and see.

Just as you can be sure as the Patriots are going to lose to either the Jets or the laughable New Orleans Saints, Wakefield came out Saturday and walked right down the field with the opening kick-off, the touchdown coming on a 80-yard run.

What happened? "I don't know why," said Sachem Coach Manny Marshall. "It is easy for Wakefield to get up for Winchester. It makes their season to beat Winchester. Us, we're just supposed to beat them."

"They (the players) wanted to get up for them," Marshall said of the Wakefield encounter and the Sachems did - in the second half. "But they knew who they were. They knew they were a better team."

The players, naturally, are equally mystified. Center Rich Beal recites, "the longer you let an inferior team stay with you... the tougher it gets. Our best games are against good teams."

The toughest time for a good team to get up for what should be a slaughter is right after an awesome performance. How many times have the Bruins beat the Canadiens only to lose the following night to someone like the Vancouver Canucks?

Last year the Winchester football team destroyed Wakefield the week before the Melrose game. Marshall remembers how difficult it was the week in between games to get the message across that Melrose could beat them.

"I did have a tough time convincing them they had to play football. We tried to tell them they (Melrose) were a good football team. But we had destroyed Wakefield the week before on Friday night. Our offense had been tremendous."

Melrose took a 14-8 lead into the fourth quarter, forced the Sachems to pass and picked off two Gary Errico passes, one returned for a touchdown and the other to the five-yard line to set up another score. Presto, a season ruined.

"By the time we got going it was just a little bit too late. By the time the third quarter had come around we started to tense up," Marshall remembered.

For the next three weeks the Sachems play Melrose, Watertown and Burlington, all good teams. Naturally, the Woburn Thanksgiving Day reunion will be the usual I-hate-you, Red Sox-Yankees type duel.

But, be forewarned, the toughest game remaining on the schedule may well be the next to last game against hapless Reading.

Errico said after the Wakefield win last week that the "next five games are like the playoffs." And he's right. Four of the five teams are all solid contenders. That's why the Reading contest, especially if Winchester remains undefeated, will be the most dangerous game of the five.

Soccer Cosmos Sweep Three More Victories

The Cosmos had their toughest week of the season, beating Billerica, Marblehead and Chelmsford in very close games.

Injuries stopped two important players. Matt Layden broke a bone in his hip and had to be carried off the field. Robert Anderson collapsed from exhaustion on the field.

But before exhaustion overcame him he set up Ricky Suvak and Scott Kerrigan for the only two Cosmos goals in the 2-0 triumph over Billerica.

The Cosmos also played Marblehead, the defending state champs. Missing from action were both goalie David Koffman and Layden.

Anderson, Suvak and David Swanson rotated in goal. Suvak had a tremendous save, taking one right off the strikers' foot. Swanson was scored on twice by two strong offensive moves. Anderson held fast against the Marblehead offense, allowing no goals.

Nick Asaro scored three more times to give the Cosmos a big 4-2 win.

Earlier, Anderson previously undefeated Chelmsford, Anderson scored three goals to lead the Cosmos to another 4-2 win.

McGoldrick Named Hockey Captain At UConn

Mark McGoldrick, a 1978 graduate of Winchester High, has been elected assistant captain of the varsity hockey team at the University of Connecticut.

Mark is a junior and has played varsity hockey since his freshman year.

Cross Country Run By Stoneham

By PETER DELGRECO

"Think Woburn," was the thought on many of the Sachems' minds as they left the locker room after Tuesday's meet. The boys' team had just run up an impressive victory against a depleted Stoneham squad, 18-43 (the lowest score wins in Cross Country).

Many of the runners took the meet a little less seriously than usual since Stoneham is winless this year, but a few individuals turned in strong performances.

In the beginning of the race, many of the runners started out by chanting "Dude, Dude, Dude." This was in appreciation of Joe Callahan's early lead in the race.

Sophomore Hugh Murray quickly stole the lead from Callahan and held a slim edge over the pack for a short distance.

Toward the middle of the race, junior Patrick Kennedy took command of the pace and cruised to his fourth win of the season. Kennedy, a likely Middlesex League All-Star, has been the runner the Sachems have depended upon all season. Pat's time of 16:15 was slightly off his personal best, but he was not really pushed hard at the end.

Murray's time of 16:31 was good for second place in the 3 mile course.

Freshman Barry Sirchis was third at 16:47. Coach Joe Cantillon said Barry had a "particularly good performance." Callahan finished at 17:07 in fifth place. Joe was right on the heels of Stoneham's top runner but wasn't quite able to catch him.

Team tri-captain John Provenzano sprinted through the course for a time of 17:28. He finished in seventh place for his customary spot with the leaders. Mark Schwartzman and Peter Quine finished eighth and ninth to round out the varsity scoring.

The boys' team competed in the Catholic Memorial meet at Franklin Park in Roxbury last Saturday and two individuals deserve recognition for their exceptional racing.

Pat Kennedy lined up at the start of the Varsity Division 2 race with about 150 other runners. When it was over, he crossed the finish line in 16th place.

Barry Sirchis ran the freshman race and came in an outstanding 5th place. Both runners were awarded prizes.

Girls' Roll On

The Sachemette runners also won Tuesday's meet against Stoneham 15-50 and although Stoneham's team consisted of only three runners, it was a day of personal accomplishments for many of the girls.

Cantillon remarked, "There were especially good performances from Lauren Fryklund, Jeanne Senna, Maria Doocey, Sandy Jordan, Amy Anderson, and Alesia Tringale." Some people may wonder why Laurie Glynn wasn't mentioned in the last list. It seems that the girls' cross country team just expects Laurie Glynn to win and she didn't disappoint anyone Tuesday.

Her time of 17:52 was another first place finish.

Tri-captain Fryklund was second followed by junior, Eileen Conley. This pair of runners has been dueling it out all season, and both should fare well in the league meet.

The coaches were greatly impressed with Senna's running. Her fourth place finish is remarkable considering her lack of practice because of injury. Cantillon hopes that she may finish in the top 10 to 12 runners at the league meet.

Mary Boland, another tri-captain, got off to a slow start but still managed a fifth place showing. Mary was followed by Doocey and Jordan to complete the Sachemette scoring.

Cantillon is looking forward to tomorrow at Woburn, and next Wednesday's league meet, also in Woburn, as races to prime the runners for their big meet two weeks from Saturday.

This will be the state meet in which Cantillon hopes for a strong showing. Maybe after Nov. 8, the town of Winchester will have a team that is state champion.

Nancy Dizio Named Babson Hoop Coach

Winchester High graduate Nancy Dizio has been named Women's Basketball Coach at Babson College.

Dizio comes to Babson after spending three successful years coaching at Burlington High School where she guided the women's basketball team to a 48-11 three year overall record. She also coached softball, field hockey, and soccer while at Burlington.

She is currently the Director of the Winchester Women's summer basketball league and the Winchester girls' basketball league.

Dizio is a graduate of Winchester High and Northeastern University. At Winchester, she played varsity basketball and captained the squad for three years and helped lead the team to the Middlesex League Championship in 1977. Her basketball playing career continued at Northeastern where she was on the varsity squad for four years.

The Other Gridders Sophomore, Freshmen J.V. Teams Undeclared 'Better' Than 1-2 Record

Considering the strength of sophomore and junior varsity teams of recent vintage, it is not surprising the varsity gridders are enjoying the successes they are now.

And this year's "other" football teams are continuing that tradition, with both the sophomore (3-0) and junior varsity (4-0) teams rolling along undefeated this season.

Coach Dave Berman is especially pleased with the progress of this year's sophomore unit, a group that did not enjoy all that much success as freshmen. "I'm extremely pleased. I haven't had a group that have worked as hard as these guys. A lot of the guys have come along real quickly," Berman said.

Calling the offensive signals is Chris Cahill, who on Saturday afternoons kicks off for the varsity.

Alternating at the fullback position on both the sophomores and JV teams are Will Hurley and Sal Giacalone. Running out of the halfback slots are Chris Rogers, Chuck Allard and Dave Fiole. Hurt playing tag football and out for the rest of the year is Matt Maryanski.

Mike MacDonald and Paul O'Brien anchor down the line at the end positions. Robert DiVincenzo, Mike Carr and Paul Bennett share the tackle duties and Ted Leppor and Jim Feeley are the guards. Pat Gill is at center.

Just about all of those guys play both ways with George Ward, the nose guard ("doing very well" - Berman), being a member of just the defense.

The JV team roster changes from game to game depending on who played a lot with the varsity the previous Saturday. The purpose of the JV's, as Berman pointed out, is to get players ready for the varsity.

Although the JV's don't get the crowds of publicity the big guys get, it's hardly considered punishment, as Berman puts it.

There are a lot of kids that want to dress (for JV games) and can't," Berman said. "There's no stigma to playing JV's in Winchester.

Winchester's freshmen football team's 1-2 record is a bit deceiving, says Coach John Pirani.

"All things being equal we could easily be 3-0," Pirani insisted in the wake of the team's tough 16-14 loss to Watertown East last week.

The key play in that defeat came when the Sachems drove to Watertown one-yard line and fumbled it into the endzone, giving the visitors the ball at their own 20.

Winchester had been up by a touchdown at the time and could have gone into the lockerroom up by two touchdowns if they had been able to convert.

But that wasn't the only loss for the Sachems. One of the team's two quarterbacks, Billy Harris, received a concussion in the game and will be out for an undetermined amount of time.

Offensively, the Sachems came up with a couple of big plays to register their two scores. Pat Murray ran 24 yards on an option for one score (and also ran it in for the two-point conversion) and Andy Goodlatte pulled in a 40 yard pass from Harris for the other score.

Earlier, the Sachems dropped a 14-6 decision to Diamond (Lexington) and won their opener with a 6-0 blanking of Watertown West.

Anchoring down Pirani's offensive line are tackles Rich Hemminger and Kevin Shattuck. At guard are Bob Medwar and James Sullivan. Alternating at the center spot are David MacMillan and Barry Tse.

Filling in the two end positions are Billy Thomas and Goodlatte.

Sharing the quarterbacking duties with Harris is Willie Porter.

James Vancini runs out of the fullback position with Murray, Robert Mistretta and Tony Frate sharing the halfback duties.

Defensively, Bob Childers (strong safety), David Shao (end), James Bryant (cornerback) and Peter Lawson (tackle) join a number of the offensive players who play both ways.

Sachem JV Booters Roll Behind Defense

The Sachem junior varsity soccer team may be scoring at a less than three goals a game clip but it certainly hasn't hurt their win-loss record.

The booters are half a game out of first place with a fine 10-0-4 record and the reason for that is definitely the defense.

The Sachems have allowed two (yup, 2) goals in the 14 contests while scoring 37 themselves.

Two of the ties came against league leader Lexington (11-0-3) and both were of the scoreless variety. The other two blemishes came against Wakefield (1-1) and Stoneham (0-0), with the latter being one of the more disappointing of the season.

The leading offensive threats for the Sachems have been Chip Triglione (eight goals), John Doherty (seven goals) and, surprisingly, Steve Tucci with five goals.

Tucci, you see, also doubles as one of the two goalies that have compiled the awesome defensive numbers.

"Considering he see just limited action (as a forward), five goals is pretty good," Coulthard said.

Alternating with Tucci in goal is John Shirley, just a sophomore. Backboning the defense are fullbacks Mike Gibson, Rich Sampson and Court Crandall.

Playing well at the halfback positions are Eric Johnson, John Williamson (brother of varsity stalwart Paul) and John Myers.

★ Future

Both teams are different, of course. At the freshmen level, the emphasis is on ball skills, just learning the basic skills. Nothing too complicated, nothing too fancy. At the sophomore stage, it steps up a little bit. The plays become a little more complex. The players that are very good start looking very good. The big kids become bigger and the fast kids faster. It happens every year. Just watch.

Neil Borden

Neil Hopper Borden, of Winchester, Professor of Advertising, Emeritus, of the Harvard Business School died Oct. 13. He was 85. Professor Borden was a major contributor to the development of the marketing management and advertising management fields.

Born on Dec. 7, 1885, in Boulder, Colorado, he interrupted his college studies to serve with the U.S. Army and then he graduated from the University of Colorado in 1919 as a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He spent the following year as principal of the Lafayette, Colorado, High School, and then came East to the Harvard Business School to obtain his MBA.

Professor Borden joined the faculty of the Harvard Business School as Assistant Dean in 1922, when he was 27. It was the first of two three-year terms as Assistant Dean, but he preferred teaching and by 1938 was elected Professor of Advertising.

He is a former President of the American Marketing Association (1953-4) and of its predecessor organization, the National Association of Marketing Teachers (1928), and a former Chairman of the Advertising Review Board of the Brewing Industry.

Professor Borden lived for over 30 years in Winchester, where he was active in civic affairs. He served as Chairman of the School Committee, a Public Library Trustee, Chairman of the Scholarship Foundation, Chairman of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association, and a member of the Standing Committee of the Winchester Unitarian Society.

He was the author or co-author of eight books about advertising and advertising management, the best known being the now classic The Economic Effects of Advertising and Five Examples of the widely used casebook Problems in Advertising. He developed the concept of the "marketing mix," which put all the major elements of marketing strategy into a single framework for management.

He also served as Editorial Board Chairman of the Harvard Business Review, initially as student chairman in 1921-22 and later as Faculty Chairman. In the '60's, he was a faculty member at the Indian Institute of Management in Ahmedabad.

He received numerous awards for his contributions to marketing, such as the Charles Coolidge Parlin and Paul D. Converse awards, and was elected to the Hall of Fame in Distribution in 1953.

In 1976, he was honored by HBS for distinguished service to the School and the field of marketing.

Professor Borden is survived by four children (Roseanne Marshall of Weston, Neil H. Jr. of Charlottesville, Va., John E. P. of Topsfield, and Melissa Gleason of Los Angeles) and 15 grandchildren.

Private services were held on Friday, Oct. 17, in Winchester. A memorial service will be held at a later date. Contributions may be sent to the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association, Winchester.

Dorothy Gove

Dorothy Sprague Gove (Miss Dorothy), 80, founder of Children's Own School, died at the Aberjona Nursing Home on Saturday, Oct. 11th.

She was the daughter of Dora Belle and Wesley A. Gove and was educated at Bryn Mawr and Teacher's College, Columbia University.

The school, which occupies the former Russell Farm at 86 Main st., was established in 1942 by Miss Dorothy as a Montessori private day school for pre-school children. She chose the name Children's Own School to represent "the spirit of the place, a bright and warmly inviting atmosphere where a child may peacefully experiment with knowledge in a prepared environment. Its purpose was to assist each child to attain his best level of achievement according to his individual needs and abilities."

Miss Dorothy retired as Director of the school in 1967 and became Supervisor of Education, a position she held until her death. Through the years the school has grown to its present capacity of approximately 72 pupils, offering classes for pre-school through First Grade. Children's Own School is the oldest Montessori School in the New England area.

Miss Dorothy was a member of the Association Montessori Internationale (AMI), the North America Teachers' Association (NAMTA) and the Montessori Association of New England (MANE).

A Memorial Service will be held at Children's Own School today at 4 p.m. In lieu of flowers a contribution may be made to the Dorothy S. Gove Memorial Fund.

Historical Society

The Marshfield Historical Society will sponsor its third annual Artcrafters Fall Festival Oct. 25 and 26, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Furnace Brook Middle School, Route 139, Marshfield.

Get a jump on your Christmas shopping at this large display of wood craft, leathercraft, ceramics, jewelry, scrimshaw, needlework, flower arrangements, metalwork, painting, pottery, macrame and photography.

Couple Honored At Golden Wedding Anniversary

On Saturday, Oct. 11, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Curtis Wilson of New Meadows road were driven to Grace Chapel, Lexington.

In the foyer, a white orchid corsage was pinned on Mrs. Wilson. The occasion was a catered, Golden Wedding Anniversary Party, in Fellowship Hall, given by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm C. Wilson, Jr., of North Andover and Dr. and Mrs. Marvin R. Wilson of South Hamilton.

About eighty invited guests who were relatives and friends from Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts attended.

On the head table, between silver candleabra with white candles, was a large triangular arrangement of sunburst and spider chrysanthemums. On the small tables, seating eight, were gold cloths and on each was a round arrangement of the same white flowers centered with a yellow rose, a gold "50" medallion and gold ribbon. The anniversary cake with white, patterned icing was crowned with yellow and white flowers.

Mrs. Marvin (Polly) Wilson entertained with several piano selections during the celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have lived in Winchester for forty-one years. They have two sons and four grandchildren: Jane Ellen, Malcolm C. (Curt) Wilson, III, Rhoda Lynne and Deborah Anne Wilson.

Comic Convention Set In Boston

The Seventh Annual New England Comic Art Convention (NEW CON) Captain America Superheroes' Festival, featuring the largest area gathering of comic book and science fiction dealers and illustrators, will be held Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 15 and 16, at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel's third floor Beacon complex.

Other convention highlights include an all-night film marathon featuring the first Boston showing of Captain America film serials from the 1940's, panel discussions, and a Superheroes costume contest.

Comic book collectors and nostalgists will have a chance to browse through the display tables of one hundred and twenty dealers. Among the items displayed for sale are old comic books (some valued as high as $2000); "Star Wars," "Trek," and other science fiction souvenirs; baseball cards; and radio and TV memorabilia. Dealers' rooms will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday, and from 10 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Joe Simon, creator of Captain America and illustrator of numerous other well-known comics; and Howard Chaykin, adaptor of the "Star Wars" saga to the comics; will judge the Superheroes Costume Contest, Saturday at 7 p.m. A prize of $50 will be awarded to the first place winner.

Admission for the convention is $4 a day or $6 for both days.

Forty-Three-Year-Old Leo Tante:

He's Got Two Racquets

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

When 43-year-old Leo Tante is playing racquetball, he isn't just playing for himself. He plays for every 43-year-old who relishes beating up on the younger hot shots.

"When I go in there and play and when I come out I cheer for everyone that's 43," Tante explained. "I don't know that I'm 43. I don't act like I'm 43. And I certainly don't play like I'm 43."

For any of you younger guys that would like to age Mr. Tante real fast, he's easy to find. He is one of two instructors at the Winchester Racquetball Club on East street and simply loves playing the game - particularly when he can strut his stuff against the under 43-year-olds.

And if Tante sounds a little bit like an unbearable jock, don't be misled. His racquetball job is primarily for the enjoyment. His job, of all occupations, is a hairdresser. He is the owner of Hair By Tante, located in Woburn and four other communities in Massachusetts.

"I like people," Tante, who joined the Winchester Racquetball Club shortly after it opened in April, said in explaining his "moonlighting" position. "I don't do this for my livelihood. I don't do this for the money. Maybe that's why I enjoy it so much. This is an out for me. I enjoy teaching people. When I try to convey to somebody how to do something and they do it, it makes me feel good," the Woburn resident said.

And people seem to appreciate Tante's enthusiasm for the game.

"The lessons have increased by 100 percent since Leo came here," said club owner Robert Raymond. The other instructor at the club is one of those younger guys that Tante loves to beat, Tony Grande.

It's not especially surprising that Tante is such a physical fitness nut. A 1955 graduate of Medford High School, Tante played five years in the Chicago Cubs minor league organization before deciding to move on to - gasp - hairdressing.

But even after leaving organized sports for cutting the golden locks, Tante has strived to stay fit. He used to be an avid tennis player among other activities, but insists racquetball is his game now.

"I use to play tennis but this is the new game. This is it," Tante said. "Some people look down on it as a real jock sport but it's not. And it's a great sport to meet people," he added.

In fact, Tante has found racquetball to be a break-the-ice type of activity even on business trips. He recalls once going to Indianapolis for a hairdressing convention of sorts and instead of everyone piling into a restaurant and filling up on steaks and brew, they went out and played some - you guessed it - racquetball.

"We looked at things a little differently after we played," Tante remembered. "It meant we had something in common besides business. I felt they looked at me a little differently after we had played racquetball."

Tante has great plans for the club, and with Raymond's support (and money, of course) is hopeful they will come to pass.

First of all, he'd like to start programs in area schools teaching racquetball for the conditioning benefits.

"Kids today are not in good shape," Tante declares. "I'd like to go to the schools and try to set up some kind of intramural programs where they could learn the game. Not every boy can make a baseball or football team and this is just a fantastic conditioning game."

Then, he'd also like to see the club set aside some time for the mentally and physically handicapped.

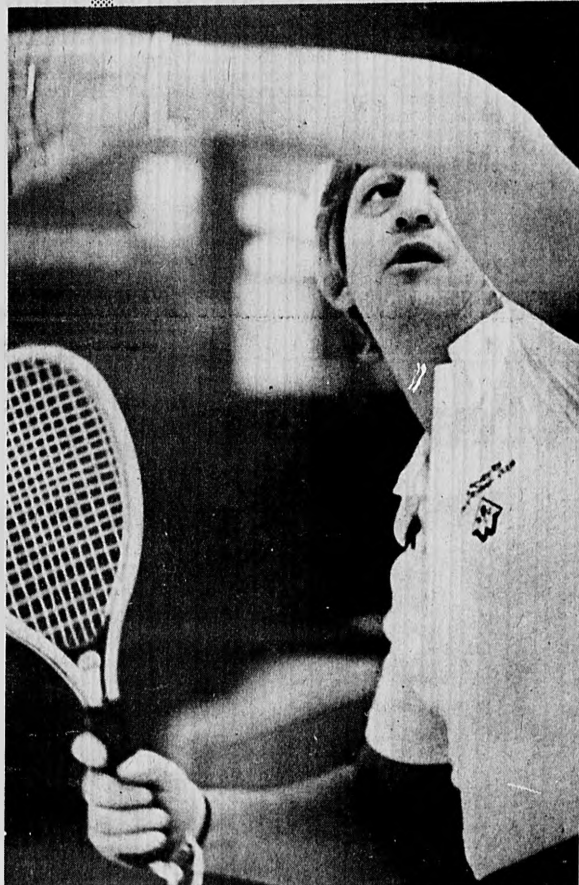

"There's a place for the retarded in this game. They are doing things now that are amazing. And I've even seen this game played by two Viet Nam veterans with no legs, playing in wheelchairs," he said.

Tante is so confident of the games popularity that someday, maybe not real soon, but someday it will even be an Olympic event.

"There's nothing more exciting than watching two professionals play this game. You've got to be in superb condition to play this game."

Superb condition, but not necessarily young. Just ask Leo Tante.

Photos By Noreen Murphy

Tante is also handy with a blow-dryer as he demonstrates with Linda Murray of Woburn at Hair By Tante in Woburn, one of his five salons.

Painting By Knife?

Most people paint with a brush. Others try different methods. Finger painting, for example. Not many would try, much less even think of painting with a knife. Or rags, for that matter. At a recent demonstration sponsored by the Winchester Art Association at the Library, Lexington artist MacLucas Ward demonstrated just how easy painting can be with a knife, even a putty knife, and a selection of rags. In front of an audience of approximately 75 persons in the Rich Room, Ward set up a still life of purple and yellow flowers in a glass vase illuminated by a small light behind the vase. After a brief introduction, she started painting, using first a rag, then a knife, then a rag again, and back to a knife, never stopping in her narration and rarely, if ever, turning her back on her audience. Over roughly one-hour, Ward dipped her 10-inch square rags into paint, spread the paint around the canvas with the rag and worked it over with one of her dozen or so different knives and PRESTO - a finished work of art. "She used her knife like she was spreading butter," said one observer. "The richness of her paintings comes from the texture she achieves with the combination of the rags and the knives."

Roberts Named Governor At Quota Club

Quota Club, District 29, of which the Winchester Club is a member club, held its 29th Annual Fall Conference at the Sheraton-Boxborough Inn and Conference Center last weekend.

The conference, comprised of 12 eastern clubs, voted unanimously to support Leila-Jane Roberts as Governor of the 29th District. Roberts, Director of Winchester Public Library, has served for two years as Lieutenant Governor for the District. She is also a past president and charter member of the Winchester Club which was chartered in March, 1972.

Throughout the world, there are 35 districts in which there are clubs who are a part of the international organization. Quota Club is a service organization of executive women whose concentration of attention is on the hard of hearing and speech handicapped. It also supports programs for battered women, abused children, and the elderly. It is involved in the U.N. Care Program and provides scholarships, especially for the deaf. Community service, state, nation and the wider world are given prominent places in the Quota program.

During the impressive installation service, the international representative of Quota Club, Joan McMullin from Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, presided. Helen Dame of Winchester, past governor, past president of Winchester's club and charter member, gave the invocation. Also attending from the Winchester Club were Gloria Pearson, Norma James, Leonor Rich, Eileen Schell, Margaret Stockwood, and Florence Drillo.

BayBank Merger To Affect Local Institution

Robert J. Zirkel, President of BayBank Winchester Trust Company, announced that the Boards of Directors of BayBank Winchester Trust Company and BayBank Middlesex have agreed in principle to the merger of their institutions subject, among other things, to necessary regulatory approvals.

It is proposed that Winchester would join the 32 cities and towns now served by BayBank Middlesex and that Zirkel would join the bank's Community Banking Division.

Giles E. Mosher, Jr., is President and Chief Executive Officer of BayBank Middlesex which presently operates 63 offices located throughout Middlesex County with total assets of $1,041,800,000 as of Sept. 30. BayBank Winchester Trust Company has three banking offices in the Town of Winchester with total assets of $24,496,324 as of the same date.

Each bank is a member of BayBanks, Inc., a holding company formed in 1928, which controls eleven banks in Massachusetts with assets of $3 billion.

The newest water sports option for vacationers heading to Nassau and Paradise Island is windsurfing. This is an activity that combines the elements of sailing, surfing and skiing. The windsurfer stands on an unsinkable board, hauls the mast and sail from a horizontal to a vertical position, and by manually changing the sail's angle to the wind, skims across the open water. The warm, placid waters around Nassau and Paradise Island, the trade winds and the fine weather contribute to excellent windsurfing conditions year round.

In addition to Nassau and Paradise Islands our staff at McGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Ave., Woburn, 925-0600 will be happy to make other suggestions for a vacation that you will long remember. We have all traveled extensively so many times we can answer your questions with first hand information. Since 1917 we have been handling the travel needs of folks in this area. Open: Mon. - Fri. 9-5, Sat. and evenings by appt.

TRAVEL TIP: Many festivals on the islands are free for hotel guests.

Leaders Support Nuclear Ban

A number of prominent Massachusetts political leaders and scientists, including Senator Edward M. Kennedy and Lieutenant Governor Thomas P. O'Neill III, have endorsed a "Yes" vote on the nuclear power moratorium question that will appear on about a third of the ballots across Massachusetts this November.

Locally, the question will appear as Question 8 on Winchester ballots. In his endorsement letter to the organizers of the moratorium campaign, Senator Kennedy said, "I support a moratorium on nuclear powerplant licensing. I am confident that once the public is fully aware of the full range of nuclear power dangers, and equally aware of the variety of more reliable, job-intensive energy alternatives for Massachusetts and New England, democracy will assure a safe energy future for our state."

Locally, Winchester's Congressman

Edward Markey, a long-time advocate of safe energy who addressed the Democratic Convention this summer on the dangers of nuclear power, has also added his endorsement.

Massachusetts state legislators publicly supporting this safe energy effort include Representative Barney Frank, former Representative Lois Pines, Senator Jack Backman, Senator Sharon Pollard, and Representative Nicholas Costello.

In the scientific community, moratorium organizers have received endorsements from Nobel Laureate George Wald, Professor Emeritus of Harvard University, from Jerome Grossman, President of Council for a Livable World, and from Winchester resident Dr. Alexander Leaf of Harvard University, a sponsor of Physicians for Social Responsibility.

"This is only a partial list of endorsers," explains Janet Bernstein, the Editor's Note: The following is the sixth in a series of articles submitted by Winchester Hospital on planned construction at the Highland Avenue facility.

In April 1980, the Hospital's consultants recommended, and the Board of Directors approved, a concept for Winchester Hospital's long-range development.

The purpose of the concept was to establish a framework relating present, 1985 and long-term development potentials to the Hospital's One and Five Year Plan and to its current needs. The consultant's long-range study considered regional and local site access, surrounding and facing development, zoning, topography, orientation and configuration, neighborhood street patterns, land use, circulation and parking. These were compared with projected hospital needs; on and off-site use of facilities; construction and renovation potentials, phasing, scheduling and costs.

The major findings resulting from the study were that: Resolving the Hospital's accumulated needs requires two development phases: initial construction, followed by internal renovations;

A significant potential for new construction exists to the west of the existing Hospital complex using the vertical expansion capacity of the adjacent portion of the "A" building;

A significant opportunity exists to establish a central linear circulation spine that would relate the existing Hospital site and facility to a new plan; On-site access and circulation patterns should be organized and clarified; As a non-conforming structure, the Russell House should be removed;

Maximum use and renovation of all other existing buildings should be made in order to minimize the amount of new construction required;

Sequential construction and renovation must also minimize any disruption of continued operations;

Satisfying the Hospital's parking needs requires garage construction; and that

The capital costs of this renovation and construction program are similar to those arrived at in previous studies.

During the three months of study from April on, the Hospital's architects refined and developed this concept.

Working with the Hospital's Planning Committee, individual departments or services, and its consultants, the resulting 1985 construction and renovation project was successively reviewed and approved by the Board of Directors.

The following is a description of the project:

Basement level
A new basement level will be built adjacent to the existing Hospital complex. This level will accommodate the following elements:

A new service access from Valley Road, consistent with current Hospital access patterns, to include a new off-street loading dock and service yard. The cooling tower and mechanical equipment will be concealed within a landscaped enclosure in preference to an unsightly rooftop construction.

The existing morgue will be relocated to this new level with discreet, off-street access.

Central Sterile Supply will be relocated to this level with bulk storage remaining off-site in the Cross Street warehouse.

Engineering services will be relocated to the new level with direct access to and from the loading dock.

Housekeeping services will be removed from the patient care areas of the ground floor and re-located in this new level for better supply access.

Education department facilities replacing those now located in the Washington School will be provided on this level adjacent to the new public, staff and patient entrances from Fairmount Street and the parking garage.

In addition to these functions, this basement level includes new mechanical, telephone frame and other equipment rooms, shafts and associated building spaces.

Ground floor
A new ground floor level will be built adjacent to the existing Hospital complex. This level will be devoted to diagnostic and treatment services for both ambulatory and in-patients, together with central facilities for their admission and processing.

The new ground floor includes the following elements:

Public, patient, and staff access from Fairmount Street and the parking garage leading directly to central reception and registration facilities.

A consolidated central reception area for patient processing and admitting activities.

The existing emergency service will be relocated to this floor for improved ambulance and ambulatory patient access. This service will be adjacent to radiology and will have convenient staff and patient access to the laboratory service. It will also have direct elevator access to the surgical functions and obstetrical service on the floors above.

Radiology will be relocated to the new wing on the ground floor, adjacent to the emergency service, other special diagnostic functions and central registration.

These space allocations will permit related internal renovations on the ground floor of the existing Hospital. Nuclear Medicine functions will be relocated in association with this renovation and will be afforded direct patient and staff access to EKG functions.

EKG-EKG and respiratory services are presently well located for both out-patient and inpatient access. These will be renovated in place. Dietary preparation, work and storage areas will be renovated in place as the existing cafeteria is relocated to the first floor.

Enrichment Group Sponsors Youth Opera Program

The Community School Association (C.S.A.) Enrichment Committee is sponsoring a Young Audiences of Massachusetts program, Introduction to Opera, to be presented in the Winchester elementary schools during the next two weeks.

Four young singers and an accompanist will demonstrate the use of the voice to express a variety of emotions and situations. During the performance students in the audience will take part in an improvised musical dialogue and a mini-opera.

This program is funded in part by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency whose funds are recommended by the Governor and appropriated by the State Legislature.

The rest of the funding for this program is made available by the recently established C.S.A. Enrichment Fund.

This central fund was created with monies from the parent's associations of each of the elementary schools and the Winchester School Department to equalize and improve the quality of the enrichment programs for students in all six Winchester elementary schools.

HOW MUCH PROFIT?

When you sell your home for a profit, Uncle Sam will expect a capital gains tax on the profit unless you buy another home costing more. But you can make this profit tax basis as small as feasible by adding legitimate expenses to the original cost and deducting expenses from the sale price.

You can add any buying costs, such as: title search, title insurance, lawyer's fee, appraisal fee, recording fees, property survey, credit report, bank lawyer's fee, processing charges and any "points" you may have had to pay. If you made any capital improvements — finished attic or basement, new kitchen, added porch, patio or swimming pool you can add the cost of these to the original price.

You can deduct your selling cost from the price you received: Realtor's commission, lawyer's fees, advertising costs and fix-up expenses if they were made within 90 days prior to the sale. Now you deduct the lower selling price from the higher original cost figures and you arrive at the taxable profit.

YOU WON'T BE GIVING UP A HOME WHEN YOU MOVE TO POTTER POND

Potter Pond in Lexington is a small secluded community of condominium homes where you can indeed have the best of all worlds. These gracious homes are traditional Cape-style and have been attached in small clusters on 43 acres of rolling wooded lands with ponds and grassy knolls.

You will find at Potter Pond you do not have to settle for high rise anonymity when choosing a condominium. The homes at Potter Pond are truly individual houses with fireplaces and garages. All the benefits of condominium living are here, and you still have the joys of owning your own home.

We offer a selection of 2 and 3 bedroom homes in a wide range of layouts and prices ranging from $142,500 to $175,500. All the homes at Potter Pond have house-sized rooms and features. Directions: Route 128 to Route 2 East to the Pleasant Street Exit. Turn right onto Concord Avenue then left onto Walnut Street. Telephone 861-8616

High School Sets Mini-College Offerings Oct. 29

Every Wednesday after school at 2:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the Guidance Office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Oct. 29, the following institutions will be represented: California Institute of Technology, Filchburg State College, Georgetown University School of Nursing (Washington, D.C.), Goucher College (Maryland), Nassau College (Maine), Princeton University (New Jersey), Providence College (Rhode Island) and Unity College (Maine).

On Wednesday, Nov. 5, admissions representatives from the following institutions plan to attend: Brandeis University, Chamberlayne Junior College, University of Denver (Colorado), Flagler College (Florida), Gordon College, Hofstra University (New York), Nichols College, St. Michael's College (Vermont) and Wheaton College.

Crittenton League Sets Fall Meeting At Wilcox Home

The Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League held its Fall Meeting Oct. 14 at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Woodford Wilcox, 29 Calumet rd.

Dorothy Hanks, Case Worker for the Day Program at Crittenton-Hastings House was the speaker.

This program started in 1973 and now serves approximately 30 intercity girls in the last trimester of their pregnancy.

It is specifically geared to this period of their pregnancy to help them earlier with pre-natal care and provide them with a continuation of their education at whatever their grade level.

Counseling is also given regarding financial, medical and any home-life problems which might arise with any follow-up which is necessary.

The majority of the girls now are choosing to provide for their children. Refreshments were served after an interesting discussion period.

Library Renewed

Visitors to the library this fall have noticed that the Smith Room on the main floor now houses the collection of books and other materials on Art and Music. The study facilities have been moved to the balcony Downs Room.

The Capital Improvement program of the town provided much of the money needed to accomplish the work but inflation meant that these funds were not sufficient to complete the project. Several town organizations have contributed to the success of the venture.

The Winchester Young Women's Club paid to have chairs refinished. These chairs had been custom made for the library when the building was constructed in 1931.

The tables now in the room were refinished and topped with formica through the generosity of En Ka and the Winchester Jaycees. The interior designer noticed that the pattern on the tables, also part of the original building furnishings, carried out the design around the mural over the fireplace. The upholstered armchairs, now flanking the fireplace, originally part of the Edgar J. Rich bequest, were refurbished with a gift from En Ka.

Both areas have received enthusiastic praise from library users. Not only are they attractive, but materials which are used by many are in a more accessible place. Serious study is possible in the space which is removed from the normal noise of the circulation desk. Individual lighting at each carrel helps in our efforts to conserve energy.

The art prints for loan are on racks right across from the circulation desk. Cassettes and recordings in the Smith Room can be chosen more easily and are together in one place.

We also want to gratefully acknowledge the Winchester Home and Garden Club's gift of a new face at the end of the walk on Washington Street.

A survey was done by them of landscaping needs, cost estimates were researched, and this is the first step in a continuing process which will renew our exterior appearance. Replanting was done near the chimney on the Parkway side and a crop of volunteer workers from the club removed weeds and unnecessary growth around the trees and walls near the Junior Library.

The Annual Library Book Sale will start Saturday, Nov. 1, at 10 a.m. in the Meeting Room and run through 3 p.m. Books on sale are from our discards and from gifts of people which we do not need for the collection at the library.

Sunday openings from 1 to 5 in the afternoon begin on Nov. 2. In the seven years we have provided this service, usage has grown. Last year 299 was the average number of people each week who took advantage of our open hours on Sunday, and the average number of materials borrowed each week was 376, or close to 100 per hour.

Next week we'll highlight how we choose the books in the collection.

Weather Means Dry Skin

By JOHN KENNEDY
Community Relations, Winchester Hospital
Special to the Star

As we quickly slip from the brisk brilliance of autumn toward the dark chill of winter, one factor we should always keep in mind is the effect of seasonal changes on our overall health.

One of the most common medical ailments affecting us this time of year is skin related problems; dry skin, roughness and flareups of psoriasis, dandruff and seborrheic dermatitis. With the coming months signalling to rush to the "great indoors," dry heat inside houses combines with the cold, windy conditions outside to often wreak havoc with our skin — our body's first line of defense.

While psoriasis and seborrheic dermatitis, usually characterized by rough, flaky patches on certain parts of the body, is an inherited disorder affecting a relatively small percentage of people, dry skin is a condition which seems to affect almost everyone in the colder months. The development of dry skin is quite a natural part of the aging process and is partially caused by external factors such as exposure to harsh weather and to the sun's ultraviolet radiation. Internal changes of aging, like menopause and hormonal decline, also contribute to the increase of dry skin.

Though you can live quite comfortably with dry skin through the summer, it becomes especially vulnerable in late fall and winter, when low humidity and cold dews not only turn leaves to many colors, but also can do the same to our skin.

"The outside air holds little water and when it's heated indoors, it dries out even more," says Dr. Robert Griesemer, a dermatologist on the staff of Winchester Hospital, who adds, "Exposure of the outer protective layer of skin to this dry air causes the skin to lose water faster than this water can be replaced from within our bodies." When this dehydrating process occurs, the outer layer of skin becomes shriveled, rough and brittle and, when it is bent or stretched in the course of our daily activities, it can crack and cause chapping. Beside causing aggravating itching, when it cracks, dry skin can allow many irritating substances to enter beneath the skin layer and this problem can be compounded by the drying-out effect of detergents, solvents, chemicals and excess bathing.

There's no avoiding the progression of skin dryness, outside of relocating to a warm, moist climate, and frequent applications of oil and water cream or lotion is the only hope for keeping the skin supple and moist.

The water in such over the counter lubricants as Eucerin, Nutraderm and Lubriderm softens the dry skin, while the oil in these products serves to trap the skin's water, keeping the skin softer for a longer time. Though bathing will soften the skin quickly, it will also take important materials out of the skin, leaving it dry and brittle. Adding oil to bathwater cannot sufficiently restore these lost skin properties and, as a result, bath oil will only help those people who have just a slight tendency toward dry skin. Those with more serious dry skin can bathe only occasionally through the winter, and must apply lotions and creams quite heavily.

Dandruff and seborrheic dermatitis (inflammation and itching in dandruff scales) also occurs more frequently in dry winter weather, and also when the person is fatigued or under emotional stress.

Common seasonal infections such as sore throats, colds and flu can also aggravate a dandruff condition and lead to seborrheic dermatitis. Just like dry skin, the presence of dandruff cannot really be cured, but only controlled, with daily shampooing being the usual key to success.

"The current medicated dandruff shampoos available without prescription are usually adequate to control most scaling in the scalp," says Dr. Griesemer. "But, for more resistant scales, applications of medicated ointments must be allowed to act between shampoos." A variety of other prescription medications are also available for more serious dandruff conditions located around the face, eyes and ears.

With proper preparation, good sense and a little bit of homespun preventive medicine, our frosty New England fall and winter doesn't have to be a time for our skin to suffer from the rigors of the elements. Good, all round health always starts in the home.

Local Reagan Headquarters Opens

The Winchester Republican (Reagan-Bush) Headquarters will have its official opening tonight from 7 to 9 p.m.

H. Rushton Harwood Jr., Chairman of the Winchester Republican Town Committee, said, "After scouring the town of Winchester for the past six weeks, we are elated that one of our members has been able to secure a prime spot for us at 10 Mt. Vernon street, the location of the former Purity Supreme Deli."

Members found all Winchester stores in the center of town were occupied at this time. "This is great for the Winchester economy, but has shortened our usual period for a headquarters!" Harwood added. "This particular store, however, was well worth waiting for."

The Republican Committee members have been signing the headquarters's schedule which covers the next ten days. The hours tentatively will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Representative Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, Jr. former Representative Harrison Chadwick and other Republican leaders from surrounding towns are expected to be on hand to greet people tonight.

Vice Chairman Jennifer Flowers said, "We hope that many Winchester people will stop by the headquarters and possibly give us an hour or two of their time these next ten days."

The usual campaign material will be available at the headquarters and it is the aim of the workers to inform the general public about this district's Republican candidates Ronald Reagan, George Bush, Sherman Saltmarsh, Jr., and Philip Razouk.

Lower Turnout Is Predicted By Clerk

Town Clerk Carolyn Ward expects fewer residents to vote in next Tuesday's Presidential election than voted in that same election four years ago.

In 1976, 85 percent of the town's registered voters turned out. That percentage followed a 34 percent voter turnout during that year's September Primary.

Based on those figures and a scant 14 percent turnout in the primary two months ago, Ward doesn't expect local turnout to be as heavy as it was four years ago.

Ward did say that voter turnout is higher during a Presidential election.

A breakdown of Winchester's 13,342 registered voters as of August of this year has the town having a total of 5,214 voters registered as Democrats while 3,543 will cast their votes as Republicans.

Ward said there were approximately 900 voters who are registered but unenrolled by party who have joined the voting ranks since the September primary.

Voter turnout during the last two Presidential elections has held relatively steady, with 83 percent voting in 1972 while 84 percent voted during the 1978 election.

Selectmen Vote To Postpone Mall Bus Plans Until Jan. 1

By STEVEN AUSTIN

Despite pleas by Selectman Michael Saraco that local merchants can't "capture people," Selectmen voted Monday to postpone minibuses service to the Burlington Mall until at least Jan. 1.

Lead by Rita Spence, Executive Director of the Chamber of Commerce and Chamber President Bob Nickerson, area merchants met with Selectmen to voice their opposition to a vote last week to begin the Mall route service on a three-month trial basis.

The vote last week to extend the service was split, with Selectmen John Williams, Allan Macdonald and Saraco voting for the service and Chairman Wade Welch and Selectman Edward F. O'Connell opposing it.

Monday night's vote was also split but this time, only Saraco cast the dissenting vote.

"I think you people should think about this," Saraco told the twenty-odd merchants attending the meeting. "You capture people. You don't say to them 'we're not going to let you go to the Mall.'"

Saraco was anything but pleased with the tone of some of the letters he'd received from local business people following last week's vote.

He said he'd also received a number of calls from residents praising the decision to begin the Mall service.

"We have nothing, that's what they tell me," Saraco said. "I will not change my vote tonight. If this vote is reversed, residents have told me they will stop patronizing downtown."

Selectman Macdonald, who moved to have the service postponed until at least Jan. 1 said he didn't think the vote to hold off on the program was a reversal of the vote taken a week earlier.

Saying he saw "a potentially harmful situation," Macdonald called on representatives of the Chamber and the Mini-Bus Committee to meet and discuss the plan.

Plans would have had buses running to the Mall on Tuesdays and Thursdays and have already drawn support from the MBTA.

In a letter dated Oct. 27, Mary L. MacInnes, Acting Chief Service Planning Officer with the MBTA said her organization was "very supportive of this proposed expansion." The mini-bus system in Winchester is funded on a 50-50 basis between the town and the MBTA.

The MBTA encouraged the town to implement the program "as soon as possible."

Presently, Winchester is "barely meeting" standards for ridership required by the MBTA for funding. MacInnes' letter said "the extension to the Mall should improve the system productivity."

In explaining the vote of a week ago, Macdonald said, "As we look ahead, I see the mini-bus as very important to Winchester Center. I do honestly believe this type of run will not affect the Center. Psychologically, it's a blow but the vote (last week) did not indicate any lack of support for downtown. Last week's vote was to recognize that the mini-bus needs help."

Merchants, through Nickerson, believed the service to the Mall should be halted until an economic development planner can make a study of the downtown area.

"Our contention is that it should be halted until someone is brought on board to tell us where we need to go," Nickerson told Selectmen.

A Program For Gifted

By MARY CRESSE

Gifted and talented students in Winchester may soon have a series of programs tailor-made for the development of their unique talents.

Director of Curriculum David Ackerman presented the School Committee Monday with four alternative proposals.

"For the past two years, there have been discrepancies concerning what is to be done with the gifted and talented students in Winchester," Ackerman said. "How to educate the gifted and talented is a complex and controversial issue. It's important for the community to be aware of these needs and to remain as open and objective as possible."

He formulated four options according to what he saw to be the needs of the students:

1. In-Class Modification, where the needs of individual students can be served in the regular classroom without disrupting the structured curriculum;
2. Encouragement of grade-skipping;
3. Special part-time programs for the gifted; and
4. Student-initiated advanced projects outside of the regular curriculum.

Ackerman then elaborated on the advantages and disadvantages of each, citing feasibility as a prime factor in assessing them.

Now in effect from kindergarten through 8th grade, in-class modification is advantageous in that it is challenging to capable pupils, built into the regular grade sequence, and beneficial to those who can benefit from immediate access to materials for the academically gifted.

Condo Conversion

What Selectmen Learned From Berndt

By STEVEN AUSTIN

While tenants at the Parkview Apartment complex won't get as much time to relocate as Selectmen would like, they will have until April 1 to find new homes.

In a letter to Selectmen dated Oct. 20, complex owner Edward Berndt Jr. said residents would get formal notices to leave Parkview Jan. 1 of next year. These notices will "formally terminate the tenancies as of February 1, 1981," the letter explained.

If residents remain beyond Feb. 1, Berndt plans legal proceedings but will not ask that those proceedings be executed until April 1.

No tenant will be required to leave the complex until "he has at least six months notice of the intention to convert over to condominiums," the Berndt letter said. Berndt said he had sent letters to those residents who don't plan to buy their units, asking them to relocate as soon as possible.

The letter also revealed that Berndt had sold over 100 units to residents "so that the number of displaced tenants has been considerably reduced."

He said a lease had been prepared for elderly residents in accordance with remarks made by Berndt's attorney Walter H. McLaughlin Jr. before the board of Selectmen two weeks ago.

At that time, more than fifty Parkview residents appeared before Selectmen concerning condo conversion at the 318-unit complex and were told by Town Attorney Douglas Randall the town could offer no aid.

During that same meeting, Selectmen Edward F. O'Connell suggested a letter to Berndt be drafted asking that residents be allowed to remain in their units until June 30 of next year.

Attorney McLaughlin said elderly residents would be allowed to remain at Parkview with no rent increases beyond cost-of-living increases.

He said conversion papers were filed with the Registry of Deeds last April and

What The Buyers Have Been Reading

Editor's Note: The information for the following article was taken from a copy of the sale and unit purchase agreement condo buyers at the Parkview Apartment receive. The Star obtained a copy of the document Tuesday.

By STEVEN AUSTIN

Parkview residents who decide to purchase units at the Parkview complex after Jan. 1 under Edward Berndt's plan to convert the 318-unit into condominiums receive an eight-page unit purchase and sale agreement outlining the relationship between buyer and seller.

The early section of the document gives Berndt the right to change or modify the Master Deed or the Declaration of Trust.

Should such modifications or changes take place the deposit placed on the unit is returned to the Buyer, the agreement terminated "without further recourse to either party."

The next section of the agreement provides for the conveyance of a clear and marketable title and excepts seven encumbrances.

Among those encumbrances are any liens for municipal betterments following the date of the agreement and gives Berndt rights to all water on the site presently being used to heat and cool the building.

Parkview is climate-controlled by the harnessing of an underground spring.

Under the terms of this section, Berndt is also allowed to erect pumps, install pipes and other machinery necessary should he decide to direct that water off the site.

Any payments made by the buyer are refundable, without interest if title can't be given or if the unit doesn't conform with the agreement's provisions.

It also provides for a lease with Continental Cablevision of Massachusetts for the placement of an antenna on top of the building.

Berndt has two options should the buyer not be able to remove defects

Committee Opposes Park St. Plan

A 17-member committee composed of residents and business people along Park Street aren't happy with some aspects of a plan to build a 28-unit condominium project on their street.

Committee members, upset over plans to have cars at the project enter and leave by Park street and Elmwood avenue locations and concerned that parking might be expanded, will mail a letter to town officials.

However, project manager Anthony Albani says there will be no more cars in the condo lot that currently park at the site. He said - the project would have a two-level garage with exists and entrances on Elmwood avenue and Park street.

He said the project complied with "all ordinances requested by the town" and would have one space and a half per unit. All parking, Albani said, would be contained on site.

The citizens' group list eight objections in the letter planned for town officials.

Among those objections are what the committee sees as too much traffic on Park street now, the shortage of parking existing parking for business and homes in the area and the amount of car and trailer traffic currently accommodated by the street.

The group also believes problems will arise since the street only has a twelve-foot clearance when cars are parked along both sides of the street, since large trucks sometimes unload and block the street. They also cited complications posed by snow and ice.

Other contentions include the groups' belief police enforcement of parking and off-street parking regulations would be impossible if the condo traffic is routed out Park and Elmwood and the possibility of more condos or business wanting to locate in the area.

Membership on the committee includes John Bossi of Bossi's Exxon, Roger Gullotti of Embassy Cleaners, Frank Sopper of Pipeline Testing, at

He said merchants were concerned that "Selectmen allowed the mini-bus to take people out of Winchester."

Spence, in addressing the board, said the planned route would "divert revenue from Winchester to another town."

She said the route should be deferred until "the Center is strengthened or until we know where to go."

She said the Chamber was at work to reverse the trend which saw the center assessed at $4.6 million in 1968 and only $4 million in 1975.

She said a study planned by an economic development coordinator would give merchants a better idea of how the problem should be addressed.

The arguments merchants raised Monday were ones brought up by Chairman Welch and Selectman O'Connell a week ago.

"I do feel when you're pulling a rope in a tug of war, you should pull in the same direction," O'Connell said Monday night.

He said bus service to the Mall would be contrary to the efforts of the Chamber and the Fund Winchester Drive to revitalize the downtown area.

O'Connell said he rather wait until an analysis of the downtown area is done before beginning the bus service.

He dismissed comparisons with the Lexington Mini-Bus system which also has routes to the Mall in Burlington.

To accept such a comparison, said O'Connell is like comparing apples and lemons.

"Lexington, is by contrast to Winchester, a bustling community."

Town Manager Tom Groux said he believed there "is an assumption of a negative effect on the business community in Winchester. Unless it (the plan) is tried, that assumption can't be proved one way or another."

Welch, who said he had owned a business in downtown Winchester which failed, said he favored postponing the service until after the Christmas season.

"I'm not asking anyone to change their vote," Welch said. "If you're right, you'll still be just as right after the Christmas season."

Gary Watros, Chairman of the Mini-Bus Committee, said plans for the Mall route were nothing new.

"It goes back a number of years," Watros said. "We resisted the MBTA's urgings to do this." He said that most of the suggestions for improvements from residents have concerned service to the Mall.

Rich Stevens, another mini-bus official, said plans to route buses to the Mall was "a compromise the committee made internally."

He said 25 runs into the Center had been eliminated due to a lack of ridership.

Marsha Bentley, coordinator for the system said, "if we try to delay, it might be too late for the system." She said rides to the Mall would cost $1 composing what she termed a "premium service" with no more than 50 people per day going to the Mall.

Stevens also pointed out that a Chamber seat on the minimini-bus advisory board had been vacant for more than a year. Nickerson said the seat would be filled by the Chamber.

Liquor Licenses On Ballot Tuesday

Question Seven on Tuesday's ballot, the vote to grant not more than three liquor licenses in Winchester to an establishment with a seating capacity of not less than one hundred persons, is appearing for the first time on Winchester's state ballot. According to Massachusetts' law, the question must pass three consecutive votes before it is taken off the ballot.

Local residents have voted on this question once before in the spring town election of 1978. At that time the referendum passed 1180 to 486. Subsequently, Randall's Corporation, operator of Randall's Restaurant, applied for and received the town's first license in April of 1979.

★ Berndt

that Berndt would become sole owner of the complex in January of next year. Currently, the project is owned by Berndt Realty Inc.

Units at the complex range in price from $30,000 to $69,000.

Selectmen O'Connell suggested that a second letter be drafted to Berndt, asking clarification on the age of elderly. O'Connell's request came during the board's regular meeting Monday night.

The purpose of repeating the question on the state ballot is to give voters the opportunity to register their feelings since the liquor law has been used. It will appear on Winchester's state ballot in 1982 and again in 1984 and must receive an affirmative vote each time.

Montiero Sentenced
In Bank Robbery

The second of three Charlestown men charged in connection with the March hold up of the Winchester Savings Bank pleaded guilty last week and was sentenced to eight to 10 years at the Mass. Correctional Institute at Walpole.

Salvatore Montiero, pleaded guilty in Middlesex Superior Court in Cambridge last Thursday to charges of armed robbery. Judge Albert Silverman sentenced Montiero to eight to 10 years at MCI Walpole, to be served concurrently.

Asst. District Attorney Thomas Dreschler, prosecutor in the three cases, said his recommendation had been eight to 10 years.

Montiero is already imprisoned at Walpole, having been sentenced to six to 12 years in May for his part in a Marshfield bank robbery earlier this year.

Montiero was the driver of the getaway car in the Winchester stick-up, Dreschler said. He was arrested three days after the March 22 heist in Boston.

Two weeks ago Judge Silverman sentenced James Chambers, 21, to two five to 10 year sentences at Walpole for armed robbery and assault with intent to murder and two three to five year sentences for receiving stolen property and illegal possession of a firearm. The sentences are to be served concurrently. The case of the last of the three suspects, Mark Giannino, 17, is scheduled to be heard in Superior Court Nov. 6. He is charged with armed robbery, assault with intent to murder and breaking and entering in the daytime.

The noontime Saturday hold up was foiled by off duty Winchester Police Officer James Pierce. Driving up Washington street he noticed bank customers with their hands in the air. When he approached the bank, Montiero, parked in a Torino outside the bank, honked the horn and fled from the scene.

Chambers fired shots at Pierce through the front door and escaped with Giannino through the back. Chambers forced a woman and her son from their car on Swanton street at gunpoint but was later caught at the intersection of Dix and Church streets when he lost control of the car. Giannino was arrested later that evening in his Charlestown home.

All $28,440 taken in the robbery was recovered.

Public Hearing

The Planning Board will hold a public hearing Wednesday, Nov. 5 at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall auditorium on Article 32, a proposal to restrict building in Winchester's industrial zones.

from the title, deliver possession or conform to the agreement.

Berndt may either refund any payments made without interest, in which case the document is void or he may accept whatever title the buyer can offer and pay the purchase price without deduction.

The buyer is also required to execute all documents "reasonably" required by Berndt.

Deposits made prior to the sale will be returned on the closing date without interest.

The Malden Cooperative Bank is handling the mortgage of the units and offers a 13.5 percent rate. The buyer is also responsible for payment of appraisal fees, mortgage contingency insurance premiums or closing costs.

A second option has Berndt offering a purchase money mortgage for 80 percent of the purchase price at a 13.5 percent per year interest rate.

The buyer is also responsible for a one percent origination fee of the purchase price.

Under the terms of the agreement, the buyer acknowledges "no representations...with respect to work to be done to the unit or the common areas of the condominiums."

The document also says projected first mortgage payments, approximate monthly real estate tax costs and approximate monthly common area expenses are not to be accepted as "a representation, warranty or guarantee."

The buyer also acknowledges he has not relied upon information supplied by the seller's broker.

The document also contains a list of exhibits which includes a seller's estimate of common expenses, a figure as yet unspecified, the improvements made the unit prior to the closing date and improvements in the common areas to be completed after the closing date.

Under the section titled "Title Insurance", the buyer is responsible for such insurance. This insurance insures the title is free from all encumbrances other than those outlined by the agreement.

The buyer is also responsible for a $10 loan policy charge, a $75 title certification charge to be paid to the law firm handling the conversion, Gilman, McLaughlin and Hanrahan.

The buyer is under no obligation to purchase such insurance.

Construction of the condos is expected to get underway by mid winter or early spring, Albani said.

The group has asked that traffic enter and leave the building by a Main street access. Albani said such a plan was considered but discarded because developers felt it would be safer to have the accesses on Park and Elmwood due to car and pedestrian traffic on Main.

Halloween Tips Offered

Police Chief John McHugh has issued a series of suggestions to help insure a safe, enjoyable evening for all young "trick or treaters," ghosts and goblins, witches and spooks" on Halloween evening.

A Halloween booklet sponsored by the Winchester Savings Bank was passed out in all schools recently by the Safety Officer during his Fall visits to schools. This will be helpful to all families in reminding their children of specific problems that arise on Halloween. Chief McHugh suggested that all parents read appropriate parts of the booklet, to their children to alert them to possible dangers and how to avoid them.

"Unfortunately," said Chief McHugh "certain Halloween horrors can become too real. Every year, on Halloween a few children suffer from car accidents, fire injuries, falls, cuts, bruises, poisoned treats and other unnecessary miseries".

WATCH OUT FOR THESE HAZARDS!
Risky Roadways-Children become careless from excitement and may run into the road. Dusk is the time of poorest visibility for drivers.

Frightful Flames-Open flames from jack-o-lanterns, candles, can ignite billowing, flammable costumes. Flowing, false-hair wigs can burst into flames. Discourage any open flame type display.

Dangerous Dress-includes loose costumes, bulky trick-or-treat bags, unsafe shoes, masks which reduce vision, sharp or pointed toy weapons, dark, hard-to-see costumes.

Watch out for treacherous "treats, razor blades in apples, tacks in popcorn, needles, pins in candy, poisoned popcorn.

PLANS TO BE MADE

What route will your children be following? Know where you could find them quickly, if it becomes necessary. What companions will your children have? They should be at the same age level and in groups no bigger than three or four.

What supervision will the children have? Young children should be accompanied by an adult or a responsible older child.

What homes will the children visit? It's best not to call at the homes of strangers.

What activities have the children planned? Be sure you know!

What time will your children be home?

Talk with your children. Know their plans. Be sure they understand your rules and limitations for their activities

COSTUME SAFETY

Flashlights will make children visible and help them see where they're going. Do Not Allow Candles.

Reflective strips, patches or paint increase visibility after dark.

Make-up is much safer than a mask, which can obscure vision.

RULES FOR SAFE WALKING

Cross the Street at cross-walk. Wait for the proper signal.

Look both ways before crossing at intersections.

Never start into road from between parked cars.

Stay on the sidewalk whenever you can.

If there is no sidewalk-walk way to the left facing traffic!

BRING ALL "TREATS" HOME

Massachusetts "Crime Watch," the state-wide crime prevention program, added these thoughts to those of the Chief: If you should discover anything wrong with the "treats" brought home, report it immediately to the Police 729-1212.

Revaluation Is Now Underway

Summer—M. Beal, Chairman, Board of Assessors, Town of Winchester reports the beginning of the second step in the revaluation process began the week of Oct. 20.

Up to this point in time, Patten Appraisal Associates, Inc., the company retained to carry out the equalization effort, has been preparing, with the assistance of the Board of Assessors, the Property Record Card to be used as the field data collection form. The initial data processing work also has been under way for several weeks with the preparation of the master tax file which will contain necessary ownership and geographic information to be followed with property data and sales information when the door-to-door phase of the project begins, scheduled for Nov. 3.

The first on-site phase of the project involves transferring basic property data onto the field collection form as an in-office clerical function. This is the element which began last week and has required lead time before company personnel begin ringing doorbells the week of Nov. 3.

The Board of Assessors also announce that the personnel assigned for the field work will be Richard Mirick, Robert Parker and George Greene. They will begin the first week of November in the northeast corner of the community. This element will continue uninterrupted until its completion early in the spring of 1981.

An informational flyer is now in the process of being printed and will be distributed by field personnel as they visit each property.

This is the first re-appraisal project in Winchester since 1967 and it is being carried out to meet State mandates for updating all property values to estimate of current market value and also to assure the property owners that each is paying no more than his fair share of taxes.

The project is slated for completion next summer.

Van Service For Cancer Patients Began On Oct. 22

Winchester Hospital's cancer patients who are receiving daily radiation treatment can now go by van into New England Medical Center Hospital in Boston.

The first day the van made a round trip to Winchester Hospital was the day the shuttle service opened on Oct. 22. There is no charge for the service to the patient.

Previously, patients have had to depend on relatives, friends or other outside sources to provide transportation to NEMCH for radiation treatment which is carried on five days a week, often for several weeks. At Winchester Hospital, Dr. Alan D. Edelstein, oncologist, makes arrangements for his patients to ride in the van, and Dr. James Santoro, radiotherapist, manages their treatment at NEMCH.

The van service is provided by New England Medical Center Hospital free of charge as a gesture of good will. Hywel Madoc-Jones, MD, Ph.D., who is chairman of the department of transportation although I don't mind driving in Boston myself." Next week a second patient will go daily from the parking lot at Winchester Hospital for a series of radiation treatments. therapeutic radiology introduced the program at NEMCH.

The transport program began last week, and picked up patients from Winchester Hospital, Choate and Lawrence Memorial.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING CONCERNING Winchester Hospital

Notice is hereby given that the Department of Public Health will conduct a hearing to permit comment on an application for Determination of Need submitted by Winchester Hospital.

Winchester Hospital filed an application for Determination of Need under M.G.L. c. 111, s. 25C on September 2, 1980 for new construction and renovation involving: (1) various treatment, supporting, and administrative service areas, (2) an increase in the licensed complement from 191 to 219 acute care beds, and (3) a parking garage, all at the 41 Highland Avenue, Winchester site. The maximum capital expenditure is $15.8 million.

The hearing will be held Thursday, November 13, 1980, at 7:30 P.M. in the Jenks Senior Center (across from the Town Hall), 108 Skillings Rd., Winchester.

Such hearing shall not be adjudicatory but shall be in the nature of a public forum for the presentation of any comments which may be relevant to consideration by the Department of the need for this project.

Persons wishing to make their views known may appear at the hearing or may submit written comments to the Department of Public Health, Office of Health Facilities Development, Room 120, 80 Boylston Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02116, within ten (10) days after the hearing.

Question 1

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It has become apparent that there needs to be some clarification on Question 1 of the referendum. This item will add the term "handicapped" to the constitution in Massachusetts.

It seems that the cost of adding such an amendment is becoming too much of a concern to the average citizen. It must be noted and clearly understood that programs and architectural considerations for the handicapped are being confused as the basis for the need for an amendment which is merely a civil rights issue. These considerations are already mandated by existing legislation; Chapter 52B, the Architectural Barrier Law and Chapter 50A, the Federal Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

If you take, for instance, the case of the school which I recently heard about the cost factor is of extreme consideration. This particular school was being asked to consider installing elevators to all three floors. This is taking accessibility to the extreme. It was suggested that the course for this student in question could be provided in his own home. This is absolutely unacceptable. It would keep the student from the everyday exposure and experience that High School means, in its full ideal capacity. It would be acceptable to ramp to the first floor and to provide the course at this level; thereby giving the student the full school experience.

If taken for its true merit it amounts to the equal right of every citizen to obtain the fullness of the human experience.

Please cast your yes vote in favor of Question One.

Frustration Led To 2 1/2

Editor's Note: The following is the fourth in a series of editorials submitted by Winchester's League of Women Voters on Proposition 2.5

During the past few weeks we have discussed in this column the ultimate effects of Proposition 2 1/2 on our state and town and the services on which we have come to depend.

Why then, are there those who feel a "yes" vote is in order?

Primarily, citizen frustration with Massachusetts' over-dependence on the property tax is reaching flash point and with good reason. Unquestionably, equitable tax reform is an absolute must for our state.

Unfortunately, though all agree on this point, responsible tax reform legislation has been repeatedly killed in the legislature. Now, we face a decision on a law which neither reforms nor provides equitable distribution of the tax levy requirements of our cities and towns.

Equitable tax reform should: —allow a community to meet its own public service requirements —recognize and provide for varying fiscal situations —encourage good fiscal planning —not unduly burden the poor —not cause detrimental changes in the balance of power between state and local government —should allow for proper budget procedures.

Proposition 2 1/2 does not meet the above requirements.

It will succeed instead, in forcing all cities and towns to wear the same size "suit" if you will, without regard to individual need and priorities; it will stifle all expansion due to the requirement that increased levies may not be applied to increased demand for services; it will force all cuts to come from the non-mandated budget which pays for services; it will force cities and towns to go hat in hand to the state for relief after cutting back state income dramatically, knowing that the state of Massachusetts, unlike California, has not one penny of surplus with which to provide the sought after relief and finally, it will wreak havoc with local budget procedures as you will see in the coming town meeting should the bill pass.

The League of Women Voters, among other groups, has long advocated responsible tax reform in Massachusetts, lobbying successfully in some areas and committing continued efforts in others.

Although the League will continue to oppose general sales tax, we supported a tax on rental income (passed in 1971), equal deductions and exemptions for earned and unearned income (passed in 1987) and we will continue to lobby for a greater reliance on state collected taxes to reduce the burden on the property tax, increased taxes on liquor and cigarettes, a graduated income tax, user fees, enforcement of taxing income-producing properties of tax-exempt institutions and increased revenues from the sales tax with continued provisions for exemption of necessities such as food, medication and clothing to a lower limit.

There is such a thing as responsible tax reform — Proposition 2 1/2 is not it. Who can afford Proposition 2 1/2?

Clark Appointed At Area Hospital

Priscilla Clark of Winchester has been appointed executive director of the West Suburban Health Care Plan, a health maintenance organization (HMO) based at The Waltham Hospital.

"I am delighted to be here and view this as a tremendous opportunity, because I believe HMOs represent the future of health care delivery. A hospital based-plan is particularly exciting, because the hospital is a complete community health center that provides exceptional patient care," Clark said.

Assuming her duties on Oct. 20, she is responsible for coordinating marketing, health care and subscriber service activities.

Clark reports to the hospital after serving with Western Electric International, and following nearly three years as executive director of Charles Circle Clinic, Inc., in Boston. There, she supervised the start-up of a program, directed it through a period of expansion, and furnished it with a stable operating base.

She also was assistant administrator of New York's Metropolitan Hospital Center, a 1,000-bed municipal hospital; served the Peace Corps as a volunteer as well as an administrator and trainer.

A 1966 graduate of Bates College, she earned an MBA at Northeastern University in 1978.

Building Explained

Editor's Note: The following is the seventh in a series submitted by Winchester Hospital on planned construction at the Highland Avenue facility.

A new first floor level will be constructed adjacent to the existing Hospital, utilizing the vertical expansion capacities of the present laboratory wing. This new first floor level will be devoted to surgery and surgery-related functions.

It will be occupied by the following elements:

A replacement surgical service will be provided on this floor. This location will permit development of a modern suite with appropriate floor-to-floor height, whereas all existing Hospital buildings have sufficient vertical clearance for this surgical service. Soiled and sterile cart exchange with Central Sterile Supply will be provided.

A replacement intensive and cardiac care unit will be located adjacent to the surgical and recovery suites. This unit will have rooms arranged around a central nursing station for direct visual patient monitoring. Its relocation will permit convenient patient transfer to the step-down medical-surgical nursing unit on the first floor of the contiguous building.

The Oncology (cancer treatment) facilities will be relocated from the Russell House to this floor of the new wing. Ambulatory patient access from the adjacent elevator bank will be convenient, as will staff and patient access to Social Services and the Pharmacy.

Pharmacy will be relocated from its present location to this floor of the new construction for improved access to the nursing units and more convenient patient and staff access for counseling. This relocation will also permit better supply access.

Social Services will be relocated here from the Russell House. This location will afford the service convenient access from both the Fairmount Street and Highland Avenue approaches to the complex, as well as from the parking garage.

New construction on this level will include a replacement physician lounge relocated from the administrative wing of the Hospital for convenient physician access to the surgical service and medical records.

This new construction will thus permit significant internal renovations on the first floor of the present Hospital complex. A relocated and expanded day surgery center will be provided on this floor adjacent to the new surgical suite in space now occupied by the existing surgical service. The space vacated by surgery and Central Sterile Supply will also be renovated for the consolidated functions of Medical Records. Similar space will be renovated for the medical library. As previously mentioned, the cafeteria will be relocated to this first floor for improved staff and employee access as well as natural lighting through exterior windows.

The present administrative wing will be renovated to allow related functions to be consolidated. Hospital and nursing administration, conference facilities, employee relations, volunteer services, community relations and fund development will be included on this floor of the present Hospital for convenient public, visitor and staff access using the existing main entrance. Laundry and linen services will be retained in place on the first floor of the existing Hospital.

Second and Third Floors

A new second floor will be constructed, connected to the 1982 "A" building, utilizing existing vertical expansion capacities. This floor will be occupied by the new 28-bed medical-surgical acute care nursing unit and Physical Therapy. The new third floor will house the relocated pediatric and young adult medical-surgical acute care unit. Vacated fourth floor pediatric space will be renovated for Fiscal Services.

Republicans Open Headquarters At 10 Mt. Vernon

Although the Republican Headquarters at 10 Mt. Vernon st. was decorated and staffed on short notice, a large number of people turned out last Thursday evening for its official opening.

Among the local Republicans present were Representative Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr., former Representative Harrison Chadwick, Republican State Committeewoman Marion Hunt, former State Committeewoman Cynthia Barone, former Republican Town Committee Chairman George Littell, Jr., and Carol Johnson, past President of the Women's Republican Club of Winchester and of the Massachusetts Federation. Ann Blackham, and the present officers of the Town Committee, Rush Harwood, Jennifer Flowers, Ted Shasta Jr., Ruth Grainger and Clara Roberto.

Jamie Bush, nephew of candidate George Bush, spoke as did Representative Saltmarsh, Chairman Harwood and Mrs. Hunt.

Bush, 25, stressed the importance of electing Reagan on November 4.

"People my age, as well as all ages, have found it almost impossible to live these past four years with the inflation and general economy under Carter," he said. "Another four years of this administration would really be intolerable."

Chairman Harwood thanked those who made the headquarters available on Monday as well as those who had worked to prepare the place by Thursday. He urged everyone to make an effort to get out the local vote on Election day.

Saltmarsh complimented the Republican Town Committee and spoke on the various ballot questions. Saltmarsh is running unopposed this year. He is a member of the Town Committee and a former Chairman of the Committee.

The effort for the headquarters was done by members of the Republican Town Committee. Thomas Raleigh, Jr. was chairman of the "Search" committee, and Cynthia Barone did the publicity, advertisements, telephone arrangements and scheduling for the staffing of the headquarters.

Chairman Harwood managed the over-all details while Anna and Martha Harwood, Jennie Lou Brockelman, Ted Shasta, Mary Alice Moffat and Ruth Grainger spent Thursday afternoon decorating the area. Jennifer Flowers was Chairman of the fund raising affair in September.

Although the headquarters has already been staffed for the ten day period, any and all Republicans who can spare some time during this last week are urged to call Mrs. Harwood (729-1478) or Mrs. Barone (729-1544). There are other activities within the headquarters this final week of the campaign and on election day so additional volunteers will be welcomed.

Lynch School The Site Of Hoedown Last Thursday

Lynch Elementary School Parents' Association held its third annual Harvest Hoedown on Thursday evening, Oct. 23.

As in the past, a large crowd of parents and children turned out for an evening of "reeling" and square dancing to the lively music and calling of Mel Dixon.

This year's program chairman, Gemma Porter and Social Chairmen Carol Hallisey and Peg Keefe did the planning.

The highpoint of the evening for the children was the breaking of the Pumpkin Pinatas.

Reagan-Bush campaign headquarters were opened last week at 10 Mt. Vernon st. to the delight of a boisterous crowd of several dozen supporters. (Photo by Russ Kendall)

Device For Deaf Improves Ability To Communicate

The presentation to Winchester Hospital of two Porta-Tel telecommunication devices for the deaf (TDD's), a gift from the Winchester Women's Club Juniors, provides the hospital with a means of communicating with deaf and hearing impaired patients.

Porta-Tel units are video display terminals which enable patients suffering from hearing loss to contact the hospital quickly and to communicate their need by typing a message which appears on a viewing screen, at the hospital. Hospital personnel can respond to the incoming call through the identical system.

At Winchester Hospital, one Porta-Tel is permanently installed in the emergency room and can be reached through a special number (729-9015). The second Porta-Tel unit will be placed in an informed patient's room for private conversation with family members.

Mary Anetli, a communications consultant with the Deaf Community Center in Framingham, an organization which serves the education, social and communications needs of the deaf, says that there are as many as 39,000 deaf and hearing impaired individuals throughout Massachusetts and emphasizes that, regarding Porta-Tel, "We take the telephone so much for granted that we can't imagine not having its use."

Affecting 7.6 percent of the American population (16.2 million), hearing loss and its accompanying social implications is a medical factor often overlooked by a large number of health facilities.

Specific data compiled by the Health Resources Administration of the National Center for Health Statistics shows that:

One out of every 15 Americans suffers from some degree of hearing loss.

Hearing loss is most common among the elderly. Almost half of all those needing help are over 65. In fact, more than one out of every four persons 65 or older has a hearing disorder — a total of over six million people.

In almost one-third of hard of hearing children, the problem can be traced to something which happened before birth. Causes of this loss include German measles contracted during first weeks of pregnancy, influenza, shingles, other virus diseases and certain drugs.

Hearing loss has major socio-economic implications, costing the public $410,445,000 per year just for the education, management and compensation of those with hearing problems.

UNICEF Drive Slated For Halloween

"Hunger shouldn't be kid stuff" says Kermit the Frog, star of the Muppets and this year's National UNICEF Day Chairman. "Being hungry isn't easy for anyone, but it's certainly hardest on kids. That's why I'm asking you to join me in the fight against world hunger."

This year children all over Winchester will join in the fight against world hunger by again carrying UNICEF boxes on their rounds Halloween night, participating in a nationwide tradition that started 30 years ago in a Pennsylvania Sunday school class.

Parent representatives at each of the elementary schools will have boxes available and among the churches who distributed boxes this past Sunday are the Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist, and Unitarian.

UNICEF boxes are also available in the Children's Library and may be returned to Christa Bennett, this year's town chairman, at 18 Wedgemere or to Sandy Thompson, UNICEF Education Chairman at 48 Samoset rd.

"The slogan 'Help Fight World Hunger From Your Doorstep' calls attention to the desperate situation of almost half a billion people in the world today," reports Mrs. Thompson.

"UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund, needs everyone's help to remedy this tragic situation," she said. "UNICEF participates in programs to improve the lives of children in over 100 countries, coordinating the delivery of food supplies in emergencies and providing humanitarian assistance to children and mothers suffering the effects of natural or man-made disasters. Perhaps even more importantly, UNICEF's efforts help nations use their own resources to combat dietary deficiencies and to improve the health of their people, especially vulnerable children and mothers. World hunger is everybody's problem."

For information on UNICEF, or educational materials contact Sandy Thompson, 48 Samoset rd.

Ambrose Parents Slate Bake Sale For Election Day

Precinct 5 voters will enjoy a special convenience on Election Day.

The Ambrose Parents' Association will sponsor a bake sale on Nov. 4 with special attractions added to make precinct 5 voters more comfortable while waiting to cast their ballots.

Through the day coffee, juice and snacks will be available.

As an added attraction a person who purchases anything from the table all through the day will have his name submitted to a drawing for a gingerbread house made especially for the bake sale by Judith Caci, president of the Ambrose Parents' Association. The drawing will take place at the end of the day.

Working on this first fund-raiser of the school year are Ways and Means Chairpersons Celia Polli and Rita Mawn. Room Mother Chairperson Carole McGeehan is coordinating donations to the bake sale table.

Music Club Slates First Program For Sunday, Nov. 2

The Winchester Music Club will hold its first program of the current season Sunday, Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fieleke at 5 Canterbury rd.

Doris Thomas, a violin teacher, organized the club many years ago to give music students an opportunity to perform the music they have been studying at their private lessons.

The programs also serve as concerts for those students who prefer to hear their friends play rather than perform themselves.

All Winchester music students grades 7-12 and their teachers are invited to the music club programs.

Window Quilt stops the great heat escape!

New kind of thermal shade cuts window heat loss to 79%.

This multi-layered thermal shade eliminates up to 79% of winter heat loss through single-glazed windows, as much as 66% through double-paneled glass. They're four times more effective than storm windows.

Window Quilts fit tightly on all four sides, sealing warm air in and cold air out. They're easy to install, easy to live with, far more efficient than ordinary shades or insulated drapes.

*Fit almost any size window, even 8' wide sliders.

*More than twice as effective as storms, better than 4 glazings (R value: 4.25).

*In snow country, with double glazing one sq. ft. saves 1 gal. oil per year. Payback is 2-5 years.

*Helps keep summer heat out — saves on air conditioning.

*Now available in 4 decorator colors: bone white, cloud white, navy and camel.

Rain

Sachems Swamp Melrose

By RICHARD McSWEENEY

All season there had been that nagging feeling that Gary Errico was truly The Franchise.

Oh sure, Rich Fennell had demonstrated that he could pass and pass well in pressure circumstances. Jim Gibbons, Bill Ferry, Steve Costello and Dave Criscione were clearly fine players. But there was still that nagging doubt. How good was this team without Errico's yardage and without the attention from the defense he gets whenever he's on the field?

Well, Saturday the answer became very clear, for while Errico was sitting in Winchester Hospital awaiting x-rays on his sprained right ankle, the Sachems, behind the running of Costello, Gibbons and company and a superb defense held off Melrose, 8-0 in a sloshest at Knowlton Stadium Saturday.

"Gary looked at me at halftime in the locker room and he looked really upset. He grabbed my hand and said 'do it for me.' So we went out there and did it for Gary," said co-Captain Jay Gill afterwards.

And it didn't take long for the Sachems to score the only touchdown of the day.

Mark Micciche got things rolling when he recovered a fumble at the Melrose 34-yard line on the third play of the second half.

And on first down Costello (41 yards on 11 carries), who last week finally showed the form that had made him so promising in the pre-season, rambled for 22 yards to the 12. He added six more on the next play.

Fennell then slid his way for five big yards to the one-yard line and a first and goal. After a pair of quarterback sneaks failed, Costello got the call again.

And behind a bone crushing block by Jim Gibbons, Costello ran wide left and in for the one-yard score.

Going for the two points, the Sachems ran the same play, this time with Criscione laying down the key block and Costello scooted in again to put the Sachems up 8-0.

From then on it was a battle of field position and who could hang onto the ball, not the longest, but just hang on to it, period.

And Winchester won the battle, pinning the Red Raiders deep in their own end for almost the entire second half. Although the Sachems couldn't get a clinching touchdown despite having first and goal's from inside the five twice, Melrose simply never got untracked.

"Our kids showed a lot of character out there today," said a happy Coach Manny Marshall afterwards. "We played very consistently today and it was a bad day."

That the game was even played, of course, was a little ridiculous. The rains started coming shortly before game time and the scarce crowd was absolutely drenched by the end of the first quarter. The fans certainly didn't want to watch in that weather. Melrose Coach Bruce MacPherson didn't want to play. Winchester Athletic Director William Colella didn't want to play and Marshall would rather have played on a better day.

But the Winchester players were ready, having spent Friday night at the movies watching a horror flick, namely, last year's 28-6 upset at Melrose.

Girls' Soccer Team Two Games From League Championship

The Winchester girls soccer team travelled to Lexington Monday not for breakfast but for a league championship-deciding game.

When they returned home, they were just two games away from their third successive, undefeated league title. The Sachemettes had juiced the Minutemaid's 4-2 and raised their overall record to 12-0-2.

Now only Wakefield (Wednesday at home) and Burlington (Friday at home) remain. The Sachemettes have handled both of those teams by outscoring them 10-1, and 10-2, respectively during their first meetings. Chris Scanlon's Winchester girls are definitely ready for their third title.

"We're really looking forward to our last two games because they're home and against teams we feel we can beat. With the pressure of beating Lexington, off our shoulders, the last two games mean the league championship. The team is ready, eager, and confident," replied Scanlon.

But Monday's game also meant momentum for both teams who have each qualified for the Eastern Mass. Girls' Soccer Tournament, starting Nov. 10.

"Lexington is as good as any team competing in the E. Mass. Their speed and skills are tremendous," proclaimed Scanlon. "This win just re-enforces that positive feedback necessary for the girls to believe that they can beat a tough team when the pressure is on. It also gives us that spring board of momentum before going into the tournament," replied Scanlon.

But Monday's game, after one period of scoreless play, showed neither side grabbing for the momentum. "It was a very even quarter," said Scanlon. "Neither team was controlling the game."

But in the second period, the Sachemettes took it. Winchester dribbled into the lead, 1-0, when Kim Donlon moved into the penalty area and dribbled a shot from an Ann Porell flip pass, that

Soccer Team Kicks Wakefield

By JULIE DERRY

The pressure was on. Not only for their league standings, but for their pride. This was one time when tradition had to be broken.

And the Sachems were ready; they were confident and psyched to play great soccer.

Last Friday, Bouley's soccer Sachems took their biggest victory all season: they defeated Wakefield 3-0. The game was not only crucial to the Sachems because of their league standings (in order to have a shot at first place they had to beat Wakefield) but more importantly because they hadn't beat the warriors for the past seven years.

There had been close games, even ties. But never a win. It took the 1980 squad to make Bouley's dream come true.

And, for once, Bouley had nothing but praise for his team on the bus home. "Super ballgame everybody...hustle all day, all way!" said Bouley with obvious pride.

And the game was undoubtedly the best they had played all season.

Although Wakefield played a very strong game, the field was dominated offensively by Winchester.

Minutes after the game started, Suvak scored the first goal of the game. Following a throw-in by Winchester, James Ellis received the ball and booted it to Suvak waiting by the net. Suvak headed the ball, trapped it, and then shot. The first of three was sunk.

Towards the end of the first quarter Wakefield put pressure on the Sachem defense. Their first shot on the net went wide by inches and Ellis managed to boot it out.

The Warriors were not to be discouraged, however. They brought the ball up again. Ellis saved the ball by heading it out. A corner kick was awarded Wakefield.

Things were tense in front of the Winchester goal. The shot went high.

The goal kick was taken by Chris Wagstrom, but Wakefield charged again. Neil Frink saved the ball by booting it down field.

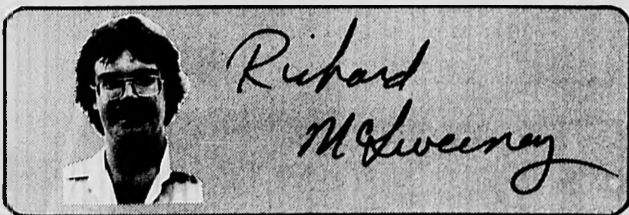

Early in the second quarter Suvak made a beautiful play. He received the ball from Lowenstein at midfield.

As the ball approached Suvak, he

Oh Giffer!

Heroes just aren't what they used to be.

They probably never will be of course. You can't fool the kids anymore these days. It's an era of anti-heroes. Don't tell me about the real nice guy that loves to play the game for nothing or just for the opportunity to represent his country against those hated communists.

The media doesn't help either. Steve Garvey is a great baseball player? Sure, but is his wife happy with their sex life? Uh, uh. I mean, let's get to the important stuff.

Every week on Sunday afternoons we are beselged with advertisements of prominent athletes urging kids to "get high" on sports, not drugs.

That has recently been followed by newspaper accounts that 75 percent of the NBA players are using cocaine.

No wonder kids these days look up to the Sid Vicious' of this world.

But then there's always the guys from the old days when heroes were heroes and men were men and life was just a whole lot of fun.

You know, guys like Bear Bryant at Alabama, Bob Cousy of the Celtics, winning-is-the-only-thing Vince Lombardi. All real men, legitimate heroes.

As much as I always hated the New York Giants, they just had a slew of real heroic

Winchester Sinks Marblehead

By MARY CRESSE

The meet that was supposed to decide the outcome of the season is over. Done with. Put away at the top of the closet, behind the suits and the caps and the picture of Mom, next to the clippings and the varsity letters, a memory to be stored away with the satisfaction of victory.

The impressive showdown between two of the finest teams in Eastern Massachusetts, Winchester and Marblehead, came down to a touch and go contest in which WHS stunned the North Shore champions and came out on top.

Again, as throughout the season, Winchester was not the favorite. For the past two seasons, Marblehead, along with a few other select teams, had so dominated high school swimming that WHS couldn't touch them. This season, every team in the league was aware of the Sachem swimming strength and tried to cope with it. So far, only one has managed (Lexington).

Last Saturday, Marblehead quickly took the lead by taking the medley relay. But freshman Sheryl Powers stole the lead back by sliding in nearly two seconds ahead of the nearest Marblehead swimmer, who was battling it out for second with Winchester tri-captain P.K. Porter. Porter, in her first time swimming the event, was touched out.

As is now almost expected of her, Ann McCann flew into first place in the 200 individual medley. McCann fell back in the fly, caught up in the backstroke, and, as usual, pulled ahead in the breaststroke and broke away to sprint home in freestyle to a personal best time (PBT) of 2:24.

"I was a little nauseous before the race," said McCann. "I saw her on the backstroke and I swear I felt like stopping."

If every other event had been as close as that one, Winchester might not have won the meet. Liz Porras, coming in third in the IM stretched out her freestyle and pulled in to her PBT of 2:32.8.

Though Marblehead won the 50 free, Carol Schneller and Lynn Van Ummersen still came in second and third to keep Winchester ahead.

The diving competition was indicative of Marblehead's inability to produce some decent divers. Carla Gulino and Michele Bowen sprung to a 1-2 finish and set the team ahead by a clear margin.

Gulino's best dive was her back pike and Bowen's best dive was a front dive with a half twist.

At this point, the North Shore powerhouse was about to lose its grip on their reputable standing, something they did not want to do, particularly to a team that would embarrass them.

Van Ummersen again broke a minute for the 100 free, this time flying in to a solid first place and a time of 59.61. Porter, having been touched-out by Marblehead in the IM, decided to pull away this time and followed Van Ummersen in to capture second place.

The 500 free, Power's specialty, provided no competition and she and Schneller took a two lap lead by the middle of the race. Even though Schneller had second place all the way, she still kicked in to a PBT of 5:55, chopping nearly five seconds off her time. This was surprising, because Carol was concentrating on another race. "The only thing I wanted to do was break a .27 for the 50." She lived up to her wish, and broke another record in the process.

In one of their few victories of the meet, Marblehead took a close win in the 100 backstroke, adding needed points to their score but doing nothing in the long run because Winchester was too far ahead to allow Marblehead the win.

McCann wrapped up the meet with a win in the 100 breast.

The freestyle relay was won by Marblehead but it really made no difference to Palumbo's squad, which was already in a massive team hug. After the victor hug, the team chased the assistant coach around to throw him into the pool to christen the victory.

This amazing string of wins for Winchester not only surprised the rest of the league, but the Coach as well. Though there was never any doubt in Palumbo's mind that this year's squad would have an unusually successful season, he didn't expect them to do as well as they are doing.

"I thought we would go maybe 10-3, but now I think we'll end up 12-1," he said.

Selectmen's Notes

Uninhabited House

Selectmen hope to be what Chairman Wade Welch called "an effective intermediary" in persuading the owner of an uninhabited house at the corner of Johnson street and Socrates way to correct areas of concerns to residents in the neighborhood.

The house, owned by Planning Board member Joe Geary, was the object of a discussion Monday when residents of Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and St. Augustine streets appeared before Selectmen to call attention to the possible fire hazard.

Dick Ashley, a resident of the area said, "We're not only concerned as a neighborhood, we're concerned for the town."

He said the structure represented a fire hazard as well as a loss of revenue to the town. He said nine tax abatement forms would be filed by residents in the area immediately surrounding the house. Other residents complained of problems of vandalism and of youths entering the house.

One resident said five homes in the neighborhood had been for sale for a year, and only one of them had been sold, attributing this lack of sales to the presence of the house.

Calling the problem a "vexing one," Selectman Edward F. O'Connell said suggested inviting Geary to appear before the board to explore the possibility of eliminating problems in the area. Selectmen are expected to meet with Geary next Tuesday night at 8 p.m. during their regular board meeting.

Parkhurst School
Selectmen are expected to consider the fate of the Parkhurst School next Thursday night during the second scheduled Fall Town Meeting. Currently there are proposals under consideration to turn the building into single family house or to have the Barlett School move to the Parkhurst location.

Town Meeting

Selectmen will begin the first of this Fall's Town Meetings this Monday night at 7:30 at Winchester High School. Town Meeting will consider a 36-article warrant this Fall.

Girl Runners Unbeaten

By Peter DeGrecio

As the echoes of excited cheering died away, and the last lockers were being shut, Cross Country coach Joe Cantillon quietly reflected upon the Middlesex League champion girl's team.

"We've had a little luck at the right time," he offered in modest explanation of the girls' 9-0 season.

It wasn't just luck which saw this team improve on last year's 8-1 record. A solid nucleus, dependable runners and few injuries were also mentioned as reasons for success. After nine years of coaching Cross Country (four years for the girls' team), Cantillon said he was "very happy" to have his first league champion.

On Friday, in Woburn, the Cross Country team clinched that league title which had eluded them for the last three years. Each of those years the team finished in second place, but this year the girls put their talents together and were undefeated. The Sachemette runners won the meet, 15-50.

Running in first place, as she has run all season long, was freshman Laurie Glynn. Her time of 16:06 tied the Woburn course record which was previously held by another top Winchester runner, Jan Oehm.

Mary Boland ran a very strong race to finish in second place. She was followed closely by Lauren Fryklund. These two senior captains ran their last league races with as much emotion and determination as is possible. Their times were under 18 minutes.

Eileen Conley crossed the finish line in fourth place at 18:05. Eileen is a winter and spring track star, doing very well in her first year of Cross Country.

Sophomore Jean Senna finished next. She ran the hilly Woburn course in 19:19. Sandy Jordan kicked in the final quarter mile for sixth place. Sandy Erlam was right behind Jordan, at 19:31.

These top seven runners finished the race before Woburn's first runner ended the humiliation. After the Woburn runner, Alesia Tringale ran to ninth place with a 20:04 time. Tringale was pushed by Woburn's second runner who took tenth place.

Cross Country Team Drops Meet

Unfortunately, the boys' Cross Country team was not as successful as the girls' team was this year.

Against their arch rivals, the Woburn Tanners, the Harriers dropped a tough (22-34) meet. With this defeat, the Sachems finished the regular season with a 3-6 record.

The meet was closer than the final score indicated. Coach Cantillon said, "Woburn had to be at their best today. Their top five runners all ran their best times of the season." Proof of this was first place finisher Mike Flynn, of Woburn, who broke the course record. His time of 13:28 for the 2.7 mile course, bettered the previous record by 11 seconds.

Winchester's Pat Kennedy finished in second place, fighting off a late challenge by Woburn's number two runner.

Sophomore sensation, Hugh Murray, was out-kicked at the finish and had to settle for fifth place with a time of 14:41.

Junior Joe "Dude" Callahan also lost a tough sprint at the end. The Dude placed seventh, in at 15:01.

bounced into the left corner. "It wasn't the most beautiful goal of the season for the super soph," replied Scanlon. "But it came at a great time and Kim has a knack for scoring anyway, anyhow!" Then it was captain Porell's turn to make it 2-0 scoring off a double assisted swing pass from Maria Montuori to Andrea deMars, who pushed the ball back across the goal for Porell to blast in. "It was the finest scoring play of the game," replied Scanlon. "From three of the finest players in the league," The Sachemettes were really on the roll.

Winchester's defense really began to respond by keeping any of Lexington's attempts well away from the Sachemette goal. "Prudy Horne, Karen Felmann especially, Paula Papastathis, Cathy Mahoney, Ann Hitchcock, and Betsy Keyes all played outstanding games," stated Scanlon.

The third period began with more Winchester pressure and finally the leading scorer in the league, Ann Porell, responded again to rocket the Sachemettes ahead to an insurmountable lead of 3-0. Lexington, finally tallied a Freshman Barry Sirchis ran another strong race. He was fourth for the team, ninth overall in the race, and had a time of 15:25.

Mark Schwartzman and Peter Quine had times of 15:41 and 15:50 respectively, to finish eleventh and twelfth.

score late in the third quarter on the best Minutemaid's best opportunity for the game. "Lexington's the type of team that will take advantage of your mistake. Katie McCarthy, our goalie, and our defense, luckily don't make many mistakes," replied Scanlon.

Each team scored again in the fourth period with Kim Donlon scoring her second goal of the game, to make it 4-1. "It was a score that iced the cake," replied Scanlon, "and it came when our star fullback, captain Prudy Horne, was out of the game with a turned ankle. The score made us breathe a lot easier." The Minutemaid's scored their second goal but the end was near and the conclusion of the game was well in hand for Winchester.

"I'd just like to mention that this team really runs well because of our two outstanding halfbacks, captain Carol Donahoe and Marie Montuori," stated Scanlon. "To see them is to believe them, they're awesome!" And so is the whole team! Get ready state tournament. This is Winchester's third try and the third time is the charm.

characters, guys like Sam Huff, Y.A. Tittle and Frank Gifford.

In an age where Joe Namath sells panty hose and O.J. Simpson dodges luggage, it's refreshing to see some guys stay the same.

And the Giff was one of those guys. Class all the way. In the Monday Night Madness with Howard and Danderoo and Fran and Alex and the guys, it is the Giff who stands out as a beacon of normalcy and professionalism. He's low key, he's business, he's exactly the way you would picture the Giff if you ever watched him play football.

That's why I was stunned and saddened to see the Giff appear on ABC's "All My Children" last week. A soap opera.

Say it ain't so Giff. Giff on a soap opera? Howard, sure I can see that. Danderoo? No problem. But the Giff? No way.

Sure it was a one shot deal, at least that's what a spokesman at ABC said. He may reappear in the future if they ask him to and he agrees to.

But no matter. He appeared once. The damage is done. Sure, he didn't have the usual soap role where he might have been, oh, the illegitimate son who falls in love with his mother unknowingly. Sure, he didn't portray a now respectable businessman who in his rise to respectability was a leader in a child prostitution ring. But egad, he still appeared on the show.

What's next Giff? Are you going to advocate the legalization of marijuana? Are you going to tell us you played hookey once in awhile in high school? That you bought booze for younger kids?

And now that Giff has given in will it start a deluge of the last of the heroes into the abyss of "Life With The Beautiful People?"

The Pontiff in the World's Strongest Man competition? Rick Burleson signing on with a ballet troupe? Tom Landry no longer with Dallas but on "Dallas"?

Say it ain't so, Giff and now excuse me while I get back to "As The World Turns."

★ Sachems

So when Colella told Marshall it was up to him if he wanted to play, he simply turned the decision over to the players. "I don't want anyone blaming Mr. Marshall," Gill said afterwards. "He came to me and Gary and asked us, 'what do you think?' We turned around to the team and we said we wanted to play. We were too psyched. Another day of sitting around would have hurt us. We were ready," Gill said.

And, indeed they were. The Sachems played their best first half since the Lexington game. Fennell and the offense handled the ball particularly well in light of the climate and field conditions.

Whereas Melrose lost the ball four times (three fumbles and an interception by Greg Kirk) and fumbled it five more times, the Sachems had only two fumbles all afternoon.

Melrose threatened first, driving to the Winchester 29-yard line before Quarterback Randy Rocha fumbled and Micicche grabbed it at the Sachem 36. It also was the last play of the day for Rocha, who has been plagued with injuries this season.

After a few exchanges, the Sachems got their first and only real drive of the day started. The drive also cost them the services of Errico.

Fennell got things going, completing the only pass of the day by either team, an 11-yarder to Doug Goodlatte in traffic to the Winchester 33.

The Sachems got a break on a fourth and two from their 39 when they managed to draw Melrose offside to get the first down.

Costello then scooted for 18 yards on two carries and Errico, back after being helped off the field took off wide right and scampered 22 yards to the Melrose 13.

But that was the last play of the day for the talented halfback, who had to head up to the hospital for x-rays. The x-rays just showed a mild sprain but it was unknown early this week whether Errico (33 yards in six carries) would be ready for Watertown Saturday.

The drive sputtered out from there as Fennell had to take an eight yard loss because of a fumble. Melrose Captain Bill Mara then came up with the key defensive play of the series, batting away a Fennell to Gibbons aerial on third down. A reverse on fourth down lost three more yards and the Red Raiders look over.

After the Sachems went up 8-0, they had two opportunities to put it away, but couldn't push across the score. The first break came when Melrose punter Doug Prentice couldn't handle the snap and had to just fall on the ball at his own 22. From there Winchester took it down to the two-yard line in seven plays before the visitors stopped Costello at the four on a fourth and three situation.

But after a one-yard gain, Quarterback Joe Driscoll again couldn't handle the snap and Gill pounced on it at the three and the Sachems were knocking at the door again.

And again they left empty handed. Actually they scored a touchdown, a three yard run by Gibbons, but that was called back for an illegal assistance of the ballcarrier.

Costello ran it back inside the one on the next play, but Fennell had trouble with the snap and suffered a one-yard loss on fourth down as the Red Raiders survived again. Melrose gave it one last try, driving from their own three down to the Winchester 45, where they lost the ball on downs with 2:26 remaining, and the Sachems iced it from there.

Afterwards, Marshall defended his decision to skip the field goal on the two appearances inside the five yard line by explaining the rain made chances of a successful field goal pretty remote.

And, in a game where the weather and field conditions are so terrible, field position is almost as good as scoring and the Sachems had the visitors slogging around inside their own 10 for much of the late third and fourth quarters.

As happy as Marshall was for the team to do well without Errico, he, as he has all along, repeated that the offense is not a one-man show.

"They won it," he said of the whole team. "They did a hell of a job out there and that's what is gratifying."

As if the memories of last year's loss to Melrose wasn't enough to get the team ready for this one, Gill said he was angered over remarks by MacPherson in last week's Star saying Winchester was "possibly the best team in New England."

"What he said really got everyone really ticked off," Gill said. "We're not the best team in New England. We're not the best team in the Middlesex League. There are a lot of good teams in this league. We still have a long way to go."...Aside from Errico (admittedly an awful big aside), the Sachems came out of the slossfest in good shape. The game also marked the return of Ken Vancini to action after four weeks out with a tender ankle. Watertown is coming off a 20-14 win over Wakefield, a game that was not nearly as close as the score indicated. Marshall said Asst. Coach John Pirani scouted the game and reported that Watertown moved up and down the field but simply couldn't break it open.

★ Kicks

slipped as he turned around to face the goal. At the same time, Suvak swung his leg into the air and booted the ball from midfield almost into the net.

Two minutes later, Lowenstein brought the ball up the field again and made a great pass to Paul. Paul dribbled the ball towards the left corner of the goal. He shot into the opposite corner, scoring the second goal of the game.

Minutes later, Wakefield was attacking the Winchester goal. Brian Donellan made a beautiful save by booting the ball out on a corner kick by Wakefield.

On their next charge down the field, a Wakefield forward came in close to the net but James Ellis booted the ball out.

Winchester responded with another shot on goal, but it went wide. Following that, Scott Bowen received the ball on a throw-in and shot on net. Too wide again.

Donellan obtained the ball by the Winchester goal and booted it downfield to Suvak, who headed the ball and then passed to Lowenstein. Lowenstein dribbled up the field alone and shot, but the Wakefield goalie saved it.

The last few seconds of the quarter, Wakefield charged the Winchester goal and came through the Sachem defense. The forward shot but Sterenka dived for the ball and managed to tip it into the air over the net.

The third goal came immediately after the beginning of the third quarter. Ellis shot, but the ball went wide. Williamson retrieved the ball and passed it to Suvak, waiting in front of the net.

Suvak shot into the far corner, clinching the game for Winchester.

Bouley was ecstatic upon seeing the third goal. Knowing Wakefield had come back to score two goals in the fourth quarter last game, Bouley felt more relaxed with a third goal under his belt.

Winchester played an aggressive third quarter with many shots on goal. Tom Fiorillo took several strong shots on goal after Suvak scored, but the ball was saved by the goalie both times.

Scott Bowen received the ball on a pass from Fiorillo. Scott shot but the ball was too high.

Williamson gained the ball shortly after and took a shot on goal. Williamson's shot was saved by the goalie, but Donellan followed with another shot on net after that.

During the 4th quarter Winchester dominated offensively. The ball was by the Wakefield goal the entire quarter.

Williamson was injured in front of the Wakefield goal early in the quarter. Winchester was awarded a direct shot on goal.

Suvak took the shot. He booted the ball low into the far corner but the goalie made a fantastic save and prevented the ball from scoring.

Later, Williamson charged the Wakefield goal and shot again. Donellan followed with a shot from midfield.

Sargent obtained the ball on a pass from Ellis and started dribbling downfield. He crossed in front the net, and shot, but the goalie just barely saved it.

Sargent regained the ball minutes later and dribbled down the field alone and passed to Donellan.

Donellan made a beautiful header, throwing his body behind the ball so that he was stretched out almost parallel to the ground.

At the end of the game, Bouley was in the midst of the Sachems cheering and rejoicing.

"Seven years is a long time," he said later with a big grin.

Pee Wee Hockey Team Captains Named

The Winchester PeeWee AA Team playing in the Middlesex Youth Hockey League, selected three "stickouts" to be their 1980-1981 season Captain and Alternate Captains.

Brian "Bang" Griffin, a high flying "down the slot" center, got the call as Captain while Chris "Go" Giso, an "all the way to the floor" winger, and "Dangerous Derek" Binding, a real "bombs-away" defenseman, got the nod as Alternate Captains.

The PeeWee AA's made wise choices and will benefit over the season as league play starts October 1st.

Election '80: The Statewide Ballot Questions

Voters' Guide

QUESTION 1

Background:

Two states, Illinois and Florida, now constitutionally guarantee certain rights for the handicapped.

In Massachusetts a variety of federal and state laws now protect some civil rights for the handicapped. The broadest of these protections, contained in the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973, prohibits discrimination in any program or activity that receives financial assistance from the federal government. The language of the proposed Massachusetts constitutional amendment is taken directly from this federal statute.

The federal law prohibits discrimination by applying the basic principle of equal opportunity. An organization must provide its programs or services to handicapped people as effectively as to others. It may be necessary to treat handicapped people specially to ensure equal opportunity.

Massachusetts state laws also prohibit discrimination against the handicapped in education, employment, access to buildings, and public accommodations. These laws vary in breadth of coverage and in effectiveness with which they have prohibited unequal treatment.

The laws that apply to employment and access to buildings, on the other hand, have been less effective. The employment discrimination law, which requires criminal prosecution and provides minimal fines, has been infrequently used. The law requiring access to buildings does not apply to public buildings built before 1968, or private buildings built before 1975, and variances are often allowed.

Other areas where discrimination occurs, such as housing, are not covered by existing federal and state laws. This proposed constitutional amendment would assert the general principle of equality of opportunity for the handicapped in all programs and activities. The proposal would have broader application, and, as an amendment to the Constitution, require a more lengthy process to change, than existing statutes.

Pro:

Proponents of the Amendment say it is important to extend to handicapped people the same rights and opportunities enjoyed by other members of society. And, they say, this basic principle of equal opportunity should be established, alongside the equal protection afforded other groups, in the Constitution. They point out that the Legislature this year approved the proposal unanimously.

Proponents contend that, by itself, the Amendment will not require any new programs or activities. The Amendment will be implemented through the enactment of laws and promulgation of regulations. These, proponents say, will be developed through the usual legislative process marked by negotiation, compromise, and pragmatism. They cite the experience of implementing the federal law in which exemptions for small employers, compliance schedules that allow three years for building modifications, and the practice of treating each case individually demonstrate that the intent of the law can be fulfilled without unduly burdening covered organizations.

Proponents also say that the Amendment will not require affirmative action to meet its goals. They refer to the U. S. Supreme Court case in which the Court stated that substantial changes to programs to accommodate the handicapped person were not required — only accommodations that did not impose undue financial and administrative burdens.

Finally, proponents say equal opportunities for the handicapped protected by the Constitution will increase their social and economic independence, and promote an economically healthier and culturally more diverse society.

Con:

There is no organized opposition. However, opponents point out that the language of the proposed Amendment is both broad and vague. They contend that there really is no way to determine what the impact of the proposal will be. Depending on how the Amendment is interpreted, its impact could be extensive, requiring, for example, very costly physical modifications to buildings and significant alterations in business practices. Or the impact might be very limited. They say that voters should not be asked to approve a proposal without first knowing what effect that action will have.

Opponents say that the legitimate aspirations of handicapped people to secure their civil rights can best be met through statutory enactments such as the laws that have already been passed in Massachusetts to protect specific rights. The Legislature, in enacting such laws, can accurately reflect the will of the people, balancing the principle of equal opportunity with the concerns of organizations subject to the law. And such laws, opponents point out, are relatively easy to amend, as the Constitution is not, so their impact can be adjusted if experience shows that to be desirable.

There's More

For ballot question editorials, letters to the editor and a check-off form, turn to the editorial page.

This proposed constitutional amendment would prohibit discrimination against handicapped people. It reads: "No otherwise qualified handicapped individual shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from the participation in, denied the benefits of, or be subject to discrimination under any program or activity within the commonwealth."

QUESTION 2

Questions 2 and 3 are proposals for laws to limit state and local taxes.

To become law, a question must be approved by 30 percent of those voting in the election and by a majority of those voting on the question. Either or both of the questions may receive the necessary votes and go into effect 30 days after the election (December 4).

Like any other law, these proposals, if approved, may be amended or repealed by the Legislature when it convenes in January 1981.

Background:

Citizens for Limited Taxation sponsored this question. They first introduced the concept embodied in the proposal at the end of the 1978 legislative session. The proposal died in committee that year, and again failed to be enacted when reintroduced in a modified form at the 1979 session. The sponsor then introduced the proposal this year as an initiative petition.

The proposed statute limits the total property taxes imposed by a city or town to no more than 2½ percent of the fair cash value of the taxable property in the community. The overall limit will affect three groups of communities differently. For communities where the full-value tax rate is now above 2½ percent (184 municipalities belong to this group, according to latest available figures from the Department of Revenue), the proposal requires that the levy be reduced 15 percent each year until the 2½ percent limit is reached.

In communities that had full-value tax rates of less than 2½ percent in fiscal 1979 (88 municipalities), each city or town's limit will be its fiscal 1979 full-value rate. If the full-value tax rate has increased since 1979, the proposal requires the same 15 percent annual reduction until the limit is reached.

The limit on the remaining 79 municipalities with full-value tax rates now below 2½ percent will be 2½ percent.

The proposal also limits annual increases in the property tax levy to 2½ percent.

No expenditure items are exempt from the limits, but voters in any municipality may increase the limit by a two-thirds vote in a general election, or decrease the limit by a simple majority vote.

The other tax-related items in the proposal are a reduction in the motor vehicle excise tax rate from $66 per $1,000 of valuation to $25 per $1,000 of valuation and a state income tax deduction for renters of 50 percent of their rent payments.

In addition, the proposal limits to 4 percent the annual increase in the assessments that counties, regional authorities and other governmental units make on cities and towns. It also places a limit on the fees that governments can charge for services — these charges cannot exceed the actual cost of providing the service.

The proposal also requires that any new state mandate must be fully paid for by the state, or be specifically accepted by a municipality. The only exception to this rule would be court-ordered costs. The proposal creates a new division in the State Auditor's Office to monitor the costs of mandates.

In addition, the proposed statute repeals the fiscal autonomy of regional and local schools. Under the proposal, no city or town would be required to spend more for public schools than the amount approved by the local legislative body.

The proposal would also repeal the binding arbitration law for municipal and district police and fire employees.

Pro:

Proponents say this proposal is the only means voters have to insure meaningful reductions in property taxes. Only by imposing a strict limit on the amount that can be raised by the property tax, and by giving voters the power to control that limit, they say, can the property tax burden be reduced and real reform of government spending be initiated.

Proponents argue that property taxes in Massachusetts are an unfair burden on taxpayers, especially on fixed-income households. Because the property tax is the only tax cities and towns in Massachusetts can use to raise revenues, it now pays for many services it was not originally intended to support. And because public officials have been unwilling to limit growth in government spending, advocates claim, the property tax continues to consume an unaffordable portion of personal income. Proponents cite statistics from the Census Bureau to show that property tax collections per person in Massachusetts are more than 70 percent above the national average.

Proponents also say the proposal guarantees significant reductions in the property tax and that most of those reductions will go to residential homeowners. Relying on figures from the Department of Revenue, they say that residential property owners pay about 70 percent of property taxes in the state, and that the proposal's tax cuts will be distributed in the same proportion. Proponents point out that renters are also guaranteed a reduction in the income tax they pay, and all car owners will receive a 62 percent cut in their motor vehicle excise taxes.

Advocates claim that cities and towns will be able to continue providing essential services at the property tax levels the proposal allows. They point out that many municipalities now providing services already have tax rates below 2½ percent. And, they say, the plan responds to the individual circumstances of municipalities: the property tax limits are phased-in gradually, and may be overridden by a local referendum.

Proponents say experience shows voters cannot depend on the Legislature or local public officials to enforce reduced spending. The Legislature's rejection this year of several tax limitation proposals, and its failure to enact an alternative, demonstrate that again. The proposal also encourages home rule by repealing school fiscal autonomy and binding arbitration. These changes will result in lower municipal budgets, proponents say, by bringing decision-making powers closer to the voters.

And by forcing public officials to work within fixed revenue limits, the proposal will insure that they manage their resources efficiently, clearly establish spending priorities, and eliminate unnecessary expenses.

Con:

Opponents of this question say the drastic reductions in revenues the proposal requires will mean equally drastic cuts in basic municipal services while a significant portion of any tax reductions will go to business property owners and landlords. The proposal would mean increases both in state taxes and in state control of local government, and opponents cite technical flaws that leave questions about the proposal's impact unanswered.

Citing figures from the state's Executive Office of Communities and Development, opponents claim the overall first-year loss in municipal revenues under the proposal will be nearly $500 million. Of the state's 351 cities and towns, 195 (with over 86 percent of the state's population) would need to reduce their property tax levies. The largest reductions (up to $65 million in Boston) would come in the state's older urban areas, where property wealth per person is lowest, and reliance on public services greatest.

At the same time, opponents say, the proposal penalizes those 88 towns on the opposite end of the scale with low tax rates, by imposing a tax limit below 2½ percent. And all communities would lose revenues from the reduction in the motor vehicle excise tax.

While the proposal guarantees losses in revenue, public services and public jobs, opponents claim it cannot guarantee that public officials will cut out waste in government.

Even communities not required to reduce property tax levies are limited to 2½ percent annual growth in the tax levy. That limit, say opponents, is unrealistic in such an inflationary period. At the same time, the proposal allows assessments by counties and regional authorities to grow by 4 percent annually. The result will be a further squeeze on communities' ability to provide basic services.

With such reductions in municipal revenues, opponents say, communities will be forced to rely on increased state aid. They point out that the state has no surplus funds available now for this purpose, and the proposal would further reduce state income tax revenue. Estimates of income tax losses range from $30 million to $100 million. Massive state tax increases would be needed to replace this lost revenue. The proposal places no limit on state taxes.

Opponents claim the proposed statute will weaken local control over spending, not strengthen home rule. The proposal forces state mandated budgets on all cities and towns, regardless of their need or their ability to raise revenues. And to monitor the proposed statute, the state will need to become more deeply involved than ever in local financial decisions.

Opponents also object to the repeal of binding arbitration and school fiscal autonomy. They claim, in the first case, that the impasse-resolution procedure has prevented strikes by police and firefighters that would have threatened public safety, and in the second, that fiscal autonomy is necessary to insulate the education budget from political interference.

QUESTION 3

Background:

The Massachusetts Teachers Association sponsored this proposal. They developed it last year as an alternative to the current 4 percent cap on local spending (which expires on June 30, 1981) and Question 2.

The proposal places separate limits on the growth of state revenues and local property tax levies and establishes policies that would increase the state share of local educational costs, increase local aid, and decrease the portion of all state and local taxes collected through the property tax to 40 percent. The measure would be in effect for fiscal 1982 through fiscal 1984.

During this three-year period, growth in both state revenues and property tax levies would be limited to the percentage increase in Massachusetts' statewide personal income during the previous year. The limit for each year would be decreased by any amount that the previous year's revenues exceeded the limit.

A number of expenses are excluded from both limits, including: debt and pension costs, unemployment compensation, costs of court judgments, and federal and state matching grant requirements. In addition, state and county assessments, special education costs for children in private day or residential programs, overlay deficits, revenue shortfalls, and decreases in local aid are exempt from the limit on the local property tax.

In addition, the Legislature may exceed the limit on state taxes to increase local aid, to pay for any locally funded programs assumed by the state, or for any other reason if approved by a two-thirds vote. Similarly, the appropriate local budget-making body can exceed the local limit by a two-thirds vote.

The proposal also establishes a policy of increasing the state's share of local educational operating costs from the current 31 percent to 40 percent in fiscal 1982, 45 percent in fiscal 1983 and 50 percent in fiscal 1984 and afterwards.

Pro:

Proponents say this proposal is a reasonable alternative for voters who want tax relief and quality public services. They say that by linking taxes to the rate of growth in personal income, state and local governments will be prohibited from raising taxes to an unaffordable degree, and the portion of personal income consumed by taxes will be contained.

At the same time, proponents say, the proposal's tax limits are flexible enough

Con:

Opponents say it is misleading to call this a tax limitation proposal. The provisions to limit taxes are too permissive to prevent significant tax increases. And such increases will be required if the policies established in the proposal are followed.

The proposal's property tax limit applies only to communities with full-value tax rates over $35. Opponents point out that only one in ten of the Commonwealth's cities and towns would be subject to the limit. All other communities could raise property taxes freely.

Opponents also point out that the proposal includes no limits on the budgets of counties or regional transit districts. The portion of these budgets that communities must pay is exempt from the property tax limit. Therefore, opponents say, even where the limit applies, property taxes will be free to grow without control.

National Education Association to point out that Massachusetts ranks 40th among the 50 states in state aid to local education and a 1977 federal study that showed Massachusetts first among the states in the disparity among communities in per pupil expenditures. With additional revenue available to distribute through state aid equalizing formulas, the gap in educational resources between poorer and wealthier communities will be narrowed.

The same limit, equal to the growth in personal income, would apply to state taxes. But, opponents point out, state taxes last year rose by 7.6 percent, considerably less than the 11.5 percent rate at which personal income grew.

In addition, the proposal allows unlimited growth in state taxes to increase local aid. Opponents assert that, if policy established in the proposal to increase the state's share of education costs to 50 percent is followed, major state tax increases will be necessary.

This question is a proposal for a law that would limit growth in local property taxes and state taxes to the annual percentage increase in the personal income of Massachusetts residents. The law would also provide for increases in state aid to cities and towns and require that the state's share of education costs gradually increase to 50 percent by 1984.

QUESTION 4

This question is a binding referendum which asks voters to approve or repeal a law enacted in November 1979 (Chapter 677, Acts of 1979) that raised the salaries of members of the Legislature and Constitutional officers. The law also gave the Secretaries of Administration and Finance and Human Services greater flexibility in setting the salaries of some senior officials they supervise.

Background:

During the 1979 session of the Legislature, Governor Edward King filed a bill to permit the Secretaries of Administration and Finance and Human Services to set the salaries of some top management positions in their agencies. The House passed the bill, but the Senate did not act on it until the end of the legislative session. During the evening of October 31, the Senate amended the bill to include a schedule of pay raises for legislators and constitutional officers. The session continued through the night and the Legislature enacted the amended bill shortly before 5 a.m., November 1. The Governor signed the bill and later added an emergency preamble; the pay raises for the constitutional officers began immediately; those for legislators started January 1, 1980.

Minority Leader William Robinson and nine other Republican representatives initiated this referendum petition.

Several bills were filed during the 1980 legislative session to repeal or modify the pay raises and the Governor activated an advisory board to make recommendations on legislative pay policy. The House later passed a bill to restore legislators' salaries to the levels in effect prior to the pay raise and implement the salary recommendations of the Governor's advisory board. However, the Senate did not act on the bill, and the pay raises enacted in November now stand as law.

Pro:

Proponents of this law say that the pay raise it provides rank-and-file legislators ($1,853, or 10 percent, in 1980) is a reasonable increase. They point out that the Governor's advisory board recommended base-level salaries slightly higher than those in the law for the 1981 and 1982 legislative sessions.

Proponents also claim that legislators' base salaries are not out of line with those in other large, industrial states — of the nine states with populations larger than Massachusetts, six provide higher base salaries for their legislators. And since more legislators are depending exclusively on their legislative salaries, an adequate full-time salary is necessary.

Proponents also point out that the upper limit that cabinet secretaries, agency heads, and other top management personnel can be paid is closely related to compensation levels for constitutional officers and the legislative leadership. These management positions must be compensated adequately to attract qualified people to government service.

Con:

Opponents object both to the size of the pay raises and to the way the Legislature enacted the law. Because the amendments to include pay raises for the Legislature were first introduced in an evening session and the law was enacted the next morning, the public had no opportunity to participate in the debate on the issue. In addition to the last-minute enactment of these pay raises, opponents object to legislators approving pay increases for their present term of office. If raises were to apply to officials only after an election has intervened, say opponents, their self-interest in the issue would be minimized.

Opponents also claim that many of the pay raises are simply too large. Some leadership salaries increased by as much as $17,921 or 47 percent. And they point out that 34 out of 40 Senators qualify for leadership salaries above the base-level pay, as do 34 out of 160 Representatives. The main reason for the large increases in leadership salaries is because the law passed in November removed provisions in the previous pay raise legislation that limited leadership salaries to fixed percentages (from 60 to 95 percent) of the Governor's salary, which was $40,000. Some opponents also say the increases for constitutional officers, which range from 27 to 60 percent, are excessive. They point out that these raises far exceed the four percent cap on local government spending and the President's wage guidelines.

QUESTION 5

This proposed amendment to the Constitution would restrict the power of the state to pass laws that add personnel costs to municipal budgets. The Legislature would need to approve such measures by a two-thirds vote or assume the additional costs. Otherwise, the law would not be effective unless a community accepted it, by vote of its legislative body.

Background:

Four Republican Senators introduced this proposal at the 1977 legislative session. The Legislature approved the proposal that year by a vote of 257-8 and for the second time in September by a 179-6 vote.

There is a long history of attempts in Massachusetts to limit the state's authority to impose costs on cities and towns. A 1975 report of the Legislative Research Council observed that since 1956, 67 such measures had been introduced into the Legislature.

Pro:

Proponents say this Amendment will begin to return control over city and town budgets to voters and local officials, where it belongs.

They cite a number of state mandates that affect the salaries and benefits of municipal employees, add costs to municipal government, and increase property taxes. Among them: a 1971 law that sets minimum salaries for police and fire chiefs at percentages above their subordinates' pay rates; laws that increase pension benefits for municipal as well as state employees; mandatory training requirements for emergency medical personnel; and the 1974 enactment of compulsory and binding arbitration of police and fire impasses.

Since personnel costs are the largest expenditure item for most cities and towns, proponents say state laws like these help put a significant portion of the municipal budget beyond the effective management control of local officials. They say voters should be able to hold public officials directly accountable for the cost of government — but they can't do that when state officials determine local costs.

Proponents also point out that when the state made the collective bargaining process available to municipal employees, it established the mechanism to determine local personnel costs and policy. Salaries and fringe benefits should be determined solely at the bargaining table, through the negotiating process. Binding arbitration means some personnel costs are determined by individuals not directly responsible to voters.

This amendment would not change any existing law, or prevent the Legislature from enacting measures that apply to municipalities. It would force the Legislature to consider more carefully the impact of such laws on local budgets.

Con:

Opponents say it is unwise to add to the state's Constitution the rigid restrictions on legislative authority this proposal requires. They say the Legislature has recognized the problems created by state mandated costs and has responded by itself limiting the number of laws that require additional local costs. The Legislature's self-restraint is the simplest and most effective way to control the problem.

Opponents also point out that there are circumstances when it is necessary and desirable to enact laws that apply uniformly across the state. For example, laws that establish minimum service standards in areas such as public health and welfare, the environment, and education clearly should protect the residents of all cities and towns equally.

In addition, opponents say the proposal will create significant administrative problems and costs.

QUESTION 6

This amendment would change the procedure by which the Legislature declares emergency laws, allowing the declaration by voice vote rather than by the recorded vote now required. The amendment retains the option for a formal roll call vote.

Background:

This proposal was unanimously approved by the Legislature in 1977, and for the second time in September.

Under the usual legislative procedure, a bill becomes law 90 days after the Governor signs it. However, the Legislature may, by a two-thirds vote, add an emergency preamble, in which case a bill becomes effective upon the Governor's approval.

This emergency preamble has another important effect. The Constitution allows voters to repeal existing laws through a referendum process. Voters may also petition for the immediate suspension of a law, pending the subsequent referendum. However, if a law has an emergency preamble, it cannot be suspended.

Pro:

Proponents contend the Amendment will allow a more practical means of approving the many non-controversial emergency preambles the Legislature declares.

The Senate and House must often take standing votes on routine emergency declarations. Standing votes, however, waste time and do not accurately record the Legislature's action. The simple voice vote would be more efficient and adequate in most cases, say proponents.

Proponents point out that the proposal makes no change in the optional roll call vote procedure, and in no way infringes on the rights of the minority to challenge an emergency declaration.

Con:

Opponents say the potential for abuse this proposal creates far outweighs the value of minimal savings in time it might achieve. Opponents point out that most voters think the decisions of the Legislature should be more public, not less so, and that individual legislators should be more, not less, accountable for their actions. By allowing voice votes, this proposal would make it easier for only a few legislators to pass emergency preambles. Voice votes can be taken very quickly, with few legislators present and without the knowledge of those who are. There is little opportunity for opponents to object to the vote, and no record of the position taken by individual legislators.

There is no need to further undermine the public's right to know

Two New Readers Elected At Local Science Church

At a recent membership meeting two new Readers were elected to conduct the services in the Christian Science Church. Eleonora M. Spanjaard, of 20 Sheffield rd., was elected First Reader, replacing Richard Sampson. Mary E. Holdsworth, from 69 Falmouth st., Arlington, was elected Second Reader, replacing Joan E. Friborg. They will begin their three-year term this Sunday. In all Christian Science churches, Readers must be members of their local branch and The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. Many local churches, including Winchester, also provide that one who has already served a three-year term as Reader in any branch church is not eligible for election or re-election as Reader. Since there is no ordained clergy in Christian Science churches, church functions are conducted entirely by local members. The Readers' primary duty is to read the Christian Science weekly lesson sermon to the congregation on Sunday. This is a compilation of related references from the Bible and the denominational textbook pertaining to a specific subject and read alternately by the First and Second Readers. During the week, the same references serve as a bible lesson studied daily by Christian Scientists. On Wednesday evening a meeting is held, conducted by the First Reader, who reads selections from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook on a certain topic, chosen by the Reader. Mrs. Spanjaard, a native of The Netherlands, holds a law degree of the University of Amsterdam. Since emigrating to the United States in 1966, she has worked as a Dutch translator for the Christian Science Publishing Society. (Christian Science books and periodicals are translated in many languages.) She has been active in several volunteer organizations, among others as Treasurer of the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council and she is an active member of the League of Women Voters. She has served her church as Sunday school teacher, Executive Board member, community representative and as a member of various committees. Mrs. Holdsworth is a native of Idabel, Oklahoma. She holds a bachelor of science degree from Western Kentucky State University and she taught chemistry at Kansas State University. During the second world war she served with the WAVES in the U.S. Navy. She is an active member of the Kensington Park Study Club in Arlington and has served her church as Chairman of the Board, as a member of various committees and as Sunday School teacher. The Sunday service is held at 11 a.m. and on Wednesday evening the meeting is held at 8

A MORE SALABLE PACKAGE

If your house is for sale, there are a lot of little things you can do to make it more salable. First impressions count! Be sure your lawn is mowed, flower beds neat and property free of any trash. If it's winter, keep the walks clear of snow or ice. Replace loose tiles, bricks or shingles. If the paint is peeling, get out the brush. Peeling paint is a primary offender.

Inside, if the walls are woodwork are dirty wash them. If marred repaint where needed. Fix any leaking faucets, loose door knobs, creeking floors. Clear clutter out of closets and basement. Pick up clothes and put them away.

Pay special attention to the bathrooms and kitchen. Make them spotless. No dirty dishes in the sink. Nothing makes a better impression than a home with a well-cared-for look. There are countless other things you can do and nobody knows better what they are than your REALTOR. He's shown many houses and knows what turns prospects off. Take his advice.

Drive Supported

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Halloween is a traditional day for children to dress up as astronauts, monsters or favorite stars; a day when chanting "trick or treat" is all that's necessary to receive a piece of candy or other treat.

It is also National UNICEF Day, a day to remember the United Nations Children's Fund and the work it does on behalf of the world's neediest children and mothers. This year UNICEF is celebrating 30 years of "Trick or Treat for UNICEF", children helping children at Halloween.

Parents can help their children to experience the satisfaction of helping others by encouraging them to take a UNICEF box on their rounds Halloween night and by helping them to understand the great need that exists in other parts of the world.

Others can help by being on the lookout for children with UNICEF boxes and giving them warm support as well as a generous donation. Millions of children in the developing world depend on us, and citizens like us in other countries, for their survival.

As Kermit the Frog, National UNICEF Day Chairman says "Hunger shouldn't be kid stuff." No child should starve for attention.

Support National UNICEF Day.

Flooding Woes

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Other taxpayers are aware that some roads in this Town, insofar as new developments are concerned, are so constructed that flooding causes a serious problem to abutters.

When Pepper Hill Drive was constructed in this neighborhood it dammed up the natural flow of surface water, from part of our land, which had previously emptied into a nearby valley, now cut off because of the location of said road.

Consequently, the surface water now floods a goodly size portion of productive land on this farm rendering it unuseable for agricultural purposes.

Upon reporting such a problem to the Planning Board at a public hearing on October 21, Stephen Anderson of said Board replied to me that the fault and responsibility was not that of the Town of Winchester. He also said that I maligned the Town Engineer in stating the facts concerning flooding problems.

Is this Winchester or somewhere else? Of course the blame can easily be placed on the neighbors but in this case that argument is definitely untenable.

Before the Planning Board approves the plan for the continuation of road construction and development in the Pepper Hill area, insofar as Pepper Hill II is concerned, proper drainage facilities should be provided by the Town of Winchester to correct our flooding problem on the farm which was non-existent prior to the Pepper Hill Drive construction.

Nukes Lauded

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Tonight I read with discouragement the two articles placed in the Star by Ms. Bernstein, Coordinator for the fourth Middlesex Moratorium Committee, working for Question 8 to prohibit construction of nuclear power plants in New England.

Ms. Bernstein states her credentials as a graduate of Sloan School of Management and Carnegie Mellon School of Industrial Administration. I say discouragement because I am a member of many organizations of professional engineers who see the problem very differently from Ms. Bernstein, yet are unable to communicate it to her and the public at large.

I am a graduate engineer, I have spent over twelve years of my life working on the design and have personally supervised the construction and startup of several Naval Nuclear Reactors. Before you assume I have a vested interest, let me assure you I do, but it is not the one you may think.

I presently work for an engineering company that does all kinds of large and small energy projects, many of the type which Ms. Bernstein advocates, namely solar, cogeneration, hydroelectric, etc., and it makes no major difference to me or my company which of the so-called alternatives we build. I personally no longer directly work on any nuclear products and have not for several years.

My vested interest in on several issues:

First, I have a wife and family and I am concerned for both their present safety and their long range future in the town of Winchester.

Second, I am concerned about the future of our town and our country as a place to live and raise your children and mine. Please let me share these thoughts with you before you vote against nuclear power on Nov. 4.

1. There is no safe alternative to nuclear power for the affordable generation of electricity. In fact, there is no safer at any price according to the American Medical Association Studies when all effects are considered. Solar electricity currently costs twenty times as much to generate than electricity from nuclear power, and these figures are accepted by the government as well as utilities, including decommissioning and disposal of nuclear wastes. These figures are never mentioned by the anti-nuclear zealots. Solar technology is currently applicable to non-electric home heating and hot water heating at the present time and not many people are jumping at that, even with the 80 percent subsidies offered by the government which incidentally turns out to be you and me. Claims of 20 percent of our energy coming from solar in the next twenty years have been discounted repeatedly by those who would have to do it; however, nothing seems impossible for those who don't have to do it.

2. Oil is currently used to generate about 58 percent of the electricity in New England. The remainder is generated by nuclear-34 percent, hydroelectric-7 percent, and coal-1 percent. There are very good reasons for these percentages. At one time most of our electricity in New England was generated with coal and so were most of our houses heated by it. In the interest of clean air, over the last twenty years, the company I work for and several others converted most of these coal plants to oil. All new plants were designed to burn oil and thus cannot be easily converted to coal, or were nuclear. At that time nuclear was slightly cheaper than oil and slightly more than coal. We did not build hydroelectric plants because essentially all of the suitable sites in New England have been used and the remainder are not suited to it. They are what is called "low head" sites and essentially are not reliable. If you will note, many of these so-called available sites are dry river beds these days because of the dry fall.

I realize this letter is getting long, far longer than the 250 words Mr. Austin would like, but please bear with me. The energy shortage did not occur overnight and it takes more than 250 words to try and simply explain the options available and to counter the simplistic options proposed by the uninformed; which are really not available.

The fact of the matter is whether or not there is a current surplus of generating capacity in New England today as the sponsors of Question 8 claim is not relevant. Oil generated electricity is the third most expensive method, after solar and wind, although still ten times cheaper than these so-called alternatives. We must phase it out, not nuclear, to remain solvent.

If there were suddenly no oil (80 percent is imported), there would be only the present nuclear and hydroelectric power left. That is why the utilities are pressing hard to convert the Brayton Point Station in Somerset back to coal, in spite of the environmental damage we will suffer, and the same is being considered for other plants closer to us as well as throughout the state and the country. That is a poor option, but in the short run it is all we have left. Unfortunately, the coalition of the uninformed and the government have delayed Seabrook, Pilgrim II, Millstone III and other plants driving up the cost of the plants and increasing our reliance on imported oil.

As a family man and as your neighbor, I do not want to see this unfortunate circumstance prolonged further. As an Engineer, I hope I can communicate this one last thought to you. When I am sick, I go to a Doctor and I take his advice. If you want advice on Acting, ask Jane Fonda; on Politics, Ted Kennedy. If you want advice on Rock Music, ask Linda Ronstadt. Or if you want advice on Political Activism, ask Ms. Bernstein. But, if you want advice on energy, take mine and vote down the foolish Question 8, which in the long run will cause us nothing but more of our current grief.

Daycare Needs

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I'm writing this to express my feelings and concerns for "The Latch Key Child."

I am the Director of a Parent Co-Operative After School Program. A lot of people will ask, "What is an After-School Program?" I will try to clearly define my function and the program.

More and more people are joining the work force everyday, there is also an increase in single parent families, because of this many parents need care for their children after school; a place where their children can be in a safe, congenial atmosphere; a relaxed, non-competitive environment; where they can play, study, be creative or simply do nothing in the company of children of different ages. This is what an After School Program offers. However, at the present time, my program does not have a space of its own, we share an Elementary School Playground and Cafeteria.

My ultimate goal in life is to start an After School Program in my own town, Winchester. Therefore, I urge the Selectmen and Alternative School Re-Use Committee to seriously consider this plan, when designing their own for the Parkhurst and Wyman Schools.

Being Happy

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing, after I said I wouldn't, to answer the nice Grandma who wrote about being happy.

I remember Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman, Glen Miller, Guy Lombardo, Louie Armstrong, etc. Those were good old days and their music was super; but I am one of those 80 year olds who wonders about those 20 million working poor who have no insurance at all and do not go to a doctor when ill.

They can't afford it as the doctors have signs up that say no credit. These are the people who work in food services etc. at $3.10 per hour. How far can they go on this wage?

To this grandma, I say it would be nice if we could all be happy, but you will admit there isn't much to be happy about these days.

All the luck in the world to you, Gram I am also a grandmother to nine and a great gram to five.

Hope my grammer is O.K. this time

Obituaries

Adele Knox

Adele W. (White) Knox, 74 of 24 Dartmouth st., died Oct. 25 at her home. Born in Chelsea and educated in Chelsea schools, she was a retired school teacher. After graduation from Boston University with M.A. and B.S. degrees, she taught at the Prattville School in Chelsea for 35 years. She was a member of St. Mary's Church and the Winchester Country Club.

She was the wife of the late Everett R. Knox. There are no immediate survivors.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the Lane Funeral Home at 10:15 a.m. A Mass of the Resurrection followed at St. Mary's Church at 11 a.m. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Arrangements by Lane Funeral Home.

Robert Fentross

Robert E. Fentross, 37, of 16 Pine st., Woburn, died Oct. 25 at the home of his sister, Christine Loomis, in Woburn following several months illness.

A resident of Winchester for 30 years before moving to Woburn, he was born in Medford and educated in Winchester schools. In 1972 he moved from Winchester to Rye Beach, N.H., where he was a fisherman and lobsterman until 1978 when he moved to East Woburn. He was instrumental in assisting in the relocation of residents who lived along the flooded New Hampshire coastline during the blizzard of 1978.

Survivors include a brother, John of Gilford, Conn.; three sisters, Christine Loomis of East Woburn, Anne and Maureen Fentross of Medford; two nephews, Nikos and Andrew Loomis, and one niece, Candice Fentross. He was the son of the late John J. and Frances E. (Clover) Fentross.

The funeral was Wednesday at 9:15 a.m. from the Lane Funeral Home, followed by a funeral Mass in St. Joseph's Church in East Woburn at 10 a.m. Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford.

Arrangements by Lane Funeral Home.

York Zetterberg

Services were held Saturday at Saville Funeral Home, Arlington for York B. "Bud" Zetterberg of 21 Amberwood dr.

He died Oct. 22, at age 58. Born in Dover, N.H. he was the husband of Elizabeth (Saville); father of Bettijane of Hollywood, Ca. and Deborah Startzell of Vienna, Va.

Zetterberg graduated Dartmouth College Class of 1944. He was President of York Wholesale Co., Andover. He belonged to the Lumber Associations Silver and Hoo-Hoo Clubs. Burial took place in Dover, N.H. Saturday.

Wellesley Club Sponsors Concert

A morning of song and musical history was sponsored by the Winchester Wellesley Club which presented Leslie Holmes as the star of the 1980 benefit on Oct. 23.

The audience of about 200 filled the upper hall at the Parish of the Epiphany and was treated to a one and one half hour concert. Before singing each selection from Victor Herbert, Cole Porter, Richard Rodgers, Stephen Sondheim and many others, Holmes described the musical contribution of each composer.

Fortnightly Club Sets Second Meeting Nov. 10

The Fortnightly will hold the second regular meeting of the 100th season Monday, Nov. 10 in the CMUM Church. Refreshments will be served at 1 by Mrs. Gerald Mosher, chairman of International Committee. Committee members assisting are Mrs. Hugh Fay, Mrs. Frederick Fish, Mrs. Carl Hoglund, Mrs. Everett Littlefield and Mrs. Richard Sheppard.

Business meeting will be conducted by the president, Mrs. Levon Boodakian.

Mrs. William Sorenson, first vice president, will present the program by John J. Swanson, M.G.A. Master Graphoanalyst.

Susan Almasi provided virtuoso piano accompaniment. For those who would like to recapture the morning, Leslie's performance was taped by radio station WCRB for future play on her 9 a.m. Saturday morning show.

Holmes will give a similar recital at Wellesley College's Jewett Art Center on Feb. 1 at 2 p.m.

Winchester Wellesley Club president Maggie Russell introduced the program by calling attention to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and Wellesley College which will benefit from the morning. In keeping with a time honored tradition of furthering the education of young people, the club shares its profits with local college students and those at Wellesley College.

The morning concluded with wine, a gourmet salad bar, homemade desserts and coffee all prepared by club members and served in Hadley Hall.

Suvak Soloist At November Play Performance

Berklee College of Music faculty member Larry Suvak, a resident of 39 Pierrepont rd., will be guest soloist in the orchestra for the Berklee production of the Broadway hit, "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum," Nov. 12 and 13 at 8:15 p.m. in the elite Berklee Performance Center.

Suvak, will perform songs written for the musical farce by Stephen Sondheim, ranging from lively patter songs to tender ballads and underlining the comedy and drama on the stage. Numbers will include the popular, "Impossible," "Comedy Tonight," "Everybody Ought To Have A Maid" and "Pretty Little Picture."

Suvak, teaches woodwinds at Berklee. Tickets for "Forum" are available for $2 at the Performance Center Box Office, 136 Mass. ave. in Boston (tel: 266-7455). Senior Citizens $1.

Jaycee Women Sponsor Film For Winchester Youth

Approximately 200 children and parents attended the showing of "Patch the Pony", sponsored by the Winchester Jaycee Women on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 21, at the Muraco gym.

"Patch the Pony" is a program endorsed by the Winchester police department, dealing with the problem of child molesters.

"Patch the Pony" was so well received that plans are underway for another showing in the Spring.

Board Meets

The Mystic Valley Mental Health and Retardation Area Board will hold its regular monthly meeting on Nov. 5, 1980 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Main Hearing Room of the Burlington Town Hall.

The twenty-one citizens who are members of the Board are appointed by the Commissioner for Mental Health from the communities of Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

Keene To Perform "Auntie Mame" In Lexington

Francis Keene of Winchester is featured in the role of Vera Charles in the Lexington Theatre Company production of "Auntie Mame".

Keene has 35 years of experience in local area Community Theatre, directing, acting, and stage managing.

Winchester residents also appearing in "Auntie Mame" are John Kellar as Mr. Babcock and Connie Snelling as Rita Divine, both have been seen on stage in other productions.

"Auntie Mame" the original play by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee is a comedy and will appeal to all ages.

It will be presented on Nov. 7, 8 and Nov. 14 & 15 at 8 p.m., at Diamond Junior High School auditorium, Lexington.

Library Connection

You wouldn't think that libraries were important in World War II, but they were. What they did have been described as imaginative, innovative, and diverse: to industry, to the military and soldiers stationed all over the world, to families in new and strange places.

They provided vital information, as they have throughout history from the renowned library at Alexandria founded by Ptolemy to the present day urgent request for a hotline number.

In this last quarter of the century, there have been higher expectations and more demands of libraries than ever before. Our American libraries were not destroyed during World War II as so many libraries in Europe were. Librarians have traditionally been considered the trustees of civilization. Our libraries with the excellent collections and a wide spectrum of services should be nurtured and valued as national treasure.

In 1950, a new library was dedicated in Fitchburg for which the children of that city had collected a million pennies! At its dedication, Archibald MacLeish, poet and dramatist, made some informal remarks about libraries which are worth thinking about very carefully.

Before he spoke on libraries, he made this comment: "As we move into an age of mass communication, we move also into an age of mass-produced minds — look-alike mentalities. People are processed by television programs carpentered for the lowest common denominator, and television's estimate of the lowest common denominator is low indeed."

We begin to resemble each other, not only in our clothes, but in our ideas and at a level of intelligence at which no one needs to be excluded. The result is not only that mass vulgarity increases, but that the sameness of mass vulgarity stifles everything...

And then he concluded: "It is here that the reading of books — the library as the place in which books are read — becomes important as it has never been before. It is in books and by means of books that an escape from the sameness and suffocation of television and the other mass media is possible. In a book you touch, not a generalized, universalized opinion which is standard orthodoxy for the moment, but a man at the most living moment of his life — the moment when he is struggling with those aspects of his human experience which have moved him most, puzzled him most — those aspects which define him as a man, as a self different from other selves."

"It is for that reason... that libraries have now become, not simply useful institutions, desirable services to have in a community, evidences of local culture, but something far more important — the one means by which a vivid, different, living life may still be available to all men — the means to human intelligence, human imagination, human passion, not at its lowest and dullest and most commonplace, but at its highest, its most human."

Have you made a visit to the local library recently and discovered the dimension it can add to your life?

Winchester Votes Trend; Reagan, Prop. 2½ Win

President-Elect Ronald Reagan and Proposition 2.5 both swept to easy victories in Winchester on election night.

Reagan captured 47 percent of the vote in Winchester while President Jimmy Carter finished a distant second with 34 percent and Independent John Anderson grabbed 17 percent of the vote.

Turnout was very high, as it was across the state, with more than 82 percent of the registered voters going to the polls in Winchester. Of 13,299 registered voters, 11,415 went to the polls.

The unofficial vote tally showed Reagan with 5,447, Carter with 3,884 and Anderson with 1,979.

Libertarian candidate Edward Clark polled 84 votes while Barry Commoner grabbed five votes and Sen. Edward Kennedy received three write-in votes.

In the other big race that brought out much of the vote, Winchester voters gave the tax-slashing measure, Proposition 2.5 a resounding victory.

The referendum question, which had been labeled as being "disastrous" for the town by school and town officials, passed by a 2-1 margin in Winchester as it did across the state.

The question, which will now go before the Legislature, received 6,609 votes to 4,443 votes in opposition. Town officials have estimated that the measure, sponsored by Citizens For Limited Taxation, will force the town to reduce its budget by $3.7 million.

School officials claim that Prop. 2.5 will require a $1.9 budget reduction out of a $10 million budget.

In the other referendum questions, the Constitutional Amendment dealing with rights of handicapped citizens passed by a 1,600 vote margin.

Question 3, the Mass. Teachers Association alternative tax cutting measure, was defeated by more than a 2-1 margin.

The voters made very clear what they thought of the legislators Halloween pay raises by repealing them by a margin of over 7,000 votes.

The referendum question limiting the state's power to implement mandated programs passed by more than 3,400 votes.

In a non-binding question voters rejected a measure that would put a moratorium on the construction of nuclear power plants by less than 1,000 votes.

The other local ballot question, that would allow no more than three liquor licenses in town, also won an easy victory.

In the only local contested race, Edward Henneberry won an easy victory for Sheriff over Philip T. Razook by a 2,000 vote margin. Former School Committee Chairman Mary Pronski also received a write-in vote for the position.

Other write-in votes received was one of actress Jane Fonda for U.S. Rep. Edward Markey's congressional seat.

Town Employee, Police And Teacher Contracts Approved By Town Meeting

In an all but unanimous vote Monday, Town Meeting approved police, teacher and town employee contracts calling for a total of $571,228 in appropriations and transfers.

The contract approval vote was 126 favoring, five opposing and followed urgings by Selectmen Edward F. O'Connell that Town Meeting honor "good faith" understandings reached with the three groups in agreements negotiated earlier this year.

Monday night's vote calls for an appropriation of $138,405 and a transfer of funds totaling $432,822.

Selectmen signed agreements with police and Winchester teachers at a meeting immediately preceding Town Meeting Monday.

O'Connell's remarks concerning "good faith" followed those made by Finance Committee Chairman Bob Frank concerning the effects of Proposition 2.5 on the contract agreements.

Saying he thought failure to approve funding for the contracts would comprise a "breach of faith," O'Connell urged Town Meeting not to view 2.5 as the "burglar under the bed."

Selectman Chairman Wade Welch agreed, and urged Town Meeting to vote on the pacts.

Under the terms of the police contract, first year salary increases amount to six and three-quarter percent. As a result, the maximum patrolman's salary would be $15,415.

Second year increases under the police agreement also amount to six and three-quarter percent and brings the

An Historic Turning Point

Massachusetts joined America on Tuesday in lending its voice to the strong endorsement of people and principles whose label "conservative" was not long ago considered an indecent word.

For the first time since 1952, a Republican carried the Massachusetts presidential vote. And not just any Republican, but Ronald Reagan, for 12 years this country's most outspoken champion of the conservative viewpoint.

Coupled with the overwhelming approval of Question 2, the property tax limit law, Massachusetts' vote for Ronald Reagan should get the attention of even the most liberal legislators and officials. The message is clear: People want restraints on government.

The era of the free lunch is over.

The people have said they just can't afford it.

We must look for other answers to social problems. Throwing mountains of money at them for a quarter of a century just hasn't worked. In fact, since 1960, America has created a generation of people who are solely dependent on government-funded programs for all their needs — housing, health care, education, employment and recreation.

The time is now to start moving away from this. It is time to start rebuilding incentive, independence, integrity and self-esteem by putting forth challenges with attainable goals and just rewards. Eventually the long lines of those waiting for government handouts will disappear by themselves.

But this will take time — a long time — and the process must be orderly. It took 20 years for the social services departments of the federal government — HEW, HUD, and now ED — to grow to the point where they employ over five million people who spend 60 percent of the budget. It may take 20 years or more to get them under control again.

One thing is certain: This election is a beginning.

The people who pay the bills have spoken.

The silent majority has become the vocal majority. Defeat of several nationally known liberal senate leaders should in itself indicate that the mainstream of American political thinking has changed.

They are tired of a welfare economy and they are tired of a system which sees our basic industries fall into disrepair because of a tax burden which dulls incentive and investment. They are tired of excessive and inequitable taxation and government intrusion in our daily lives.

A new president and the passage of Question 2 in Massachusetts won't change anything overnight, but our elected representatives are on notice that the people want to see basic changes in the philosophy of government.

In Massachusetts we will be faced with legislative modifications which will be necessary for the implementation of Question 2 in an orderly way. But let no one mistake the vote: the public voice is loud and clear: The people are demanding not only a change in their tax structure, but less government and less from government.

The opponents of Question 2 — public officials, the unions, the municipal employees — spent huge sums and many hours to deliver the word that a vote in favor was a vote to cut services and cut government. But the mood, and the vote, was overwhelmingly one of "we can get along with less." And we can.

The people knew what they were voting for on Question 2. It is not up to the legislature to just replace the property tax system with another tax plan designed to generate revenues from other sources to fund the existing level of government.

It is time to listen to the people.

Massachusetts has decided to get in step with America. Make no doubt about it.

Neighbors Block Medical Building

By STEVEN AUSTIN

Cross street residents won their battle to block the construction of a medical building in their neighborhood Monday when Town Meeting voted down a bid by the developer to rezone a portion of the site from residential to light industrial use.

The vote to defeat Article 9, 67 favoring and 46 opposed, fell nine votes short of the needed two-thirds majority for passage.

The developer, John Lane, has proposed the construction of a 20,000 sq. ft. building to house doctors' offices on a 3 acre site he has an option to buy from the Boston Gas Company.

Through public hearing with the Planning Board and again Monday at Town Meeting, neighborhood residents protested the plan due to the increase in traffic they feel would result.

In his presentation before town meeting Monday, Lane called on his attorney, Harold DuLong, George Wilcox of the Erdman Company, the firm which would construct the building and traffic engineer Bob Vanasse, of the Boston-based engineering firm of Vanasse and Hangen Associates.

In the article, Lane had asked that a piece of land just in front of the three acres be rezoned to light industrial use in order to provide an entrance to the facility.

Attorney DuLong said Lane had reached an agreement with the Planning Board in the form of a covenant which restricted the uses of the site. Those restricted uses were termed those which would be "most obnoxious" to residents in the area. In addition, DuLong said Lane would further agree to have the use restrictions further expanded to include restaurant use.

"We have agreed to absolutely everything," DuLong told Town Meeting.

Vanasse, the engineer who made the traffic study in the area, said traffic would increase nine percent on a daily basis, bringing Cross street to only 45 percent of its capacity. Currently, the engineer explained, the street is operating at approximately one-third of its traffic capacity.

He said he based the study on a 70-person staff density at the building and a patient load of 400 per day.

The proposal drew support from a majority of Selectmen and the Planning Board.

The Finance Committee also supported the proposal, with Chairman Bob Frank pointing to an increase in the tax base the building would provide.

"The benefits of the tax base outweigh the detriment to the neighborhood," Frank said.

He said the building, if constructed for $1.5 million, would yield from $40,000-$50,000 a year in tax revenue for Winchester.

Despite this support, residents held firm in their objections. As one resident, Town Meeting member John Harris put it, "There are too many unknowns."

"We ask Town Meeting members to respect the wishes of the neighbors and vote negatively," Harris said.

There had been some discussion by neighbors Monday that Lane's article was in direct conflict with Article 8, which rezoned portions of the Cross street area from light industrial to residential use.

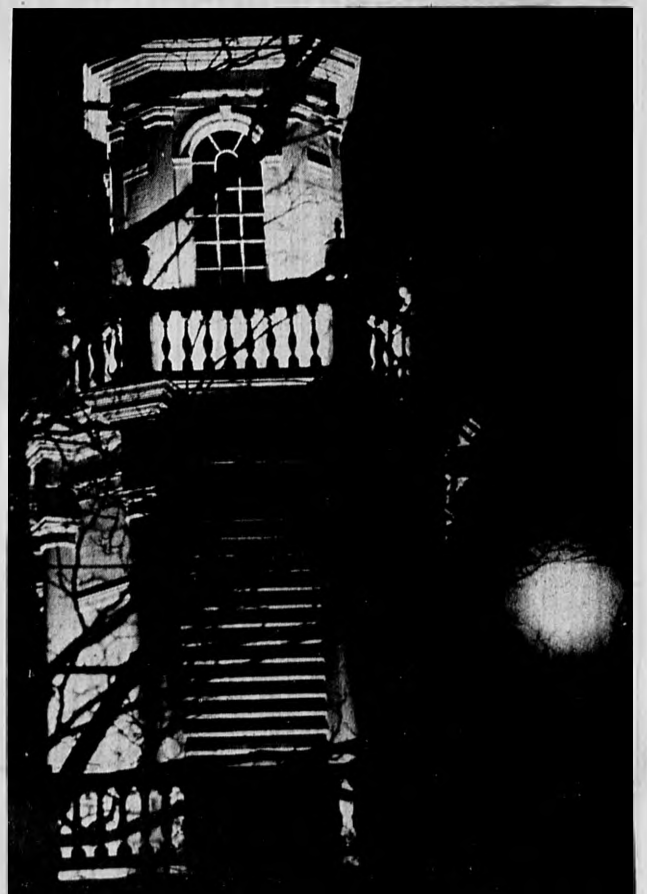

Other residents asked that the area be converted to conservation use.

In an interview with The Star Tuesday, both Lane and DuLong expressed an interest in continuing with the
